GEORGE LINDSAY GIVEN CONTRACT

In Connection With Building of Queen-St Sewer

From Wednesday's Post.

The Queen-st. sewer bobbed up again at a special meeting of the council last night, and for a time the discussion waxed warm. The meeting was called as a result of the following letter, which was read to the council:—

D. Ray, Esq., Town Clerk.

Dear Sir,—We have been instructed by property owners on Queen-st. to apply to the courts to restrain the construction of the sewer on Queen st. at the expense of the property owners.

If the council wishes to construct this sewer, let it be constructed at the expense of the town, and let such property owners as use it, pay for the use. We would be pleased to hear immediately the intention of the council in regard to this.

Yours truly,
STEWART & O'CONNOR.

Ald. Clarke wanted to know who was behind the communication, but the information was not forthcoming. After a rather spirited discussion on the sewer, a bylaw authorizing the execution of a contract between the corporation and Geo. H. Lindsay for the construction of a sewer on Queen-st. was given its several readings and passed.

Supt. Hammond reported on the cost of construction and life time of a sanitary sewer and cellar drain on Queen-st. It was received and adopted.

The bylaw authorizing the construction of a sanitary sewer and cellar drain on Queen-st. was given its several readings and signed and sealed.

The town solicitor was instructed to draw a contract drawn up between Mr. Geo. Lindsay and the town for the construction of the Queen-st. sewer according to the specifications of the Town Engineer.

MRS. SPRATT WAS INJURED

Mrs. Richard Spratt, Williams-st., was the victim of a painful accident on Tuesday. She was passing under a wire clothes line heavily weighted with carpet, when it collapsed. Mrs. Spratt was stunned, while the wire inflicted an ugly cut on her head, which required some stitches. Dr. Blanchard attended the injured lady, who is confined to her room today as a result of her mishap.

INVESTIGATIONS AT KINGSTON 'PEN

Two Officials Named in Allegations

(Special to The Post.)

KINGSTON, Oct. 1.—The prison reform commission, appointed by the government to inquire into the management of Kingston Penitentiary, opened proceedings with serious charges preferred against two of the officials by the Justice Department, through Mr. J. W. Edwards, K.C., for Prudence.

H. A. Stewart, K.C., Brockville, appeared before the commission on behalf of the Justice Department, and presented these charges of Dr. Ogilvie for investigation:

"I charge Deputy Warden O'Leary with petty and persistent persecution of guards and keepers; with political partisanship; with testifying falsely at investigation held at the prison; with consulting with convicts; with gross negligence of his duty, resulting in attempts at escape; and I charge the surgeon, Dr. Phelan, with gross political partisanship; with using violent and indecent language to a guard in the presence of others; with conniving at the absence of a guard at an election trial, where a guard was wanted as a material witness; with grafting by asking for and receiving money from convicts, which he had no just or honest claim, for."

The commission is composed of G. A. Macdonnell, K.C., Kingston; Dr. Fred. Etherington, Kingston; J. P. Downey, Orillia.

Mr. Stewart asked that former Accountant W. F. Hughes, now an inspector of prisons, be summoned as a witness, and as he is in the west, it will be some time before his evidence is taken. Hughes will be subpoenaed.

Thomas Clarkson Gordon Russell, M.A., B.S.C., Toronto, ex-convict and reformer, who made charges against the penitentiary management in The Toronto Sunday Sun, is present, and been summoned as a witness. He says he is willing to tell all he knows about the management, and he is accompanied by another man in the penitentiary to give evidence.

Minden Fair Good Success

Minden Fair turned out a good success Tuesday and a large crowd were present. The directors it is understood took in over $100 at the gate up to an early hour in the afternoon.

The exhibits were first class and very representative of the best the district can grow. Horses, cattle, poultry and sheep also showed well and a number of particularly fine animals were noticed.

The skate as usual were doing a good business and helped make things lively with their spoiling. There were a number of automobile parties present from Lindsay.

FIREMAN THROWN FROM WAGON

Sad Fatality in Toronto On Tuesday

(Special to The Post.)

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—Fireman Jas. Carey of the Bloorwood avenue hall was killed yesterday afternoon as a result of being thrown headforemost from the top of a hose wagon, which was being driven full speed to a fire in the Union Stock Yards. The realization of the danger of the blaze setting heavily among the numerous inflammable buildings at the stock yards inspired Captain Matthews, who was driving, to urge the horses to their utmost gallop. In proceeding along St. Clair avenue, the victim attempted to change seats and prepare for a plunge at the fire, but as he rose the wagon jolted on a bad piece of road, and the unfortunate young man was pitched off, his head striking the curb.

The team were brought to a quick stop and the unconscious form placed on the truck and rushed to the surgery of Dr. W. G. McCormack on Boon avenue. Ambulance, but the young man died as the was being carried into the house. His skull had been fractured.

Mariposa Man Fined For Assault

The case of the Mariposa man charged with assault by his wife, was heard in magistrates court in county police court today. He was convicted and fined $5 and costs, amounting in about $24. The same man was fined last week on a charge of non support of his wife, and the sentence was suspended for one year. The assault was said to have taken place when the wife was leaving his home on account of his non-support.

The custody of the children is still to be decided, and a discussion took place after court on the subject. The father now has them, but the wife claims the right.

Beaverton Man Too Courteous

Niagara Falls, Sept. 30.—James Russell, of Beaverton, Ont., was fined $5 in police court yesterday for being too accommodating in Riverway. Himself was intoxicated. His long suit was offering his services to women to carry their packages, and he even went so far as to trundle baby carriages and perambulators in which he visited the state reservation. This he did despite the unsteadiness with which he carried his own package.

THE LATE GEO. INGLE

The passing of George Ingle (whose death occurred last evening) meant the removal of a well known figure for many years associated with the life and development of this community. And an honorable and public-spirited part he played throughout his long career. He was always alive to the duties of his citizenship and never ceased to take an intelligent interest in public affairs. He served the town in the capacity of Mayor in 1901 and 1902 and was also Warden of Victoria and discharging his duties conscientiously and fearlessly. He was a shrewd and watchful critic of municipal matters, and when occasion presented itself he expressed himself with ability.

In the industrial life of the community the late Mr. Ingle was most prominent. His planing mill business was known throughout the district to the other. Those who had business relations with the deceased years which Mr. J. M Chalmers had the factory. Mr. Ingle has run the business himself mainly ever since the present building was erected.

"For 18½ the present factory was built, and it stands today just as it was then. The machinery, of course, has been changed, the factory now is equipped with the latest and most efficient appurtenances. At present there are from twelve to fifteen men employed in the factory and there are never less than seven or eight. A number of men who are now working for Mr. Ingle have been with him for some time, which speaks highly of his record as an employer.

"Mr. Ingle has been prominently identified with the public life of the town. He served on the town council for years. He was a councillor for several terms, was reeve and also occupied the mayor's chair for two years. He is the oldest Mason in Faithful Brethren Lodge with the exception of our venerable citizen, Mr. C. Britton, and is the oldest Past Master. He was the oldest Conservative voter in Lindsay.

"The many satisfied customers of Mr. Ingle, not only in the immediate district, but throughout the province, speak volumes for his business integrity. It has been his pleasure to turn out nothing but the best.

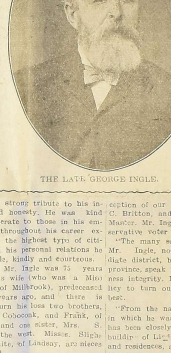
"From the nature of the business in which he was engaged, Mr. Ingle has been closely associated with the builder of Lindsay's business blocks, and residences, and many are the interesting stories which he can relate of the early days in Lindsay. Material for the Incle planing mill was used in the construction of nearly all the churches in Lindsay, the Collegiate Institute and most of the three ward schools. What was then known as the grammar school (now the old Central) was built by Mr. Mr. Ingle went into business, and at that time was considered to be away out of town.

"The old town hall was used in those days for everything—church, public meetings, concerts, dances, etc. Some of the congregations had their own churches. The Methodists were where Mr. W. Skitch now has his shop. The Presbyterians had a log building on Francis street opposite the court house. The Baptists occupied a frame building where Mr. C. Lindsay's livery barn is now, afterwards moving to the corner of Russell-st. and Wellington street where they went into their present building. The building on Cambridge-st. was bought by Col. the Hon. Hughes for his newspaper. The Anglicans had a frame church where the post office stands. When the congregation bought that site they moved back on to Russell street.

"Lindsay's mud in those days was famous. All the south western part of the town was a cedar swamp from the town hall to the round house. Kent street was very muddy and it was not an uncommon sight to see a team of horses and a load stuck in the mud. Mr. Ingle recollected seeing a team stuck in the mud in front of Bovall and Mutthe's present store.

Captain Bernier has returned to Quebec from a 15 months' voyage to the Arctic.

Joseph Michaud, ex-M.P.P. for West Nipissing, died at Sturgeon Falls, aged fifty-six.



THE LATE GEORGE INGLE.

can bear strong tribute to his integrity and honesty. He was kind and considerate to those in his employ, and throughout his career exemplified the highest type of Christian manhood. Kindness of heart was notable, kindly and courteous.

The late Mr. Ingle was 75 years of age, his wife who was a Miss Matthews of Millbrook, predeceased him nine years ago, and there is left to mourn his loss two brothers, Henry, of Cobourg, and Frank, of Toronto, and one sister, Mrs. S. Moore, in the west. Misses Sligh and A. White, of Lindsay, are nieces of deceased.

The funeral will take place tomorrow (Friday) afternoon under Masonic auspices from the family residence, Cambridge-st., at 2.30 o'clock and interment to Riverview cemetery. Services at the house and grave will be conducted by Rev. James Walker.

As a mark of respect to the deceased, the flags on the local public buildings are today flying at half mast.

SKETCH OF CAREER.

The following history of the deceased is taken from the Post of April 3, 1912—

"Mr. Ingle was born in Port Hope seventy-five years ago last spring, and lived there the first six years of his life. He went to Peterboro with his parents, living there for ten years, coming to Lindsay at the age of sixteen.

"When they first came to Lindsay they were engaged in building and getting mill for the late Silas Bigelow. When this building was finished his father got the contract for the town hall, which building is now occupied by Mr. D. Sinclair, and is still in use. Getting other contracts in town, they decided to remain. In 1871, his father failed to erect the Presbyterian church.

"Forty years ago this spring, Mr. George Ingle, in partnership with Mr. George Matthews, commenced business together. At that time there was a tannery on the present site of the Planing mill, built by Mr. O. Beirne, father of the editor and publisher of the Stratford Beacon. Some time had to be spent in remodelling the structure, as the building was so low that a man could not stand erect in it. In the course of a few years Mr. Matthews went out of business, and Mr. J. P. Ryley was a partner with Mr. Ingle for a few years. With the exception of the two

CROOKS ARRESTED AT THE FALLS

One of them Presented False Bank Cheque

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 1.—In the arrest of two men and two women here yesterday afternoon, the police believe they have recorded an members of a swindling gang whose operations were international in scope. Two of the prisoners, a man and woman and a man, give their addresses as Toronto. The other couple, passing as man and wife, say they come from Buffalo.

They were arrested following an attempt by the Toronto woman to cash an alleged worthless check for $420 at the Bridge street branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada.

The prisoners came to the Falls on Sunday night. They registered at the Savoy Hotel and spent money lavishly. They insisted upon having the best of everything and wanted to have a plentiful supply of funds. They acted like any other wealthy tourists until yesterday afternoon when the woman attempted to cash a cheque at the Bridge street bank.

When she tendered what purported to be a certified cheque for $420 on the Toronto branch of the Union Bank of Canada, the teller referred her to the manager. A. N. Murray. She showed Mr. Murray a Union Bank pass book showing $1,110 to her credit at the Toronto branch. The check was made payable to "Cash." Although all appeared to be right, Mr. Murray was suspicious because of many swindles worked on banks recently, and told the woman to call later in the afternoon, when the check would be honored.

When the woman left the bank Mr. Murray called up the manager of the Union Bank in Toronto. Then he learned that she had only $110 to her credit. In the meantime the bank manager had shadowed the suspects. She returned to her hotel and joined the others. The four were just leaving the hotel to go for an auto when about the city w' re arrested by Chief John Ross and Patrolman John Dart of the city police.

At police headquarters the four prisoners refused to talk. Search of their rooms at the Savoy was made. The police say a counterfeit "certified" stamp used in the Union Bank was found among their belongings.

That a number of Canadian banks will send representatives here in an effort to identify the prisoners as operators who have worked a similar racket throughout Canada and in several American cities. Within three weeks ago the Hamilton branch of the Bank of British North America was swindled out of $2,000 on a spurious certified check.

The prisoners will have a hearing before Magistrate Fraser to-day on a charge of attempting to utter a false check.

TWO WARRANTS FOR POLICE CHIEF

Port Hope, Sept. 30—A sensation was caused here tonight when it became known that Chas. Floody, a newspaper of this town, had sworn out two warrants against Chief of Police A. W. Gummerson, formerly of the Toronto police force, one charging of unlawfully trespassing upon private property, and the other is for assaulting and beating the complainant, contrary to the provisions of the Criminal Code.

The two warrants were served on the Chief late this evening by his Assistant Night Constable Allan Boyce.

RECULATION OF STREET TRAFFIC

Council Will Prepare By-law on the Question

(From Wednesday's Post)

At last night's special council session Ald. Adams brought up the question of the proper regulation of street traffic more especially on our paved thoroughfares. There seemed to be an utter disregard for the rules of the road, and as a result vehicles of all kinds travelled right and left at their own sweet will. Ald. Adams pointed out very clearly that such a practice was a source of danger to pedestrians and it was incumbent upon the council to take some action in the matter.

Reeve Kylie said he had been to Peterboro recently and in conversation with the city clerk was informed that the city had a splendid bylaw regulating traffic.

The council will procure a copy with a view to preparing a bylaw to govern local conditions.

PETERBORO'S POPULATION

Peterboro, Sept. 30.—The assessor's returns for the year made today show an increase of $1,065,532 in the assessment and also an increase in population of 231, or a total of 20,116. The population would show a greater increase were it not for the fact that the main growth of the city is from the South End. As a result property outside the limits has been used for building purposes, and the Township of North Monaghan receives the benefit. There were 266 births and 118 deaths.

Albert Davidson Improving

Albert Davidson, the victim of Tuesday's bicycle collision, is resting nicely today. He was in a semi-conscious condition on Tuesday afternoon, but this morning he was much better. The Italian, while not seriously injured, is suffering from several nasty bruises.

CORNER STONE OF ARMORIES LAID

Millbrook, Sept. 30—The corner stone of the Millbrook armories was laid this afternoon by Col. G. A. G. Williams, Adjutant-General of Ottawa. Among those present were Col. John Hughes, Col. McNaughton of Cobourg, Col. J. A. V. Preston, and the officers of the 45th Regiment. The usual ceremony was witnessed by a fairly large crowd of soldiers and visitors. The erection of the armories is progressing steadily. Mr. Richard Sheehy, of Peterboro, is the contractor. A banquet is being held this evening in the town hall at six o'clock.

ACTIVITY AT OTTAWA

The various departments of administration are preparing their estimates for the fiscal year 1914-15. Departmental officials are wondering whether or not this means a fall session. The general assumption has been that the house would not open till January for a short session. The fact seems to be that the time of opening has not been determined, though the chances are in favor of a January session. The instruction to the departments from the prompt preparation of the estimates probably means more than that the government is to be ready to move the house into supply as soon after the opening of the session as the session-al programme warrants.

THE CHURCH AND SOCIAL WORK

Miss Nosfield, of Toronto Neighborhood House, spoke the other day before the Women's Press Club of Winnipeg, and had this to say about the church in its relation to social work:

"Ministers are not social workers. They think they are, but the idea of putting a minister in charge of some sorts of social work is ridiculous. It would be just as sensible to put a minister in charge of a hospital because he is a nice kind young man. The churches are always talking about what ought to be done, but they never do anything to improve matters. They are shut up from four to five Sundays and preach ninety times they ought to be doing institutional work in their community."

The St. Catharines Standard this indictment is too harsh, and is delivered from too narrow a viewpoint. But this remarks of Miss Nosfield, of social amelioration that question of keeping the churches shut up except for a few hours each week is likely to lead to demanding a solution. Be immense a plant might conceivably be used to better advantage if church is composed of individuals and when the individual faces his full responsibility the church will be irresistible.

SOME BITING REMARKS

In view of certain unfair criticisms of Sir Wilfrid Laurier by Mr. Borden in his speech in Halifax this week, the Halifax Chronicle makes these biting observations concerning Mr. Borden:

"Mr. Borden is fond of misquoting what Sir Wilfrid Laurier is supposed to have said in 1891. It may be well to remind Mr. Borden that he was a ardent supporter of the Liberal party, at that time, led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and had only a short time previous to the general election been flattering and commendatory addresses to the man he now condemns. It was only in 1896 that Mr. Borden joined the Tory party, under pressure, and at a time when Laurier was never leaving it. There is ample evidence in the editorial book of the Winnipeg Liberal Club, with the Mr. Borden's signature affixed to a declaration that he was a firm Liberal and would always support and uphold the principles of Liberal principles. It does not lie in Mr. Borden's mouth to charge anyone with inconsistency, when his own record is so vulnerable. It would be interesting if he could be prevailed upon to explain the 'pressure' under which he for the first time polled a Tory vote, if he did so, in 1896."

HOME RULE FOR SCOTLAND

New York, Sept. 27—That Home Rule in Ireland would be followed by Home Rule in Scotland was the assertion of F. J. Robertson, a city official of Edinburgh, in an address Friday night on "Home Rule in Scotland," at a meeting under the auspices of the Scottish Home Rule Association of New York. He summed up the purpose of the movement to obtain representative government in these words:

"It is proposed to relieve the present House of Parliament of purely Scottish business, and to set up a House of Parliament in Scotland. The idea is that each of the four nations of Great Britain — Ireland, Scotland, England and Wales — are entitled to and should have their own legislation and control of the affairs of government concerning their own national life, with an Imperial Parliament to look after matters of general common interest to all."

Mr. Robertson was the chief factor in the organization last May of the International Scots Home Rule League. While he stepped from a New York Central train yesterday afternoon he had completed 12,700 miles of travel in Canada and the United States, speaking in nearly every important city on the subject of Scottish Home Rule. Friday he told his audience N. Y. of the enthusiasm he found everywhere, resulting in results in local associations being formed, among others, in Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Philadelphia, Chicago, Minneapolis, Seattle, Boston and Albany.

THE STAGE

The stage is popular not because it ministers to a depraved taste but because it contributes to the sum of human enjoyment. The great mass of those who patronize theatres are honest and have good purposes. They crave recreation. They will have it and they ought to have it. In the recording to the dramatic critic of the New York Post, those who minister to this desire for recreation complain bitterly of the lack of encouragement they receive. He says:

"The theatrical season is just getting under way, and already the standards of commercial decency and honest art have been outraged by the mercenary playwright and producer. The success of the Crosby Gaige seasons has convinced the traffickers of the theatre that a market exists for stronger meat than the public has been conditioned to pay. They have evidently set out to satisfy the demand and we are witnessing a competitive struggle in the theatre, tending towards the survival of the mastiff. Under the guise of constructive criticism and study of the social evil, plays have been thrown on the stage which are abominable in their suggestiveness and indefensible in their extention."

The purpose of those who exploit the cesspool on the stage is certainly not art, but commercialism. Both art and life, and think of nothing but profits. If the money changers should succeed in making the temple of art in New York they will succeed all over the nation. Fashions soon travel from New York to Oshkosh.

THE ULSTER SITUATION

The Peterboro Examiner in dealing with the Ulster situation, believes that "the embryo parliament in Ulster is practically for and against abortion. It is inconceivable that a little faction in a corner of the British Empire can secure such a power to tempt to defy the genius of British institutions—the sovereignty of the people—authority founded upon the will of the majority regularly expressed. Ulster, or a half of Ulster, may secure the Home Rule exclusion, through the glamor of prejudice and bigotry, read into the bill something entirely foreign to it, and it has formed a rebellion against authority that is threatened. This rebellion is not so easily subdued, as, however, must be done, for confusion, anarchy, and disruption of the Empire will ensue with rampant treason triumphing, whereupon there might happen to be dissatisfaction with administrative or legislative action. On principle, it would be just as reasonable for one political party to demand a separate parliament, as Ulster rebellions, because it is probably the majority of the people of Great Britain, the majority of the people of Ireland, and in things British the majority rule. A home rule law, and may show its fitness for opera bouffe self-government by defying the law. There are great many people who don't have so much common sense as Ulster has, because they have lawless minds—feel they can and should be a law unto themselves. The half of Ulster is putting itself into the same class as those described in Hodiarne:

"No man ever felt the halter draw
With good opinion of the law."

Law is good when it meets with our approval, when it does not interfere with our likes, opinions, desires, or prejudices. There has long existed Ulster as the bulwark of the constitution and the Throne, the bond that holds the Empire together and the guarantee of its continuance, but the moment it is played, and menaces some danger, which is in fact no danger, it forces dissentients, and all over the Empire similar Unionists are the first to approve, if not preach, the political doctrine of disunion, treason, and disregard of what makes the loyal subject—obedience to the voice of constituted authority, constitutionally expressed. Ulster need not fear oppression by a parliament in Dublin, when it can with impunity, flout the decrees of the British parliament, and unconstitutionally and illegally organize, and preach anarchy and talk treason to King and constitution, unchastised. We may not have the highest regard for the methods of a Cromwell, but if Sir Edward Carson in his worldly treason had a Cromwell to deal with, he probably would long since have been searching for his head. Sir Edward Carson and his rebellious pals may expect punitive attention in the same principles that insures the ludicrous rebellion of a spoilt child. The very impatience and its powerlessness to do anything more than kick and scream, protect it.

A LONG STRUGGLE AHEAD

It is chiefly due to the impatience horse of a long exclusion from power that the Tory party is ready to appeal to mob-law as a means of forcing the hands of statesmen. It is officially announced that Mr. Bonar Law is to speak by the side of Sir Edward Carson in Ireland in the later autumn. Mr. Balfour will wave a blessing to his militant nephews, and many of the organs of Unionism, together with those high in authority in the party, would even go the length of offering to play a part of George III and appeal to the people against parliament, in the hope of scaring through their type of political adviser he wants. The present government is to be taught a lesson. The King is advised to revive the veto, which has been dead for generations, disregard ministers and ignore the majority that sustains them.

In other words the Unionist statesmen have apparently set their seal to revolutionary courses. Why do they do this? Is it because the Liberals will not compromise, or that the Irish Nationalists are insisting upon their pound of flesh? On the contrary they have attempted all manner of conciliation. Mr. Birrell has stated that the army would not coerce Ulster to enforce submission to the Home Rule Act. Protection will of course be given to all minorities, and the need of this protection will likely follow the outbourning of the spirit at Belfast, but the concessions are in definition of self-government, by consent, they are honour to obtain power by disunion. It is made clear by Lord Curzon in his letter to the Times pleading for a conference on the Irish situation. It is a great defeat for the Tory party, it points out to those who think that peace would follow a Tory government in power as a reward for their election. "to suppose that our choice is between two courses, one leading to a peaceful settlement, the other leading to tranquility." Trouble may follow the passing of the Home Rule, the only alternative is coercion and return to something very much worse than the days of the Phoenix Park tragedy. This is trouble and bad feeling in front whatever happens and grave issues of government are at the gate.

FEARS FOR DAILY BREAD

The London (Eng.) Daily News and Leader has the following:—

"A circular recently issued by a Belfast firm to its employees form a sufficient answer to all the talk of "civil war" in Ulster when the Home Rule Bill becomes law. Behind all the parading of dummy gun brigades there lies a simple fact which the democrm of the community will have none of it.

"To the men with a stake in the country do not mean to have their businesses ruined at the bidding of a few fire-eaters, who have never made clearer than in the following circular.

"Elite street, Belfast.

"Dear Sir,—Having been informed that some of our direct bread servants are identifying themselves too prominently in political matters, the directors wish it to be distinctly understood that they cannot sanction either bread servers in charge, or their assistants, taking a prominent part in political meetings or demonstrations, as they consider such a course prejudicial to the interests of the company. The fact that we are a firm, we cater for and are supported by all classes of the community, should be sufficient to make servers refrain from adopting a course which would annoy the susceptibilities of any customer, and as a solicitor of our servers prejudice the company, we trust that they will see the matter from a business point of view, and it will not be necessary for us to say anything further. At the same time we wish to make it clear that we have no wish or desire to interfere with the political opinions of any servant of the company; they can use the franchise in whatever way they think best; but they must remember that their positions as bread servers is to serve the public at large, and to take up a strong position on either side we consider not of the best method to attain this end.

"Yours truly,

"ANGLIS & CO., LTD.

"Messrs. Inglis & Co. have one of the largest bread and cake manufacturing concerns in Ireland, and their business is in a position to be important town or district in the north which is not supplied by their goods, and yet carts, drivers, etc., in matter from a business point of view, and they know how detrimental to business interests threats of a civil war are calculated to be.

"It will be noted that Messrs. Inglis do not appeal to their employees using the franchise in whatever way they think fit, but as for Carsonity threatening their livelihood matter from a business point of view, and they know how detrimental to business interests threats of a civil war are calculated to be.

"It will be noted that Messrs. GASOLINE WILL BE CHEAPER

Owners of motor-cars and motor-cycles are now called on to learn that the prospect is excellent for a considerable reduction in the price of the commodity. The Standard Oil company of the United States has found a way of producing a larger percentage of gasoline from crude oil than in England, a process has been discovered whereby its equivalent can be obtained from kerosene.

The new American process has been patented by the Standard Oil company and installed in refineries at Whiting, Indiana, and Alton, Illinois, at a cost of over $1,000,000. Means have been found for breaking up the heavier oils into the lighter ones, whatever combinations may be desired, and the particulars have been made public by the company. In the instance of the process are understood to be working on a still never produced from the demonstration plant appears in every way to answer the requirements of the modern engine, and it is said to give from 8 to 15 per cent extra power as compared with the ordinary marketable petrol. The cost will certainly be less than the present price of petrol, and it will be equal to the best quality of that article. Within a few weeks the committee hope to have acknowledge of the commercial possibilities. Mr. Cooke says: "My committee bear in mind that the Commonwealth calls not so much for the very large reductions in price as for the abolition of the present irritating spirit of industrialism as regards both price and supply."

The coming drop in the price of rubber from the oversupply of the raw material from Ceylon and the East Indies, should lighten the burdens of motor-car owners in the renewal of tires. If fuel also is to become cheaper, sensible relief will be experienced to another great item of expense. In one direction at least, the cost of living is not rising—Spectator.

SERIOUS AUTO ACCIDENT TODAY

Bertha Walling Run Down on Bond-st.

From Tuesday's Post.

A bad automobile accident occurred today at one o'clock when little Bertha Walling, whose home is at the corner of Sussex and Wellington-sts., was down by a car as she crossed Bond-st. on her way to the north ward school. With two little girl chums she was about to cross Wellington in front of Mr. John McCrae's residence, when they noticed Mr. R. M. Beall's automobile coming down the street. The two chums waited on the sidewalk for the car to pass, but Bertha, after halting a moment, thought she could get across in front of the auto, which was moving at a moderate rate of speed. The driver of the car had no warning of the little girl directly in front of him. He attempted to avoid her and ran up over the boulevard and sidewalk, which is over eighteen inches high at that point, but succeeded only so far that the wheels did not run over her. The car stopped however, caught the little girl in front of the left shoulder, and carried her a few feet until one was shaken off by the car bumping on the curb.

Medical aid was summoned at once but up to the time of going to press no definite report could be obtained, as the was still suffering severely from shock. The left shoulder is badly bruised and cut, and it was feared she may have sustained internal injuries. Witnesses of the accident state that the driver of the car, Mr. Stanley Beall, was not to blame in the unfortunate accident, as he was going at a slow speed, and did everything in his power to avert it.

Wm. Hunter, who escaped from Brockville police station in July, was recaptured at Cobourg, on F. Y. He consented to return, but jumped from the boat at Morrisburg and got away.

Would Shorten Home Studies

Calgary, Alberta, Sept. 27.—A movement which has for its object the shortening of the number of hours spent by pupils in the public schools of Calgary and for the abolition of home studies for the smaller children is now under way here.

It is the contention of many parents that the hours spent in the confinement of the classroom are quite sufficient without their having to pore over books for almost half the evening, and the movement for the lightening of the children's labors is, therefore, meeting with a great deal of popular support.

PRESENTATION TO MISS MAY ADAM

This afternoon, Miss May Adam, of the post office staff, who has resigned her position to take up residence in Belleville, was the recipient of a sterling silver wrist hand-watch (Waltham) and an address from the office staff.

Postmaster Palen read the following address, and also made the presentation—

"To Miss May Adam, Lindsay, Ont.

"Dear Miss Adam, — Friends come and friends go, but it is parting with friends we love most and love best that we experience pain, and it is with sincere regret that we heard of your intended departure from our midst and from Lindsay."

For six years past you have been with us in working for His Majesty the King, and in that time we have come to recognize you as a true friend as well as a courteous and efficient member of the staff.

Such being the case, we gather together for the purpose of presenting you with this token of our esteem. It is not a slight remembrance, but we hope and trust that when wearing the same it will recall nothing but pleasant memories of your associations with the members of the post office staff, in Lindsay.

Hoping your sojourn in your new home will be congenial in every respect, we remain, your friends.

A. P. PALEN, Postmaster, on behalf of the staff.

Miss Adam was completely taken by surprise, and thanked the members of the staff for the handsome remembrance as well as the kind sentiments contained in the address. She will leave for her home in Belleville this week.

Owing to the severe drought which is being experienced in the States of Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma, the immigration from the United States has come up eighty per cent. during the last four weeks, says J. Bruce Walker, Immigration Commissioner at Winnipeg.

mine swiftly what course she had best pursue. Realizing the hold she had once had upon this man, it had never occurred to her mind that her influence had altogether departed. Her beauty had never failed before to win such victory, and she had trusted now to revive in his old admiration precision into sudden flame. Yet already she comprehended the utter uselessness of such an expectation—there was no smoldering passion to be fanned; his indifference was not assumed. The discovery angered her, but keen experience had brought control; it resulted only a moment to readjust her faculties, to keep the bitterness out of her voice. When she again faced him it was to speak quietly, with convincing earnestness.

"Do you know where he is?"

She hesitated, then, so slightly, yet he, watching her closely, noted it.

"No, not at the close of the war he came home, commanding the regiment which should have been yours. Within three months he had conversed with family property into cash and departed. There was a rumor that he was engaged in the cattle business."

You actually expect me to believe all this—that you know nothing of his plans—wars not, indeed, a part of them?"

"I am indifferent as to what you believe," she replied coldly. "But you are ungenerously to express yourself so freely. Why should you say that?"

"Because I cannot believe more than you expose. Never mind how the information reached me; had it been less authentic, you might find me now more susceptible to your pressure, more obedience in my language. A carefully conceived plot drove me from the Confederate service. In which you were so deeply involved as Le Ferre. Its double object was to advance him in rank and get me out of the way. The plan worked perfectly; I could have met and fought either other chance, but the two combined broke me utterly. I had no spirit or resistance left. Yet even then—in spite of this—I remained true to retained faith to you. I returned home to find that you had forsaken your own to cling to a cause you had already gone. I was a month learning the facts, then I discovered you had married Le Ferre in Richmond; I procured the affidavit of a Confederate clergyman. Will you deny now?"

"No," changing her manner instantly—"what is the use? I married the man, but I was deceived, misled. There was no conspiracy in which I was concerned. "Oh," and she laughed, "at last I read the riddle. Not satisfied with leaving that young lady from savages, you would also preserve her youthful innocence from the contamination of my influence. Quite noble of you, surely. Are you aware of our relationship?"

"I have heard it referred to—gar rison rumor."

"Quite true, in spite of your source of information, which accounts, in a measure, for my presence here as well as my intimacy in the McDonald household. And you propose interfering, plan to drive me forth from this pleasant bird's nest. Really you amuse me, Mr. Sergeant Hamlin."

"But I have not proposed anything of that nature," the man said quietly, rising to his foot. "It is, of course, nothing to me whether that little Miss Donald has been very kind and secure a very nice girl. As I knew something of your plot, I thought perhaps you might realize how much better it would be to retire gracefully."

"You mean that as a threat? You intend to do my will here?"

"Not unless it becomes necessary; I am not proud of the story myself."

Their eyes met, and there was no shadow of softness in either face. The woman's lips curled sarcastically.

"Clearly, you take yourself quite seriously, do you not? One might think you still Major of the Fourth Texas, and heir to the old estate on the Brazos. You failed that way to me once before, only to discover that I could deal with which to scratch. Don't make that mistake again, Mr. Sergeant Hamlin, or there will be a revival of the old smouldering passion into sudden flame. Yet already she comprehended the utter uselessness of such an expectation—there was no smouldering passion to be fanned; his indifference was not assumed. the Captain assisted her through the window, while the falling curtain veiled them from view.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Another Message.

Hamlin sank back on the bench and leaned his head on his hand. Had anything been accomplished by this interview? One thing, at least—he had clearly demonstrated that the charm once exercised over his imagination by this beguiling woman had completely vanished. He saw her now as she was—heartless, selfish, using her spell of beauty for her own selfish ends. If there had been left a shred of sentiment in his memory of her, it was now completely destroyed. Her coolness, her adroit changing of position, proved him she was playing a game. What game? Nothing in the words had revealed its nature, yet the man instinctively felt that it must involve Molly McDonald. Laboriously of certain evil word by word, each sentence exchanged, striving to find some clew. He had pricked her in the Gaskins matter, had forced her to admit that; she knew, or at least suspected, the party driving the stage. She aimed at first having been married to Le Ferre, and yet later had been compelled to acknowledge that marriage. There then was a deliberate falsehood, which must have had some sinister purpose. What purpose? Did she imagine it would make any difference with him, or did she seek to shield Le Ferre from discovery? The latter supposition seemed the more probable, for the man must have been in the neighborhood lately, else where did she hear news of him from?

So engrossed was Hamlin with these thoughts that he hardly realized that some one had lifted the window curtain cautiously. The beam of light flashed across him, disappeared before he could lift his head to accustom his eyes. Then a voice spoke, and he leaned back to listen.

"Not there; guess back to the dance hall, while we were at the bar."

"Nobody out there?" this fellow growled his reply.

"Some soldier asleep with his head on the rail; drunk, I reckon. Wishes was she with this time?"

"Barrett?"

"Who? Oh, yes, the fellow who brought in that troop of the Seventh. Lord, the old girl is getting her hooks into him early. Well, as long as Gaskins is laid up, she may as well amuse herself somewhere else. Barrett is rather a good butter, isn't he? I know you are talking about the man who got away with?"

"Don't know," answered the gruff voice. "He's a West Pointer. Very likely to amuse herself once in a while; that's the woman of it. Heard from Gaskins tonight?"

"Oh, he's all right," the man laughed. "That little prick frightened him, I guess, so he's like a clam."

"So I heard. He'll pay to keep the story quiet, I'll right. As soon as he can stand, he'll come down here; we'll tap his bankle. Swore he was hurt by a cowardly assassin, didn't he?"

"And stuck to it like a mule. Must have it in for that yellow. Well, it helped our game."

"Yes, we're safe enough, unless Gaskins talks; and he's as in love with the McDonald girl he'll spiel out his rather than have any scandal now. Wish I could get a word with Vera tonight; she ought to see him tomorrow—compassion, womanly sympathy, and all that rot, you know, helps the game. Let's drift over toward the Palace, Dan, and maybe I can give her the sign."

Hamlin caught a glimpse of their backs as they passed out—one in infantry fatigue, the other, a heavier form, well encrusted with Sergeant's clothes. Inspired by a desire to see their features the Sergeant swung himself over the rail, and dropped lightly to the ground. Hamlin was there before him on the street, in front of the hotel, scanning the open door. The two passed within a few feet, the light streaming from the dance hall, the soldier lurched somewhat behind, an insignificant, rather pale face, but the larger man walked erectly, with measured shoulders, and wore a broad-brimmed hat pulled low over his eyes. The Sergeant had concealed the lower portion of his face. Hamlin followed as the two pushed open the door and stood for a moment congregated on the wooden steps, and peered in through the hazy light. Satisfied that he would recognize both faces when they met again, and realizing now nothing of the plot being operated, Hamlin edged in behind the Sergeant's back, as the guarding the entrance. The latter recognized him with a nod.

"Pretty busy, Hamlin."

"Have been, but there will be a lull now; when they come back from supper there'll be another rush likely. Would you mind taking my job a minute while I go outside?"

"Not in the least; take your time. Let me see what the dance is like. That's all right—say, Masters, before you go, do you know that big duffer with a black beard in the front row?"

The other gave a quick glance down the room.

"I've seen him before; dealt faro at the Poodle Dog a while; said to be a gambler. Never heard him say. Oh, yes, come to think about it, they called him 'Bel—Cowboy' soldier, I reckon. Ain't seen him before in a month. Got into some kind of a shooting scrape at Miss Kelley's and skipped out ahead of the marshal. Why?"

"Nothing particular—looks familiar, that's all. Who's the soldier behind him—the drunken fellow?"

"Connors. Some river-rat the recruiting officers picked up in New York; in the quartermaster's front of time; driver for Major McDonald when he happened to be sober enough."

"That is where I saw him. Was driving the ladies. Knew I had seen that mug before."

Left alone, except for the infantry man at the other side of the entrance, and with nothing to do beyond keeping back the little crowd of curious children, Hamlin found the time passing interested himself in the assembly, although keenly conscious of these two men who were plotting against him, into the brilliantly lighted room. That they were intimately involved with Mrs. Dupont in some mono-stakish scheme, closely verging on crime, was attested by the manner in which the guests mingled. He had overheard enough to know, in fact, yet the full nature of the scheme was to him present. Without doubt it involved Gaskins, and yet Gaskins was helpless, also; but Hamlin was not inclined to interfere personally for the protection of certain well-known gamblers. Let them look after themselves, and if they succeeded in ruining Gaskins, the law, and it cost something, why, that was less of his affair. Yet somehow the suspicion came to him that Gaskins had accidentally stumbled upon a more complicated game than he had imagined. Mrs. Dupont's intimacy with Molly, and the use she was making of some other girl, indicated to the Major to further her ends, made him eager to defeat the plotters for his purpose. At least there two, apparently informal of their guests true character, were present, and, if Gaskins was impossible, protected from inspection. Their presence therefore was a tacit endorsement were the woman's stock in trade at Dodge, and whatever the final outcome might be, Miss Donald and his daughter would inevitably share in the coming disgrace of discovery. Even if they were not also victimized, it would be hard to convince the respectable portion of the community of the innocence of such associates. Had Hamlin been a complete stranger, he might have known what to do—his plot only was involved, would have taken him in a frankly adventurous fashion to the rooms of chance, of associates of social rank, and have boldly demanded Molly for his approach either the Major or his daughter openly. He did not actually know enough to outline such an interview, and meanwhile, even though coupled with his former intimacy with the woman, was no sufficient excuse for his interference. The Major would resent the revelation with indifference, even ridicule, and Miss Molly might even resent his meddling in the affair. Besides he was not altogether convinced that the girl had not been actually present at, and in some manner connected with, the attack on Gaskins. The appearance of force, shrinking behind the corner of the barracks wall, remained clear in his mind. He might be mistaken, but perhaps it would be best to go slow.

It was a happy, bare hall, lined with the walls were concealed by flags, while other draperies were festooned along the rafters. The floor was occupied upon a raised platform at the rear, and a hundred couples occupied the floor. The men present were largely officers attired in dress-uniforms, although there was a considerable sprinkling of civilians, a few conspicuous in frock coats and high silk and style. Evidently invitations had been widely spread, and, considering time and place, Molly McDonald was in Among the women present the Sergeant saw very few he recognized, yet it was comparatively easy to classify the majority—officers' wives; the wives of Richfield, or the more prominent merchants of the town; women from this surrounding ranches, who had deserted their homes until the Indian scare ceased; a scattered few from petty towns and villages of the eastward, and here and there, younger faces, representing ranchmen's daughters, with a schoolgirl air about them. Altogether they made rather a brave show, occasionally attractive, yet not worthy of admiring glances, never including school partners, and entering with unalloyed enthusiasm into the evening's pleasure. The big room presented a scene of brilliant color, yet ceaselessly moving figures; the air was stained with laughter and trembling to the dashing strains of the band. Primitive as it was in many respects, yet, considering the place in small frontier posts, the scene was strangely attractive, his imagination responding to the glitter and the merry chime of voices, the tripping of feet. Yet he was flushed with anger, his care caught whispered words, his eyes followed the flying figures. For the moment he was forgetful of self in this new environment of thoughtless pleasure.

From among that merry throng of strangers his eyes soon distinguished the two whose presence had drawn interest—Mrs. Dupont, dancing now with McDonald, the rather corpulent figure of the Major contrasting strikingly under the inspiration of the music. The lady talked with animation, as they circled among the dancers on the floor, her red lips close to her partner's ear, her black, impulsive and waterful, noted that her gaze wandered elsewhere, scanning the faces. Molly McDonald was evidently enjoying, but as the two circled swiftly by, her face, resting lightly on the Major's shoulder was partly turned, by in a peculiar, suggestive movement, as if her thoughts were for the time lost in the crowd, feeling confident that the motion of those whitegloved fingers was sufficient to give all warning. To whom was it conveyed? Hamlin was unable to detect any change in the doorway. Both the black-whiskered man and Connors had disappeared, and the Sergeant knew, instantly understood and obeyed.

The Sergeant had scarcely grasped the meaning of this movement, yet reverted by the appearance of Miss McDonald's partner, a tall, slender civilian, an immaculately dressed individual with ruddy, boyish face. His manner was that of a man partner was plainly evident, and the girl, simply dressed in white, but exceedingly pretty, her dark eyes bright with enjoyment, set Hamlin's cool nerves throbbing with a sudden excitement. Her face was turned toward the partner, and, as their eyes met, she bowed, the full

Children's Day was observed in the Presbyterian church at Rosedale, on Sunday evening, when a large congregation of both adults and children attended the service. The teachers and officers of the church and Sabbath School were pleased and encouraged by the interest taken, and by the large attendance. The decorations of the church were composed of autumn foliage, vines and flowers, and were much admired. The musical part of the programme was in charge of the children. The service was in charge of the superintendent, Mose D. Smith, while Rev. H. Walker addressed the children on the subject, "How We are God's Helpers," using as an illustration the three bells. Miss Lela Isaac read the scripture lesson, God's call to the boy Samuel, 1 Samuel 1-26. Miss A. McGregor recited "The Lady with a Lamp," by Longfellow. "The Great Superintendent" a sketch from the life of James Robertson, the founder of Western missions, was given by Mr. Will Isaacs. Miss Della Howe read a paper on "How a Boy helped Jesus."

What might have been a double drowning occurred at Rosedale on Friday, when Mr. and Mrs. Morrow who were guests of Mr. Goodman, narrowly escaped with their lives. The couple were in a skiff, and were rowing to the dam to fish. Going too near, they were sucked in by the heavy current over the stop logs. The boat was held by the undercurrent and was soon filled with water and upset. After a time Mr. Morrow managed to push Mrs. Morrow far enough away from the undercurrent so that she was able to swim ashore. Mr. Morrow then managed with difficulty to reach the shore also. Had either party been unable to swim, or had one or both lost their presence of mind, there would undoubtedly have been a tragic ending to the affair. As it was, Mr and Mrs. Morrow were able to return to Toronto on Saturday.

OBITUARY

MRS. CATHERINE EAGLESON

The many friends of Mrs. Catherine Eagleson, learned with regret of her decease at the age of 77 years after a lingering illness.

The funeral service was held at the home of Mr. John Moffatt, Conquindale, Toronto, where for the past year she resided.

Deceased, who was the widow of the late David Eagleson, was for many years a resident of Lindsay, and has many warm friends in this place.

She was born in County Fermanagh Ireland, and lived for many years at Valentia prior to coming here.

She is survived by a brother and sister, Mr. Richard Farrell, of Vancouver, and Mrs. John Moffatt, Toronto. Mrs. M. Corley of town is a niece.

The interment took place at Riverside Cemetery on Thursday, Sept 25th.

ERNEST JOHN LESLIE.

On Monday, Sept. 15th, the grim reaper, Death, visited Fleetwood and claimed as his victim, Ernest John Leslie, as he stood on the threshold of manhood at the youthful age of 19 years, 4 months and 4 days. Deceased had been in poor health for about four weeks, but the end came very unexpectedly, and was a terrible shock, not only to the members of his home, but also to his many friends in the community and elsewhere. Death was due to acute diabetes.

The funeral services held at 10 a. m. Friday, Sept. 19th, were conducted by the Pastor, Rev. A. C. Hiscock, of Fleetwood, who spoke for a few moments in an earnest and impressive manner to the large crowd present, from the text "Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me to render to every man according as his work is." Rev. 22-12.

The large crowd present testified by their presence their sincere regard for the deceased and their sympathy for the bereaved family.

Ernest was an ambitious young man, and in company with his brother, Cyril, now of Scott, Sask., learned telegraph operating at Lindsay. On completing his training, being under age for securing a suitable position, he worked in the freight department at Lindsay where his services were at all times cheerfully and faithfully rendered.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his father, John Leslie, and his stepmother, (his mother having predeceased him about 13 years), three full brothers, James Cyril of Scott, Sask., Wilfrid and Andrew at home, and a half brother, Albert Wesley, and two half-sisters, Annie Lucilla and Addie Irene, all at home. These with a large number of near relatives were present at the funeral.

The floral tributes were exceedingly beautiful, consisting of a wreath in the form of a Cross from the Fleetwood Methodist Sunday School, of which Ernest was a faithful member, a "Broken Circle" from Mrs. John Peir of Omemee, and Mrs. Lalah Jones of Franklin, and a large sumber of other wreaths, sprays and bouquets from friends far and near.

After the services at the house a large procession of carriages and hearse accompanied the remains to St. Mary's Cemetery where all that was mortal was laid to rest to await the trumpet call on the Resurrection Morning.

WEDDING BELLS

IRWIN—PAUL.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Paul was the scene of an exceptionally pretty wedding on Wednesday when the marriage was solemnized of their eldest daughter, Florence Irene, to Mr. George Wilbert Irwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Irwin, of Dunsford.

The ceremony which took place on the lawn was conducted by Rev. W. J. Smith, of Dunsford.

The bride who was given away by her father, was gowned in white charmeuse, prettily trimmed with lace, and wore a silk embroidered veil arranged as Juliet cap and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lily-of-the-valley. She wore the groom's gift, a pendant necklace. Miss Bessie Waller, of Lindsay, cousin of the groom, played the wedding music and received the groom's favor, a gold bar pin. Little Miss Irene Paul, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl and wore a dainty satin frock. She carried a sheaf of daisies. Master Ross Black, (nephew of the groom), acted as page.

Immediately after the ceremony dejeuner was served, the bride's table being arranged with white asters. After the bride's health had been proposed by Mr. Smith, to which the groom ably responded, she changed her dress to a tailored suit of navy blue and hat of white velour, velvet with ostrich mount, and left later with her husband for a trip to Buffalo. The groom's favor to the flower girl was an amethyst brooch, and to the page a gold stick pin.

Dependable Drugs and Sundries

Our constant effort is to make this a store where the idea of quality is at all times paramount.

In some lines of business there may be good reasons for having a variety of prices, but not in the drug line. When drugs are needed only the best will do. Anything less than the best is dangerous.

We carry this principle of quality throughout our entire stock, and, in some line, like brushes, we have goods in a variety of prices but each is the best grade to be had at the price, and in addition to the usual assortment, we carry a few fine grades which cannot be found in the ordinary store.

Repairs to Bobcaygeon Lock

The Post was informed this morning by reliable authority that the Trent Valley Canal Department intend to do something this fall to remedy conditions at the Bobcaygeon lock, which has caused so much trouble to the boating public and helped make the water so low in Sturgeon Lake this year.

Chief Field Engineer A. W. Spence who has been engaged with some special work near Kirkfield and also in connection with the new dam at Peterboro Falls, it is understood, will go down to Bobcaygeon shortly to make a special report and recommend on the situation.

New lock gates will not suffice as the lock walls and parts of the walls of the canal are leaking badly and will need either a complete overhauling or have to be built new.

Work operations on Sturgeon Lake and the hundreds of launch owners at Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon will hope that department can rush whatever work is to be done this fall so that navigation will not be interrupted next season.

Walter V. Smith, deputy sheriff, died suddenly at Welland.

MRS. WAKELIN

Coboconk, Sept. 29—Mrs. Wakelin, whose death occurred on Wednesday, 24th, 1913, was born in Devonshire, England in 1833, and came to this country when quite young. She was married to Thomas Wakelin, who survives her, who predeceased her about seven years.

When first married they lived for a while in Bowmanville. About fifty-five years ago they went north, settling in what was then the wilderness of Laxton, about five miles north of Coboconk, where by hard work they carved out for themselves a home, and where they continued to reside until death. They raised a large family, all of whom are highly respected. Those alive are, James in Somerville, near Norland; Mrs. R. J. Courtemanche, Norland; George Batchford, Joseph, Coboconk; Mrs. Bammerfield, Winnipeg; William on the homestead; Mrs. Nelson, Owen Sound; Mrs. Kerr, Brookdale. Two daughters predeceased their mother. Mrs. Wakelin was a devout Christian, a consistent member of the Methodist church from childhood. The home was ever a most hospitable one, a resting place for the preacher for more than half a century.

For more than twenty years Mrs. Wakelin has been a great sufferer. The suffering was ever borne with remarkable patience, never once was a word of complaint uttered by her, cheerful, trustful and happy under sore affliction. Her Christian experience was so bright, her knowledge of the bible so extensive, and her conception of spiritual truth so influential, that it was always a rare treat to converse with her.

Mrs. Wakelin was one of the most strictly souls that I ever met. She has gone to be with Christ, which is far better.

R. J. IRELAND,
Methodist Minister.

DONALD McPADYEN.

Ishay, Ont., Sept. 30.—One of Islay's most respected citizens, Mr. Donald McPadyen, passed away on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 25, at his own residence after a short but very severe illness of three weeks. Mr. McPadyen was born in Inverness, Inverness, Scotland, on Aug. 2, 1841. About fifty years ago he came to Canada and on Feb. 11, 1869 he took as his life partner, Miss Sara McFadyen, of Elmo. He first settled in Eldon township, but shortly after purchased a farm in the township of Fenelon, concession 3 and lot 7. Twenty-eight years of the best of his life he spent as a sailor on the great lakes where he was always distinguished among his fellows for his quietness and manly character. The last eighteen years he resided on the farm where he made many warm friends. He himself was a true friend and an excellent neighbor.

He leaves to mourn his loss his beloved wife three sons and five daughters, also two brothers and two sisters. The sons are John D., of Stanstead, Que., Dougal of Bowmanstead, North Bay, Maple at home on the farm. The daughters are Mrs. Donald McJelly, of Grassdill, Mrs. Duncan McFadyen, of Lorneville, Mrs. Angus McFadyen, of Spring Water, Sask., Mrs. John Mark and Mrs. Percy Mark, of Cameron. The brothers are Dougal and John, of Hartley. The sisters are Mrs. H. Carmichael and Mrs. Livingstone, of Cannington. All the members of the family arrived home in time to be with the father during the last week of his illness.

The funeral, which was largely attended by the many friends of the deceased took place on Saturday at 1.30 p. m., the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Steel, of Glenarm. The body was interred in the Eldon Church Cemetery. The sincere sympathy of the community is extended to the wife and family in their sad bereavement.

Bank Swindler In the Toils

London, Ont., Sept. 29.—David Elliot, formerly of 22 Campbell street this city, was arrested today at Petrolea on a charge of passing worthless cheques. By his arrest it is expected that the police have secured the man wanted for a long time for passing worthless cheques in London and other Western Ontario banks. In the numerous cases of fraud that have been reported to the police the amounts were always stated a cheque that landed Elliot in the clothy being for only $15. After the latter had given him the money he became suspicious and had him followed. Elliot went to another bank with another cheque, which, however the teller there refused to honor. Shortly after, Elliot was taken into custody. His description answers that of the man who awakened seven, or twelve here recently, and at Atlas Creek.

WAKELY'S

FOR GENUINE BARGAINS

New Cause of Appendicitis

Paris, Sept. 29—That appendicitis is due to water drinking is the remarkable theory put forward by a leading scientific review. The statistics collected tend to show that only 1 in 200 wine drinkers is attacked by the malady, while ten per cent. of wine drinkers are said to be victims. It is also pointed out that appendicitis has become nearly more frequent, especially among the well-to-do classes, since water drinking has become fashionable, that is during the last twenty-five years, and the remarkable case is cited of a family of sixteen of whom six, who are water drinkers, had to be operated upon, while the others were immune.

The theory offered by several prominent medical men to account for these facts is not that water contains a microbe which may cause the complaint, for many sufferers drink mineral or boiled water, but that wine is an antiseptic, and keeps down the bacilli, which, when they become too numerous, may cause appendicitis.

From that date the public is drawing the conclusion that total abstinence is an exaggerated virtue, even from a scientific point of view.

What Happens When Drowning

When a person is unable to swim, he probably flings up his arms and shouts for help. In doing so he parts with a large quantity of air from his lungs. As his mouth is just about on a level with the surface of the water at the next inspiration he swallows a large quantity of water. The inhaled water wets up everything and air and water are expelled. More water is then inhaled, until the lungs become surcharged and the body weight increased. The drowning man in his struggles for air makes convulsive grasps at anything within reach, and herein lies the great danger of attempting a rescue, for the drowning man may grasp the rescuer so tightly that both may sink and drown. In attempting to rescue a drowning man keep him at arm's length. Grasp him by the hair if possible, and pull him ashore, or to a place of safety, and begin artificial respiration at once. Let it be remembered in this connection that the body is only very slightly heavier than the water, and will almost float of its own accord, especially if in salt water. If self-possession is maintained, and the air kept in the lungs, and now and again, when opportunity offers, a fresh supply of air inhaled, one can keep oneself afloat for a long period. This is more quickly attained if some of the outer garments can be thrown off and a gentle, treading motion kept up.

Will Was Made in London

While the late James Ross, of Montreal, in his will leaves a large sum of money to the Montreal Art Association, a clause stipulates that his valuable collection of pictures must remain intact. It is understood that the estate left amounted to from twelve to fifteen millions of dollars.

As the will was made in London, England, June 1, 1911, and the codicil drawn up in the States, it will be necessary before it is produced to obtain affidavits as to the signatures of the witnesses, costing a certain amount of delay. The following are the executors and trustees: Mrs. James Ross, J. K. Ross, H. V. Meredith, D. M. C. Hogg, and the Royal Trust Co. Mr. Ross, it is stated, owned 22,000 shares of Canadian Pacific Railway, making him the largest individual holder of that stock in the world.

Money a man has saved represents the good times he didn't have.

DIED

D. W. O'CONNELL.—In Lindsay on Monday, Sept. 29, 1913, Dennis Walker, aged 13 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon O'Connell.

The funeral will leave the family residence, Lot 5, Con. 11, Ennis, on Wednesday, Oct. 1st, at two o'clock and proceed to St. Luke's Cemetery, Bowmanville, for interment.

WELLINGTON-ST CONCRETE ROAD

Specifications Used in Thoroughfare

The concrete pavement on Wellington-st. will be completed today from Hall's garage to the bascule bridge. The paving will be two inches above the floor of the bridge, as the bridge will be replaced next year with two inch plank on top of the present oak flooring, which is rapidly giving away. East of the bridge the concrete is laid in two courses, the lower one being of a weaker mixture than the top dressing, which is made particularly strong. West of the bridge the concrete will be laid in one course of uniform strength, such as the Wayne County, Michigan, engineers advise. The pavement will have ridges cut in it every five inches to give horses a good footing in pulling heavy loads up the hill.

Following are the specifications used:

Taking No Chances

A long-suffering husband was being hit by his wife. It chanced that in passing through the gate the coffin had been thrust hard against one of the posts. Almost immediately, to the consternation of the mourners, a muffled scream was heard. The lid was hastily unscrewed, and lo! the woman was not dead at all. She was taken home, and lived for three years. Then she died again.

At the funeral, as the coffin was being lowered from the hearse, the husband addressed the bearers very solemnly:

"Boys, mind that post."

School Purchased

It was announced in St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday that the brick school house in East City had been purchased. It will be used as a separate school.

CHILDREN ON OUR STREETS

The following amendments to the Children's Protective Act should be carefully perused by parents who have been allowing their children to run riot on our streets at unseemly hours. Vigorous efforts are to be made by municipal bylaw to put a stop to this evil, but the measure was a dead letter—there being no effort made to enforce it.

The Children's Protective Act is so framed that it gives every opportunity to deal effectively with a practice that is altogether too common in Lindsay. Let those concerned take warning—

37. (1) No child shall loiter in any public place after 9 o'clock in the evening, or be there unless accompanied by his parent or guardian, or an adult appointed by the parent or guardian to accompany such child.

(2) A child found in a public place after the hour named in subsection 1 unless so accompanied may be warned by a constable or any constable or probation officer or officer of a Children's Aid Society, and if after such warning the child is found loitering in a public place, such child may be taken by the constable or officer to its home, or to the Children's Shelter.

(3) A parent who permits his child to violate this section shall for the first offence incur a penalty of 25 cents and costs, and for a second offence $2, and for a third, or any subsequent offence, $5.

Davidson of Bobcaygeon, Both wheels came together with great force and the riders sustained very serious injuries. Young Davidson was picked up placed in an automobile and taken to Dr. Collison's residence where it was found that he was suffering from concussion of the brain, bodies receiving other injuries.

Dr. Blanchard was summoned to attend to the injured Italian, who sustained a severe shaking up. His wheel also badly broken, a number of teeth knocked and one of his optics will be closed for a couple of days.

The bicycles fared badly as a result of the mishap.

The Post was informed this afternoon that no serious results are anticipated in the case of young David's mishap.

COL. HUGHES IS HONORED

Speaks For Empire at Army Banquet

London, Sept. 29—Most of the Canadian officers who attended the manoeuvres return home at the end of this week. The party today goes to Woolwich, tomorrow to the Hythe School of Musketry and Wednesday will be the guests of the Admiralty at Portsmouth.

Colonel Hughes is yet undecided as to the date of his return, being busy with War Office conferences. A notable compliment was extended to the Dominion services at the army and council dinner to the foreign and overseas services.

Sir John French requested Colonel Hughes to welcome the foreign representatives on behalf of the British Government, this being the first time such a pleasurable duty has been entrusted to a Dominion representative. It is learned that several of the Canadian officers have asked Col. Hughes to ask Prince Alexander of Teck to command a Canadian camp at an early date.

Prince Alexander was in close touch with the Canadian visitors during the manoeuvres. His charm of manner greatly impressed them. Colonel and Mrs. and Miss Hughes were guests of Sir Frederick and Lady William Taylor at Ascot during the week end.

Drowned in The Trent Canal

Trenton, Sept. 29—While performing his regular duties on the Camp on & Maguire Trent Canal contract, an employee named John Gonyou was drowned in the Trent River here. The unfortunate man was struck by a truck and knocked into the water, and though every effort was made to save him they were unavailing. The inquest was held this evening, which was adjourned to a later date after the jurors had viewed the remains at Cunningham's undertaking rooms. Mr. Gonyou was a well known citizen, He leaves a wife and several children.

Bicycle Accident Saturday Night

Saturday evening a young man met with a rather severe accident on Kent-st. He was riding a bicycle on the paved roadway, and when in front of Revy's pool room, the wheel struck a boulder on the road. The young man was thrown from the wheel with great force. His clothes were badly torn and he sustained severe injuries to one of his wrists. The bicycle was also badly damaged.

It is never too late to blame it on the other fellow when you make a mistake.

WENT OVER DAM AT ROSEDALE

Rosedale nearly had a fatality last Thursday, when Mr. and Mrs. Gordon, of Rochester, enjoying an outing there, were shot over the new cement dam. They had been fishing from the top of the dam, and left their row boat at the foot of the dam, water just above the log slide. On returning to the boat they showed off from the top before picking up the oars to put them in the oarlocks. The current was much swifter than they had calculated, and before they realized they were powerless to stop the craft, which plunged down the dam shoot with a big splash. The couple were thrown out into the boiling water below the dam, where it is over nine feet deep. Both were heavily clothed, as it was a chilly day, and their struggles were renewed as they came to the surface for the second time, but Mr. Gordon is a good swimmer and swam around to get his wife to the bank. Both were somewhat used up afterward, but suffered no serious ill effects.

Celebration of Jewish New Year

This week the local Jews will celebrate their Jew Year, which begins with the Jewish Hosannah, on October 1st. The celebration ends on October 10 with the feast of the Conclusion.

Jewish traditions trace this holy day as marking the world's creation 5674 years ago, consequently this New Year's Day will begin the year 5674.

Rosh Hashanah is also known as the Day of Judgment in preparation for the Day of Atonement which falls on Saturday, October 11th. This is the most important day in the Jewish calendar, and is observed by confession of sins and fasting.

Retribution is something we expect will eventually overtake other people.

NEGRO YOUTHS KILLED SEVEN

Reign of Murder in Mississippi Town

(Special to The Post.)

HARRISTON, Miss., Sept. 29.—Two drug-crazed mulatto boys, brothers, began a reign of murder here yesterday morning that ended only after three white men, three negro men and a negro woman had been killed. Twenty persons were wounded and the two boys lynched. A serious clash between the races was prevented by the arrival on a special train of a company of National Guardsmen from Natchez.

The trouble started about two o'clock Sunday morning and continued intermittently until 10 o'clock when Walter Jones, the elder of the two boys who started the fray, was lynched just as the soldiers arrived. His brother, Will Jones, had been shot and killed by citizens earlier in the day. Citizens of the town who had barricaded themselves in their homes then began to emerge, and by noon the town was quiet. No more trouble is feared.

The dead are: Sheriff C. B. Hammett of Jefferson County, white; former Constable Frank Kennedy, white; Claude Freeman, white, of Fayette; Mrs. Jim Ann Aiken, Tom Green, Jesse Thompson and Thead Grayson, negroes, killed during promiscuous shooting.

The shooting was started by Walter Jones, aged 20, in the negro quarter, when the negro woman and Thead Grayson were shot and killed. Walter then went to the home of his mother and grandmother, his grandfather. Together they proceeded through the main street of the little town, firing at everyone in sight. Citizens, aroused from their slumber by the shots, peered out of the windows and then hastened to secure bellicose rival clubs of more serious proportions than broken out.

The boys went to the home of former Constable Frank Kennedy, and when he responded to their calls to come out, he was shot through the head by Walter Jones. Kennedy's son William saw his father fall and reached for a gun, but before he could fire he received a bullet in both of his legs.

The Yazoo and Mississippi Valley train came in shortly before noon, the two negroes walked in that direction. A train had arrived from Natchez just a few moments before the conductor saw a negro walk to a bundle at the station talking to Freeman W. C. Dow. Without warning the negro drew a pistol and both fell. Then the negroes directed their fire at Uncle Green, who was waiting for a train to take him to his home at Fayette. He was instantly killed. The negroes then fired into the train, terrorizing the passengers.

With the bloodlust at its highest pitch, the negroes made their way to a cottage on the town outskirts. Twenty citizens by this time had telephoned for Sheriff Hammett at Fayette, and Sheriff Hammett, vastly aroused, started for the seed house, where Walter Jones was to be in the grass nearby and as Hammett approached, he was shot down, killing him instantly.

By this time the countryside had been aroused and the farmers came pouring in from every direction. A general fusillade of shots was directed at the seed house. A call was made to Governor Brewer for troops.

Finding that the negroes had procured, Will Jones started to run toward a cool shade nearby, but he came only a few steps when a bullet ended his life. A rope was placed around his body, it was then wound to a telegraph pole near the station and became a large target for every shot and shooting at the needlework.

Soon Sorry Will Jones was killed. Walter Jones picked Tom Weeks, a negro, off the roof of a house with his gun. Weeks fell to the ground dead.

Not long after Weeks was killed, the troops of train from Natchez, the National Guardsmen, arrived. While the soldiers were disembarking, the crowd found the seed house.

Not a shot greeted them, and as the leaders went into the house with drawn weapons, they found Walter Jones completely riddled with bullets and injured. As the negro was drawn up the rope broke and the negro was left to the ground. Not a word of sympathy was spoken, and when a rope was drawn about his neck and his body pulled up.

MONSTER BONSPIEL IN JANUARY

The Lindsay Curling Club held a special meeting last night to consider the advisability of holding a big bonspiel at some date during the coming winter. There was a large attendance of members, all of whom were enthusiastically in favor of holding the event, if sufficient support could be obtained among the visiting curlers. A committee was appointed to look into the matter thoroughly, and after sounding the business men of the town, to make a special report on the advisability of the scheme to the club at a later meeting.

The Club aims to make the bonspiel a big one, and a credit to the town. Curling clubs will be invited to attend and take part from all over Ontario and possibly from the West and Eastern provinces.

That Spanish Prisoner Again

Ottawa, Sept. 29—The post office department has issued the following warning: Letters from the Spanish prisoner are actively circulating in Canada. These letters are mailed at Madrid, Spain. This fraud is many-sided, as in the latest case it is a Russian banker who is in prison. At another time it is either a French or Spanish nobleman. The essential part of the fraud is the same, viz., that the prisoner has on his hands some money belonging to a friend, and generally an interesting daughter, and on certain conditions he is willing to share his treasure with and entrust his daughter to the person in whom he is confiding. Of course, as a preliminary and evidence of good faith, a certain sum of money must be put up by the correspondent, and gentlemen in France Edward Island was induced to part with $700 in this way. The case is a pure fraud, and the public are warned against it."

Cheaper Spirit Than Gasoline

Regina, Sept. 30—W. O. Dixon, who has been in Regina and vicinity making tests of a new substitute for gasoline, stated that the new power produces has shown excellent results, and that it would do much to relieve the financial worries of large users of gasoline throughout the west.

He said it would sell for two cents a gallon less than gasoline, and that tests had demonstrated that it could produce from 20 to 25 per cent. more power.

"In the last year," he said, "The use of internal combustion engines increased nearly 100 per cent, while the production of gasoline to run these engines has not increased more than five per cent. You can easily see that this state of affairs has forced the price of gasoline away up, and it cannot very hard on the farmer who has to pay from $1,000 to $1,200 for gasoline in a season.

He said that a test conducted on the farm of Mr. Martin, near Wolseley, a tractor was used, which had been hauling four plows at breaking, and had been using two gallons of gasoline to the mile furrow. It was charged with the new spirits, and an extra plow added, and only 11 gallons were used to the mile.

AUTO VICTIM WAS IDENTIFIED

In Thursday's issue of the Post a fatal auto accident was reported, in which the victim's name was given as Redhead. He has since been identified as E. V. Windover.

Windover, with Roland Darney, of Lakefield, left the latter village about 3 o'clock Thursday morning, in Darney's Ford car, bound for Buckhorn. It is stated that Windover wanted to try his hand at steering the car and was allowed by Darney to take the wheel. They were going at a fast clip when they reached a short turn in the road and evidently tried to take the curve without slackening speed. At all events the car turned completely over with its occupants underneath. Windover was pinned fast, the car crushing to his chest, and death must have been instantaneous.

A farmer named Shalgrove was near enough to hear the noise of the accident, and arrived on the scene a very short time after it, for the wheels of the car were still whirling. He found Windover dead and Darney badly shaken up, although not seriously injured. Two ladies who were driving past Bridgenorth to Lakefield, and Doctors Fraser and Blakeman were quickly on the spot, but could do nothing for Windover.

The identity of the victim of the accident was a mystery during the morning. The Lakefield people, who saw the body, did not know him, and it was reported that he was a man named McDonald, hailing from Peterboro. It is said that Windover accompanied Darey from Peterboro Wednesday evening, and remained in the village over night, starting on Thursday morning for Buckhorn.

BOUQUET FOR LINDSAY CENTRAL

Millbrook Reporter: If energetic and grateful preparation are worthy of reward, President Carew and the directors of Lindsay exhibition only got what they deserved, and the delightful weather during the whole exhibition was pay for the big show we put on. Lindsay fair is certainly the best between Toronto and Ottawa, and the building and general accommodation are increasing every year. They had a midway, too, that could try your pocket as you preferred. The sport events were good and the exhibition of farm horses, cattle, etc., large. Another fat year has been added to Lindsay fair's record, and what is better a still higher reputation for putting up a first class agricultural exhibition. We congratulate President Carew, Vice-president Joseph Hickson, our own Warden, on their success.

GAVE PHONEY CHEQUE FOR COURT FINE

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 22—An individual, whose identity Chief of Police Wills declines to make public, for the present at least, worked off a bad cheque on that astute official a few days ago, when he was fined $8.75 for an infraction of the liquor law, and gave the cheque in payment.

The Bank, at which the cheque was presented for payment today, declined to honor it, as the account stood marked "No funds."

The world likes to be amused; therefore all the world loves a lover.

RECEPTION TO PAPAL DELEGATE

A most hearty reception was tendered his excellency Monsignor P. F. Stagni, D.D., Apostolic Delegate to Canada, who arrived in Peterboro last night, and consecrated the Right Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., Bishop of Peterboro, yesterday morning.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey, of Lindsay, Rev. Father P. J. Kelly, of Bobcaygeon, and Rev. Father Cyril, Brethorton comprised the reception committee who were delegated to meet his excellency at Bridgewood and accompany him to the city.

Long before the train arrived, many persons assembled at the C. P. R. station platform, and when his excellency arrived on a special train from the east, it is estimated that some 4,500 people were there to welcome him. When he alighted a mighty cheer of welcome went up. The Roman Catholic men and the school boys of the city numbering between three and four thousand, formed a procession and lead by the 57th Regimental Band playing "Rece Sacrdos Magnus," marched up George street to Brock, west on Brock to Aylmer, south on Aylmer to Hunter, and up Hunter to Lakefield, and then then lined the sides of the street four deep, while the carriage carrying the Papal Delegate and Bishop and other carriages containing similar notable clergy, passed through. At the top of Hunter street, a large triumphal arch erected by George Ellis, bore the inscription, "We Welcome the Pontiff's Delegate." Behind it on the hillside lay the Bishop's palace, and in the children of the three separate schools, all waving Papal flags, were stationed, and as the Delegate passed them they sang hymns of welcome at the conclusion of which he gave them his blessing. He then entered the Cathedral. It is estimated that there were six thousand people assembled at the church, which was surrounded by many rows of lights.

After entering the Cathedral, Monsignor Stagni was welcomed by an address by Rt Rev. Bishop O'Brien, and also by Mr. L. M. Hayes, K. C., on behalf of the laity. In reply his excellency thanked both clergy and laity for as he termed it "their soul stirring welcome," and he also thanked the non-Catholics for the very sympathetic and respectful concern which they showed in after as they participated. The ceremony was brought to a close by Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Tonight a public reception will be tendered his excellency on the church lawn, which will afford the people of Peterboro an opportunity to meet the Pope's representative in Canada.

Cannington is Without Hotels

Cannington is without any hotel accommodation. The Queen's Hotel closed its doors to the travelling public night ago, and now the Bennett House follows. The Benvertos Adjourned a week ago to the situation, says—

Travellers at the Bennett House, operated by Mr. Robert Jewett, advised that after Saturday, the 20th, the house would no longer be a hotel. Mr. Jewett, Mr. Bennett decided to close its doors to the public on that date, which he accordingly did.

What the real purpose of this strange move may be it is difficult to conjecture. It would seem, however, that it is in retaliation for what he claims to have been a long drawn out prosecution, with dirt, distrust and espionage, of which he has been the victim, and to which he objects in this manner.

Be the cause what it may, Cannington is now up against the same problem that has confronted the inhabitants of Sunderland, Woodville and Beaverton, and let us hope the people will grapple with the situation in the same energetic manner as characterized our neighbors. In the meantime the local committee of temperance workers have arranged for the necessary comforts of travellers, sample rooms for commercial men have been placed in the Wilson block.

Purchased New Car

Mr. Jack Doherty has purchased a fine new McLaughlin-Buick automobile. It is the latest model made and is equipped with electric self-starter, electric lights, demountable rims, etc. It is painted a grayish fawn color and is a beauty.

GOLDEN WEDDING AT BOBCAYGEON

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Trotter, celebrated their golden wedding on the 21st. The family at one time consisting of eleven, is now seven, three sons and four daughters, but they are so scattered, that the eldest daughter, Mrs. Collifer was the only one who could be present to personally congratulate her parents. They were married in 1863, at Dunfordford, by Rev. Mr. Patterson, the Presbyterian minister. At that time they went into one vehicle outside of ox sleigh and shanpers, and as that was not available the young couple rode from Dunford, and were brought back by boat from the Scotch Line. They at once took up residence in Bobcaygeon, and have remained here since, being now the oldest continuous residents in the village. They are much respected and esteemed, and their host of old friends wish them a continuance of the autumn days, accompanied by all the enjoyments that life can give. —Independent.

KILLED IN AUTO NEAR PETERBORO

An automobile accident occurred this morning at Lakefield in which a man named Mr. McDonald was killed and the driver, Roland Darcey, injured.

The news of the tragedy did not reach Peterboro the nearest city, until well on in the day and are as yet rather meagre.

The special despatch gives the following:

This morning a startling discovery was made by two ladies who were driving about two miles from Lakefield when they came suddenly upon an automobile turned over in the ditch.

The ladies, greatly alarmed, immediately investigated and found one man crushed beneath the machine and another lying unconscious nearby. Help was at once called and the car righted so that McDonald pinned beneath, could be revived if possible. But it was seen that he was beyond medical aid. The unconscious man, Darcey, had by this time revived slightly and both were rushed to Lakefield.

It seems that the two men were returning from Lakefield to Peterboro in a Ford and when only two miles from their starting point, turned a corner too rapidly and were upset.

Darcey, which lives in Peterboro, is not yet able to give details concerning McDonald but it is learned that he was going to Buckhorn where he has a sister.

LINDSAY MAN LOCATED HORSES

Peterboro Examiner: Mr. J. A. Hughes, of Lindsay, motored to Peterboro this morning for the purpose of recovering a team of horses that have been awaiting a claimant for two days. He came to Peterboro with a livery business in Lindsay, hired the horses and waggon to a man whose destination was said to be Campbellford. The man in question arrived in Peterboro on Tuesday and through some unaccountable means allowed the team to run away. They started from Concession street, and in a few minutes were breaking all speed limits in an apparent endeavor to traverse George-st. south. The animals swung on to Perry-st., and dashed back to Park street, where they entered the suburbs, and were lost to view. The waggon was secured by bleeding wooden sections of which have not yet been recovered. The horses were captured and taken in charge by Mr. James Gerven, who stabled them in his barn, at 198 Sherbrooke street. The police department, which was notified, failed to locate the owner until Mr. Hughes chanced to telephone to the Peterboro Department in the hope of locating his horses. He was informed of the incident and proceeded to Peterboro this morning.

E. S. HOPKINS GOING WEST

Hopkins, B.S.A., leaves shortly for Vernon, British Columbia, where he has been appointed a teacher in one of the three agricultural schools being established in that province by the Provincial Government. Mr. Hopkins has served as District Representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture for the last two years. In this time he has endeavored to fully acquaint himself with the agricultural conditions of this district, and has strove hard on the platform, through the press and by way of actual demonstrations to promote the cause with which he is identified. He has been instrumental in introducing several novelties in rural schools of the country and the rural school fairs this year. In which he was given valuable assistance are evidences of the benefit of such teaching to the pupils, who should will be much benefited when all these paths whereon he has been connected in his work here. In the social functions of the village, Mr. Hopkins will also be missed, congratulate him on his advancement and wish him every success in the great and growing west.

A visit was also made to the Boys' Separate School where the distinguished visitors were welcomed by Principal Rogers and staff.

Great satisfaction was expressed on the condition of the local schools, as well as the splendid reputation they have attained among the best educational institutions in the country.

DEAD MAN WAS NOT WINDOVER

Examiner: There is a mystery in regard to yesterday's automobile fatality near Lakefield. Although the victim was identified as noon yesterday afternoon as Windover, son of Ephraim Windover, a former resident of Buckhorn and Peterboro, report in the afternoon after viewing the body, stated that the victim was not Windover, who has been away from this section for several years. From this detailed description by the man, he had evidently been working for some of the lumber companies, and efforts are being made to identify him through this fact.

Coroner Greer yesterday at Lakefield, opened an inquest to inquire into the death of the man who was killed in an automobile accident on the Lakefield road yesterday afternoon. The body could not be legally identified.

The inquest will be resumed on Thursday next at 2 o'clock at Lakefield.

NORTHERN OUTLET OF TRENT CANAL

According to the plans prepared by the engineers, the Trent Valley Canal will leave Lake Couchiching near a mile to the west of Washago, and cut across to a point below Severn Bridge. The Washago people want the canal to leave the lake near that village, and have suggested an alternative route. Unfortunately, while there is scarcely any rock cutting on the first route, which follows a depression filled with earth, the alternative involves rock cutting nearly all the way.

MANY MOTORS IN ONTARIO

"Lists of Permits," the unassuming blue book of authentic and official motor cycle licenses, was issued Tuesday by the Provincial Secretary's Department.

This book is printed twice a year, and to date shows practically 23,000 motors under license, 600 demonstrating licenses, and 2,900 motor cycle licenses.

The total revenue from this source is now running close to the $100,000 mark, and will probably exceed that figure before the year is out.

SUTCLIFFE'S STORE BURGLARIZED

Some time during last night thieves broke into J. Sutcliffe & Sons dry goods store and took a quantity of goods and a small amount of money from the till.

Entrance was effected by breaking through two panes of glass in a rear cellar window off William-st., and then unfastening two heavy iron bars from the inside of the window frame. The cellar door was locked shut, but the thieves knocked out a panel and unlocked the door through the ragged aperture, thus gaining entrance to the main floor of the store in the men's department, fronting on William-st. They then went through the stock, disturbing things generally, and making off with a number of overcoats and other goods. They next went to the office and after going through all the drawers in a search for keys, opened the till and made off with a few dollars that happened to be left there over night. Exit was made by the front door on Kent-st. Mr. A. Purtell and Mr. Chas. E. Sutcliffe discovered the disturbed stock and office this morning and found the door was placed in the hands of Chief Chilton.

A couple of the overcoats were recovered from behind a pile of lumber yard of a Russell street house, where the thieves evidently dropped them in their hurry, because of being frightened. The owner of the house notified Chief Chilton of his find early this morning, and the two coats were recovered. The thieves still have a quantity of the booty.

Famous Coburg Hostelry Sold

Toronto, Sept. 25—Mr. Eric Armour, of the legal firm of Bristol & Armour, acting for the trustees of the Armour estate, has just negotiated a large deal in Coburg. The property sold was the Arlington Hotel, which was the popular hostelry with the American colony, and many Toronto patrons of the Coburg horse show. The hotel for the last three years has been run by Mr. R. D. and Madame Alliette.

The property which sold for a cash consideration of the neighborhood of $50,000 or $60,000, was purchased by Mr. J. B. McColl and Mrs. Susan Smith, the latter being the proprietress of the Columbia Hotel.

The Arlington Hotel was built by the late Col. Chambliss in 1878, and was rented once to Mr. Chambliss, and later to Mrs. Derey. For years it has been the scene of many of the big social functions of Cobourg.

Moose Jaw, Sept. 25—That the movement of Saskatchewan grain commenced three weeks earlier than last year, and that inspection equal to that at the end of the first week in October last year, is the statement made today by the general manager of the Saskatchewan Co-Operative Elevator Co. He further stated that the grade has not been as high during the past two years as it was on shipments already inspected this season.

MAN KILLED BY COASTING BOY

(Special to The Post.)

Oakville, Sept. 25—Charles Rush, of Michigan, here on a visit to his brother, John, was run into while out walking by a small boy coasting down the sidewalk in a small express wagon, and falling backwards, struck his head on the pavement so heavily that his skull was fractured. Mr. Rush died three hours later.

BURGLARS IN CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford, Sept. 25.—Mr. Thos. Cochrane, of Campbellford, had in Guthrie, experience with a burglar which he will remember for many years.

Mr. Cochrane is a watchman at the Campbellford power plant and is relieved at midnight by a Mr. Waggoner, who lives in a house in the village. The former had returned to his room at about one o'clock and had only got into bed when he heard footsteps in the hall and in his apartment. He immediately stood, grabbed a 32-calibre revolver and gave chase to the burglar, who made his exit through a back door. Mr. Cochrane fired a shot through a screen door after the fast fleeing man, but missed his aim. This was followed by two more shots from the pursuer's gun.

After he had got out in the open the burglar made good his escape in a clump of bushes nearby. Mr. Cochrane went back to bed and after lying down for a time an explosion occurred outside the house which shook the building, causing the bed to shake back and forth on the easter throwing Mr. Cochrane from one side of the mattress to the other, the landing him on the floor. The night for him was one of dread as the explosion sounded like that of a bomb. A neighbor's cellar was looted that night by the burglar. It is thought that more than one questionable character was in the locality.

New Post Office For Peterboro

Peterboro Times: "It is likely that Peterboro will have a new post office in the near future. Parcels post and increased mail will necessitate some such measure. The Times has heard the local postal officials say that if the present lot will not be enough it will be up to the city fathers to provide location in which they want a new one purchased. The council represents the people."

Peterboro seems inclined to get "plums" every time it reaches out for them. Lindsay has been praying for a clock in the post office tower for some time, but the prayers are unanswered.

THOUGHT BOY SHOT HIMSELF

Minden, Ont., Sept. 23—The parents of Ella Hynes, the 13-year-old girl who was found dead by neighbors late on Saturday afternoon, with a shotgun by her side, believe she was accidentally killed by her 14-year-old foster brother, and the boy has, in a fit of terror, slain himself. Search is now being made in the woods.

The boy, aged 14, was an adopted child of the Hynes family, between the two girls was affectionate as though they had been brother and sister. He had been out shooting, and between 4 and 5 the girl was seen at a neighbor's and got some pears to take home to the girl. Shortly after 5 neighbors found the girl dead lying dead in the pantry. Her parents were off in town at the time. The boy and his gun were missing.

ELECTRICITY AND CHICKENS

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—Raising chickens by electricity is the subject of a report received by the Department of Trade and Commerce from its trade commissioner. The application of electric current, it is stated, stimulates the egg laying life in the weakly ones, so that it is claimed by the application of electricity to the chicken houses poultry raisers nearly fifty per cent. more eggs per annum at a cost which works out very much lower than the cost of producing the electricity.

"Assuming the above to be correct, it will be of considerable interest to farmers and others who raise poultry in Canada, and especially so to those in Ontario, and elsewhere where the wide reach of a cheap supply of electricity," says the report.

RICHARD THOMAS PHILP.

On Wednesday, Sept. 10, another of the pioneers of the county passed on to his reward in the person of the late Richard Thomas Philp of lot 4, Base Line, Pickering. The late Mr. Philp suffered a stroke of paralysis on Friday, from which he never rallied of which he gradually grew weaker till the end came. The subject of this sketch was born in Bowmanville on Nov. 4th, 1842, being the eldest son of Richard Philp and his wife, Maria Werry Philp, natives of Cornwall, England. He was one of a family of eight, all of whom have predeceased him except one sister, Miss Elizabeth Philp of Toronto. On Oct. 1, 1868, he was married Ann Pollard of Bowmanville, daughter of the late John Pollard, by whom he had five children, three living, and two who died in infancy, viz. Mrs. Geo. Hare, of Base Line, and two daughters, Miss Northcote of Toronto, and Miss Addaide M. at home.

He spent the earlier years of his married life in Bowmanville and Darlington townships, where the hardships incident on pioneer life were manfully met. His home was ever open to the travelling preacher of that early time and many tired to bless his kindly spirit. Later on he removed to Pickering township, where for thirty-four years he continued to lead a strenuous life, keeping his usual energy in full activity to the last. The service at the home on Thursday evening, conducted by Rev. M. E. Sexsmith, Whitby, was most impressive, and was attended by a large number of his old friends and neighbors. On Friday the funeral took place to Greenwood Cemetery, interment to the cemetery at Bethesda where many relatives and friends rested from the west to bring to the last tribute of respect to one of God's noblemen.—Bowmanville Statesman.

HISTORY OF HUDSON BAY

The history of Hudson Bay is a remarkable one. It was explored during the half century following upon Hudson's discovery by many English voyagers seeking a northwest passage, and in 1670 King Charles II granted the whole territory draining into it, with monopoly rights, to a company consisting of his cousin, Prince Rupert, and a number of English noblemen and others, to exploit its wealth of rich furs and pettries, its supposed minerals, for their own advantage. Thus was formed the Hudson Bay Company, which has controlled the region almost down to the present time. During the wars in the succeeding generations between France and England, France resented strongly the all-embracing character of the convention granted to the company and repudiated its claim to the vast northwestern wilderness, which has now been partly divided into Canada's three provinces—Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and the renowned Dominion, and small French fortifications, one on Lake Superior and one on Hudson Bay, capturing their fleet, and erected upon their strongholds—Fort Prince of Wales, at Fort Churchill—one of the strongest forts of that place in Canada, at the time, the walls being 34 feet thick.

During the war between the revolting American Colonies and the mother country, the harrying of fur ships from Hudson Bay was carried out, for this purpose, and repeated in the war of 1812, but since then British rule over that region has not been disputed by foreigners. Of internal dissensions there has, however, been no small share.

Shortly after this period the "Northwest" and other fur companies were formed, to compete against the Hudson Bay company, and after years of bitter rivalry and many bloody encounters, these companies were absorbed by the parent organization. Until fifty years ago the company actually governed the whole of Northwestern Canada, and, however, it did not, in guardianship for the rights of the settlers, that a rebellion ensued, as a result of which the Canadian government, in 1869, purchased all the territory which the company possessed excepting the forts and posts occupied by it, and this extinguished its territorial authority. Out of this territory there have since been carved the other western provinces of Canada, besides which there remain the territories of Ungava, Mackenzie, and Franklin, embracing north, of these provinces, which are so wonderfully settled—and so little developed that they have yet secured provincial organizations.

GARBAGE HEAP AND ITS DANGERS

From Monday's Post.

The Post interviewed a well known member of the medical profession this morning in connection with the proposed endeavor of the Civic Improvement Association to inaugurate a good system of garbage collection.

The doctor heartily approved of the scheme, and was very strong in its denunciation of the practice of throwing garbage into gardens and kitchen diseases. It was a fact, he declared well known to the profession that about the beginning of the hot public generally, that the common fly spread disease and carried it on its hairy little feet.

No place was more inviting to the insect than the uncared for garbage heap. It was universally admitted that the insect germs, which proved so fatal to young children were caused by the contamination of the air by the dirty garbage heaps. To protect the growing children, he declared could be bestowed upon the community than a careful and systematic system of garbage collection. Good to accumulate in back yards and alleyways. This evil was treated too lightly by our citizens, and he feared not a few immune from a serious epidemic was no guarantee that this immunity would always prevail.

The doctor referred to the many manure heaps to the town, which were allowed to assume large proportions. These together with the garbage heaps in the yards and lanes, made a year of our business blocks very unsightly, and sanitary inspector should be asked to see that these were removed.

The doctor highly commended the adoption of a system of garbage collection, and felt that the citizens should strengthen the hands of the Civic Improvement Association in its efforts to improve conditions.

MR. JOHN E. DOSSER

BRONTE, ONT., MARCH 1st, 1912.

The trouble was principally in my right hip and shoulder, the pain from it was so severe that I could not sleep on that side, if I claimed to turn over in my sleep I would wake, the pain would immediately awaken me. For long years I started taking "Fruit-a-tives". I started by taking one or two tablets with a large glass of water, in the morning before breakfast and experienced pronounced relief very shortly. After a continued treatment for about six months I was cured and am now in the best of health. This I attribute to my persistent use of "Fruit-a-tives" and I heartily recommend your remedy to any Rheumatic sufferer."

BOBCAYGEON FAIR BIG SUCCESS

Large Attendance And Splendid Exhibits

Despite the chilly winds and threatening skies, Bobcaygeon fair turned out very successfully Friday, and large numbers were in attendance. Many Lindsay people took advantage of the special train service to take in the fair and spend the day with friends in the Island Village. In the neighborhood of a thousand people from here in spite of the drizzle, which started about train time, and during the afternoon a number of automobile parties also went down.

This year the fair grounds are more up-to-date than ever, as the directors are always striving to make the Bobcaygeon show one of the best small exhibitions in the country. Their unique grounds, with its pretty groves of huge trees, was as usual very pleasing to the spectators, and a change from the bare grounds usual with other exhibitions of a like nature. Unfortunately for the horse races, the rain made the track very heavy and fast time was impossible. There were five entries in the free-for-all, and four in the race-for-all.

The merry-go-round added greatly to the enjoyment of the young people, and kept up the music most of the afternoon.

The exhibit most spoken of was the Rural School Fair under the charge of Mr. Knight, of the Department of Agriculture, Lindsay. It was certainly an eye-opener to the people of the district, and a credit to their schools and children. Everything in the School Fair Tent was tastefully arranged, with an eye to beauty and coloring. It was like one's idea of a picture of Thanksgiving for a bounteous harvest of nature's best. Besides the excellent grains, fruits and vegetables raised by the children, were shown some good examples of drawing, water colors, and collections of insects, butterflies, etc., as well as other examples of the work taken up in the rural schools under the auspices and encouragement of the local Department of Agriculture, which is doing a great work through the district in interesting the young in farm pursuits and training them to a proper solution. Prizes were awarded to the schools having the best displays.

In the main building the farmers of Verulam excelled themselves along many lines. Vegetables in great huge vegetables and roots, and for its fine fruits of different varieties, but this year nature seemed to have been more bountiful than ever in bestowing upon the farmers her large, red and white mangolds and roots. The array in the building of these was looked on with wonder by the visitors. Fowl also were good, and occupied a fitting place among the displays.

In the culinary department the sewing and fancy work was as usual much better than almost, any fair in the county, and delighted the large number of women present. Some very beautiful and intricate work was shown. Preserved fruits, butter, bread and pastry were in abundance, and so appetizing to look upon that one's hunger grew as each row jar was passed.

In the live stock section the horses were particularly good, and many fine animals were shown. The heavy draught type were much in evidence, and Verulam showed some fine specimens of lighter animals.

The district's usual good display of cattle were in their stalls, and brought many a word of praise from judges of live stock. There was a small display of sheep and swine, but the district does not go in for these as heavily as for cattle. The poultry was good, and many of the best breeds were shown.

In telling of a Verulam Fair, the story is not complete without mentioning the procession of school children, decorated buggies, bands, and so forth that takes place just after dinner and leads the crowd to the fair grounds for the afternoon's sports. Nature belongs particularly to Bobcaygeon, and in a drawing race not to be overlooked.

In fact, when one comes to think of it, Bobcaygeon fair has many and unique individualities about its fair that distinguish it favorably above any other.

THOSE HAPPY DAYS

Long ago, when the barefoot boy played hooky and got tanned after and as well as before he stole in the back way, with his clothes on hind part before—in those good old days when he caught more fish with a hook than he can land today with a seine, he was a king, incognito, and all boyhood was his domain.

In that era when he played because he was wild as a colt, and full of the joy of life, he didn't have much money to spend. A nickle, in those days, lasted a long time. It was hard got, and hard spent. He kept it hidden in his tin bank for weeks and planned how he would add to it, as the years went by, and maybe some day have as much as a dollar.

And this seven night, after hours spent in an orgy of imaginary standing in front of a candy store he lounged around with excitement and trembling at his own temerity, and he resolved to cast to the winds the counsels of his mother and the teachings of his father, and to spend that nickle the very next day on suckers—six for five cents, and a lagniappe of a stick of cinnamon thrown in for good measure.

Even now, when he wakes in the night sometimes he thinks of the expenditure of that nickle. Of the subterfuges to get hold of the tin bank from under his mother's watchful eye. Of the long and tedious journeys to the store with that bright piece of savings clutched in his grubby fist. Of the sensation of power and the feeling of reckless extravagance he had when he swaggered into the front flag that Saturday, and his mother bought her dress goods and his father got the groceries—and, with half a dozen comrades at heel, strutted by the wide-eyed admiration, the prince of spenders plunked down the nickle and treated all hands.

Long ago, he spent more than ten of hundreds, or hundreds of thousands—he may be a Good Fellow of Good Standing, but never since, in all the years of earning and saving and spending has there come to him so brightly hued a moment, a feeling of such unbounded magnificence, or so satisfying an assurance of gratified desire.

Life holds but one such moment, in its span of bright-hued days and shining years.—Penetanguishene Journal.

AUTO VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED

(Special to The Post.)

FATHER GUIRY LEAVING LINDSAY

Appointed Parish Priest At Kinmount

Rev. Father Guiry, the popular Curate of St. Mary's Church, has been appointed by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien parish priest of the parishes of Kinmount, Galway, Renfrew Falls and Roscarbury.

He succeeds Rev. Father Gaiath, who has been appointed Principal of the Continuation School and will assume his new charge the first week in October.

The departure of Rev. Father Guiry from Lindsay will be regretted not only by the parishioners of St. Mary's, but by the citizens in general. Since his appointment as curate, shortly after his ordination, a few years ago, he has shown himself a zealous clergyman, and has given evidence of his ability, zeal and devoted recognition and effective discharge of the responsibilities of the priestly office. He has also displayed qualities of manhood, mind and character that have endeared him to all classes of the community.

His relations with the people have been of the most pleasant character and he carries with him to their new citizens of the town for their kindness towards him.

Rev. Father Guiry's successor has not been announced.

A Double Expiry

The defendant, who was charged for keeping a dog without a license, made repeated efforts during the proceedings to get the officer to give evidence brought forward against him, but on each occasion he was called to silence by the pompous dignitary on the bench.

Yet, still he persevered. Finally, therefore, the magistrate, now thoroughly exasperated, turned to him and sternly inquired.

"Do you wish the court to understand that you refuse to renew the license?"

"Yes," replied the defendant, quickly.

"We want no "buts" reared the preserver of the law and order. "Your dog license, as you must be very well aware, expired so long ago as the first of January. You must either renew it now, therefore, or be fined for keeping a dog."

"Yes," sighed the defendant "quite clear. But in that case I may find myself once again and very unjustly with keeping a license, but no dog. You see the latter also expired on the 1st of January."

FATHER PHELAN IS CHANCELLOR

The Peterboro Examiner of Saturday states that Father J. J. Phelan, of Peterboro, had been appointed Chancellor of the Diocese by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien. Chancellor Phelan was at one time curate at St. Mary's Church.

Rev. Father McCoil, Rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterboro, has been appointed Dean of Peterboro and Victoria Counties; Rev. Father Murray, of Colborne, Dean of Northumberland and Durham and Rev. Father Arthur Kelly, of Trout Creek, Dean of Muskoka and Nipissing.

Apple Crop A Short One

The small receipts of apples appear to confirm our expected reports of a short crop, namely Nova Scotia and Ontario about 40 to 15 per cent. over a half crop, and the province of Quebec not more than one-third of last year's yield. The supply of fall fruit being away below the requirements of the trade, the market at the moment is quite excited, and high prices are ruling. For instance, Baldwins are offering at $4.60 per bbl., as to grade, and Ben Davis $3.50, while Wealthys and Alexanders are quoted $3.00 to $3. Fairly good stock being most in demand. But these prices cannot last, as heavier shipments are expected next week, and possibly earlier. Fancies and other fruit are more plentiful and much cheaper in proportion, and consequently the present prices of apples will have to recede from their high level. As regards winter apples, contracts it is reported have been made at $2.75 to $3.00 per bbl. in the west. The crops in England and on the continent of Europe are reported short.

THE CANADIAN LIBERAL MONTHLY

A new form of periodical literature has appeared in Canada with the publication of the "Canadian Liberal Monthly," the purpose of which is to provide a medium for the discussion of political measures and principles such as is provided by some of the political monthlies and quarterlies in Great Britain. The magazine is published from the Central Information Office of the Canadian Liberal party in Ottawa. Its first number deals instructively with such topics as "The Principles of Liberalism," "The Borden Government," "The Navy Question," "By-elections Past and Present," and so on, and contains original cartoons on political subjects. In laying down its policy, the Editor says:

The national and imperial questions of the present have revived a form of public discussion less fugitive than that of the press, and less ephemeral than that of parliamentary debate or the public platform. The question of reciprocity involved a consideration of issues which are fundamental as regards taxation and trade, the Naval question which has succeeded it, involves political considerations that lie at the very foundations of government and society, as well being as they exist in the British Empire today. Both questions have produced a volume of political literature unequalled in previous years. Some of the methods and tendencies of public discussion on these subjects have compelled a reconsideration of first principles and a closer examination of the aims and objects of the political parties in the Dominion. In being thus forced to respect fundamental principles, Liberalism in Canada has gained intensity in strength and vitality, and, its true significance and purpose being better understood, it gives the promise of becoming increasingly powerful in moulding and directing public opinion. The "Canadian Liberal Monthly" appears at this time neither as a rival nor as a competitor of any of the agencies already at work in the spread of Liberal ideas. Its purpose is rather to co-operate with these by seeking to bring together and preserve, in a form available for ready and permanent reference expressions of Liberal thought and records of Liberal achievement."

The periodical will doubtless be welcomed by Liberals as a central meeting for fuller discussion of first principles than is possible in the daily press. But it will fill a larger purpose than that, for if it carries out the programme it has laid down, it will prove indispensable to all who desire a thorough understanding of public questions. — Montreal Telegraph.

PETER J. PILKEY LEFT $55,418

"In parting from my family, I have been fortunate, under God's guidance, in securing a good home for them, and I hope that one and all will meet in that Happy Land, where parting is no more."

So ends one of the final clauses in the lengthy holograph well written by the late Mr. Peter J. Pilkey, instructor in art at Harbord Collegiate Institute, Toronto, who died at his residence, 462 Gladstone ave., on August 14.

The deceased gentleman's last testament deals with an estate totalling $55,418.36, and composed of the following: Furniture $500, mortgages $39,125.50, insurance $5,000, stocks $2,837, cottage at Bracebridge and Sturgeon Point, $1,000, equity in a house on Bloor street, $3,732.59 and automobile $800.

The testator gets a life interest in the entire estate, after which it is to be divided in equal portions between the children—three in Pittsburg, and John, Gladys, Gordon, Leila and Helen, all living at home.

There are some people who imagine they can't be sincere without saying disagreeable things about their friends.

Concrete is the cheapest building material

WHETHER for a silo, a milk-house, or a mighty grain elevator, concrete is the most economical building material in use today.

Concrete never requires repairs, and the saving in repair-expense alone makes the greater economy of using concrete more apparent every day. The cost of other building materials is constantly increasing.

The cost of concrete is being reduced.

Canada Cement

which Canadian farmers use, with their own sand, stone and gravel to make concrete, is the only ingredient you have to buy.

We have the reason of our large output and scientific methods, been able to bring the price of "Canada" cement to a price that it is within the reach of everyone.

An increase in demand results in a greater economy of production, and when conditions have warranted it, we have, from time to time, shared this saving with the consumer by reducing the price of Canada Cement. This demand will continue to increase—as fast as farmers learn of concrete's superiority over other materials.

When you buy cement, see that you get "Canada" Cement; by so doing you will assure the complete success of all your concrete work.

Send a post card for our book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It is free.

There is a Canada Cement dealer in your neighborhood.

PETERBORO WANTS INDUSTRIAL CLASS

Peterboro Board of Education decided unanimously to establish industrial classes in that city. They speak of placing several rooms in the Collegiate Institute at the disposal of the classes but this will be decided definitely later.

The Board met on Tuesday to discuss the question of instituting an industrial night school in the City. A sub-committee had been previously appointed, and a meeting held on Monday night last when a retrospect was made of the situation and the following report, and estimates were prepared:

"That the Committee recommend the establishment of evening Industrial Classes in Dressmaking, Millinery, Domestic Science, Mechanical Drawing, Shop Mathematics and Electricity, to commence the first week in October and to continue until Christmas, when if found successful they are to be continued in 1914, and that the Board of Education be requested to appropriate the sum of $1,000.00 for the purpose of defraying the necessary expenses as given in the following estimates for three months:

Dressmaking, Millinery, salaries	$ 90.00
Domestic Science, equipment	100.00
Mechanical Drawing, salary	120.00
Shop Mathematics, equipment	75.00
Electricity, salary	60.00
Supervising principal	200.00
Janitor's salary	75.00
Advertising	50.00
Heat, Light and Gas	50.00
Supplies Domestic Science, Dressmaking, Millinery	100.00
	$920.00

Government Grants.

The estimated grants to be received from the Government are as follows:

40 per cent of the Equipment	$150.00
50 per cent of the salaries	272.00
	$422.00

It is therefore requested that the Board of Education appropriate the sum of $1,000.00 to defray the necessary expenses.

Lindsay also has the chance of establishing these industrial classes here and every citizen should make it a point to attend the meeting this evening to hear the matter discussed with Dr. Merchant of the Department of Education.

Heard Thieves Gaining Entrance

The thieves who burglarized Sutcliffe's store Friday night are now known to have broken in between half past eleven o'clock Friday night and two o'clock Saturday morning. Occupants in the upper half of an adjoining block heard them hammering on the door for about ten minutes, but concluded it was somebody working across the road at the Bell Telephone Co's offices. The firm has not been able to ascertain the amount of goods taken.

Can You Figure This Out?

A Missouri Pacific agent in Arkansas tells the following: A man presented himself at the ticket window and asked the fare to Athina, Ark. I told him it was $1.00. He said he had only a $2.00 bill, but could easily raise the other dollar. When he returned with the three dollars and his change, he said, "Give me my dollar and pawned the $2.00 bill for $1.50. Then I sold the pawn-ticket for $1.00. While you are making out the ticket kindly tell me who ca out the dollar?" The agent afterwards said that he had wrestled with the 47th problem of Euclid, dragged through quadratics in algebra, worked on "How old is Ann," but the question was too much for him.—St. W. Gilmore of Eldon.

FATHER GUIRY SAYS FAREWELL

At St. Mary's Church on Sunday Vicar-General Casey announced the promotion (by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien) of Rev. Father Guiry to the pastorate of Kinmount, Galway, Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon. His Lordship the Bishop, Vicar-General Casey and others of the zeal and earnestness which characterized the work of Rev. Father Guiry and had received him to a new sphere of labor. His prayers as well as the prayers of the entire congregation would go out that God would bless the efforts of Rev. Father Guiry and that his ministrations would result in great blessings to himself as well as to those among whom he would labor.

FATHER GUIRY'S FAREWELL.

Rev. Father Guiry preached at both masses and took advantage of the occasion to say farewell to the congregations. "If my work could have been considered in the matter, my desire would have been to remain with you. What I say, I mean, and I am very grateful to the pastor, or Vicar-General, for his great kindness to me. I am also grateful to the good people of the parish. I have labored among you just three years and o-month. Time passes quickly. I will not prolong the chart and try to fittingly express my gratitude. Pray for me and I promise I will pray for you. I need your prayers in the mission to which I will labor. I wish God's blessing on you all, and will say good-bye."

Rev. Father Guiry will begin his new pastorate next Sunday.

CONSECRATION OF BISHOP O'BRIEN

The consecration of Rt. Rev. Dr. O'Brien, this morning, as his Office ral Church, St. Peter in Chains, was consummated with an ecclesiastical pomp and circumstance unsurpassed in Canada by any similar ceremony. The occasion gained in significance from the fact of the presence of the representative of the Holy See, His Excellency Monsignor Stagni, Apostolic Delegate, an honor accorded in only one other episcopal postulant for consecration previous to Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Brien, and from the added fact that he was assisted by three Archbishops and thirteen or fourteen bishops, representing almost all the chief dioceses of the Dominion. The minor clergy present included the entire clergy of the dioceses of Peterborough and other dignitaries were present from Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, and almost every province of the Dominion from Alberta to Quebec, and a great many from the United States. The great Cathedral edifice was crowded with the faithful of the Catholic Church, as well as by a very large number of citizens representing other communions, evidence of core that Rt. Rev. Dr. O'Brien, in his clerical capacity, has strongly won the respect and affection of the congregants to whom he had so effectively ministered, and that he had joined to his clerical functions a large exercise of broad-minded citizenship, that challenged the respect and admiration of the community at large that he has been a Catholic priest in a double sense. The occasion, in all ways, was a most memorable one, and the scene during the elaborate ceremony was striking and brilliant one, the sanctuary a moving blaze of gorgeous vestments, blending decorously grand with the solemn intonation of the Mass, and the magnificent music of the full-voiced choir. The sermon, preached by Archbishop McNally of Calgary, while apropos to the occasion, was at the same time, a happy combination of spirituality and intellectuality, insisting upon the necessity of Divine revelation, whose ideals are represented by the physical presence of the Son on earth and the mystic presence of the Spirit of truth, especially bishops. He instituted.

RT. REV. BISHOP O'BRIEN.

The visiting clergy in procession accompanied the Consecrator and Bishop-elect from the Bishop's Palace to the sanctuary at the Cathedral, the priests afterwards occupying the front pews, and the bishops taking seats within the sanctuary.

CITY WAS REPRESENTED

The city was represented by a deputation from the council who occupied the front seats on the east side of the body of the church.

THE PRELATES PRESENT.

The gentlemen who acted as ushers comprised the following: Mr. John Hanrahan, chairman of the ushers' committee; Messrs. G. H. Popham, Wm. Merrill, L. Potvin, Jas. O'Brien, Jos. Hickey, V. McCabe, G. McFadden, A. Quinlan, Jas. J. Doris, A. Letellier, E. Laplante, Ed. Donatel, Fred Shannon, John Kelly, Chas. C. Gironis, Dan McCaffrey, John E. Sullivan, D. M. Minnahan, Louis Riley, F. J. McCarthy, and Timothy Collins.

THE CELEBRANTS.

The clergy who officiated at the consecration and in the celebration of mass were the following:

Consecrator—His Excellency, The Most Reverend P. F. Stagni, D. D., Apostolic Delegate.

Bishop-Elect—Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D. D.

Assistant-Consecrators—Most Rev. J. T. Sprattt, D.D., Archbishop of Kingston; Most Rev. Paul Bruchesi, Archbishop of Montreal.

Deacon of the Mass — Rev. W. J. McCall.

Subdeacon of the Mass—Rev. C. J. Chehan.

Deacons of Honor — Rev. M. F. Fitzpatrick, Rev. J. J. O'Sullivan.

Acolytes—Rt. T. J. Crowley, Rev. J. J. McFadden.

Censer Bearer—Rev. James Guiry, Masters of Ceremonies—Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Rev. M. Kelly.

THE CHOIR

The mass was sung by a male choir composed of Mr. A. New, director, Mr. Father McCarthy, and about 40 singers to the number of 21. Mr. John Armstrong presided at the organ.

THE CEREMONY.

After the Consecrator had prayed before the altar, he was led by two to his throne and was vested in his robes. The Bishop-elect, with his assisting Archbishops retired to the chapel at one side of the sanctuary, and there put on the necessary vestments. The ceremony was begun after the celebrants had taken their places before the altar by the reading of the Papal Bulla by Rev. Father O'Sullivan.

The Bishop-elect then took the oath, and then began his examination, responding to the prescribed questions.

The Mass was commenced and continued to the conclusion of the Gradual.

Then the Consecrator seated on the highest grade of the altar and the Bishop-elect knelt before him, the grace of state and intoned the litanies, during which the candidate prostrated himself and the Consecrator knelt. Then the book of the Gospels was put upon his shoulders, and the Consecrator and assistant Bishops touched with both hands the head of the Bishop-elect, saying, "Receive the Holy Ghost."

The preface was chanted, and after the hymn, "Come Holy Ghost," was intoned. After the hymn was concluded the Consecrator seated himself, and anointed the new Bishop's head, and after the end of the remained preface the hands were anointed, the Consecrator saying:

"May these hands be anointed with holy oil, as Samuel anointed David to be king and Prophet; so may they be anointed and consecrated."

Followed the blessing and imposing of the crozier, "the staff of the pastoral office," and next the blessing and imposing of the ring, "the symbol of fidelity."

Then the Consecrator took the book of Gospels from the shoulders of the Bishop-elect, and said: "Receive the Holy Ghost and go preach to the people committed to thee." The kiss of peace was then given by the Consecrator and assistants.

THE SERMON

"Today we have witnessed the consecration ceremony by means of which a man among you is separated from you to bear the dignity of David," said Bishop T. J. McNally, of Calgary, in referring to the consecration of Bishop O'Brien. "This Diocese," he continued, "has offered up prayers which have been answered by the Almighty God, as those set up by the appointment of a new spiritual leader. The Venerable Episcopal see of the Province presented his name and the Apostolic mandate which was read this morning, confirms their choice. The church in its beautiful and impressive service of consecration prays that the newly consecrated spiritual leader may have the strength and grace to fulfill the arduous duties connected with the Episcopic. A new name has been added to the Apostolic succession. It is needless to speak of him whom God has given to you as a spiritual leader. The consecration bears witness to his piety and apostolic faith. I can speak of the kindness which he manifested upon his elevation, will, in me in that far distant land, when he kindly consented to bestow the spiritual assistance of a priest of his own Diocese in order to further the cause of Christianity. Would to God that all times were guided by the same self-denying disposition, and the same generous impulses. It remains for you to lighten his ministry by loyalty, devotion and obedience."

The bans of His Lordship's remarks were taken from Jeremiah 3-15

"And I will give you pastors according to mine heart, which shall feed you with knowledge and understanding."

"Today we are in the presence of a scene that cannot fail to awaken our thoughts. It reveals to us the fact that the unseen hand of God is always with us in this earthly pilgrimage. Human nature in the ordinary course has never elicited a revelation from God. The perversion of the true faith has become a source of the worldly wisdom, who advance the claim that there is nothing certain in revelation. The perversion of the human mind is like the lights at sea to the mariner, which when burning is often obstructed by the Good's mariner of dealing with us, proves that He must reveal Himself. A recognition of God's immensity is necessary for the human heart, and God's fathomless depths for the soul. Our inheritance is not the earth alone, but immortal happiness. We thanks to Divine Mercy for giving us a teacher whose perpetual inspiration is the promotion of the work that will enable mankind to merit eternal life. God has spoken to man through His Divine Son and left His spirit in the world, This is the Kingdom which the Almighty God founded upon earth. The ministers of Jesus Christ to man must not be a rare and wonderful apparition. They must minister and come to leaders and priests of the people, but to the poor and humble alike."

CONCLUSION OF CEREMONY

After the sermon the offertory having been said the Consecrator resumed his position in the episcopal chair, the Bishop-elect knelt before him and received two lighted candles, two loaves of bread, and two small barrels of wine and kissed the Consecrator's hands upon receiving those symbols of the work which he had continued and just previous to the communion the Pax, or kiss of peace was given by the Consecrator to the Bishop-elect, and to his assistants. It was also imparted to the other clergy within the sanctuary. The blessing and conferring of the Mitre followed the "Ite Missa est." The Consecrator then blessed the gloves and ring to be worn by the new Bishop. He then placed the gloves on the hands of the Bishop-elect and invested him with the Episcopal ring. Bishop O'Brien was then enthroned by the Consecrator, and the Te Deum rolled through the Cathedral.

During the singing of the hymn, Bishop O'Brien encircled the church, imparting his blessing to the congregation.

The ceremony was concluded by the presentation of an address to the new Lordship by the clergy of the diocese.

The diocesan priests encircled the throne and the address was read by Ven. Archdeacon Casey.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills owe their singular effectiveness in curing Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica to the power of stimulating and strengthening the kidneys. They enable these organs to thoroughly filter from the blood the uric acid (the product of waste matter) which gets into the joints and muscles and causes these painful diseases. Over half a century of constant use has proved conclusively that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills strengthen weak kidneys and

TAXICAB WAS MUCH ADMIRED

Manufactured by Fitzsimmon's Body Works

From Wednesday's Post.

The Fitzsimmons Auto Body Works have turned out a magnificent taxicab for the King Edward Hotel, Toronto and it was driven to the city this afternoon. The King Edward Hotel has been a good user of Standard-Dayton chassis and the Fitzsimmons people built an unusually fine hansom body to place on it. The body is aluminum painted a very dark blue, almost black. The upholstering is soft and very luxurious. The seats and trimmings in the rear of the car are cloth, the front seat is the best soft leather. The windows at the back can be raised or lowered, and each has a cross rail outside which raises or lowers on a roller. The top over where the passengers sit can be lowered so as to have the effect of an open car. The cars are far more luxurious than any in Toronto. The King Edward will have three of them, which will all be built by the Fitzsimmons Auto Body Works.

NO ACTION AGAINST LOCAL OFFICIALS

For some days past it was rumored on the street that an Inspector and Supt. of a well known Canadian Fire Insurance Co. intended taking action against certain local officials of the law in Lindsay. The gentleman referred to was questioned by the local officials regarding his movements — actions in this locality at the time "Ray" the embezzler was in the limelight. He therefore became the victim of undesirable publicity, and since then it is alleged, he has been shadowed by Pinkertons, a condition of things which he naturally resents.

A Post reporter had a short interview with the gentleman referred to a few days ago, and he strongly protested against what he termed the unsalled for action of the police and officials. It was interfering with his business dealings, and it was a reflection upon his reputation as a citizen.

The Post was informed on Monday and also this morning that no action would be taken in the courts against the local officials.

BOTTLED MILK FARED BADLY

Runaway Accident on Wellington St

From Wednesday's Post.

Loud and sustained crashes of breaking glass brought the householders of Wellington st and several adjoining blocks to their doors on the run last night shortly after seven o'clock. A dark streak was seen careering down the street at breakneck speed narrowly missing pedestrians and telegraph posts. It turned out to be an open milk delivery demon at belonging to Mr. Ed. Walker. Ted Walker who drives it was in it.

A house near the corner of Sussex and Wellington st, when the horse started off said: The bottles shaking around frightened the animal and in a hundred yards or less it was going at a breakneck pace to get away from the noise which got louder at every bound.

When the big hill the street corner and railway crossing at Victoria Ave there was a stupendous crash and scattering of bottles. But the grand finale came when the cattle hit a telegraph post at the corner of Cambridge st where milk and broken bottles flew in every direction. The shafts got broken in the collision and the horse went on without the cart. He was caught at the corner of Wilkinson st.

One of Workmen's cabs had a narrow escape as it came out of the stables on Wellington st between Cambridge st and Victoria Ave. The runaway followed it to Cambridge st where the cab turned to the left at full speed. The runaway passed down Wellington just behind it and came to grief on the telegraph post a few feet at the rear of the back.

Broken glass is scattered along Wellington st for two blocks and several bicyclists came to grief this morning by cutting their tires.

The rig contained about sixty quart bottles. Only a dozen or so were full.

BURGLARY AT FENELON FALLS

Fenelon Falls, Oct. 8.—Mr. Wesley Pogue's automobile repair shop on Colborne street was entered from the rear on Monday evening, and a quantity of gasolene stolen. The thief or thieves evidently were well acquainted with the premises. Judging by the manner in which they worked their scheme.

HAMILTON HAS MURDER MYSTERY

Aged Lady's Disappearance Suspicious

HAMILTON, Oct. 8.—Has Hamilton another murder on its hands? It is feared that such is the case, and the provincial police have been asked to clear up the supposed mystery.

Mrs. Sarah Miller, 59 years of age, who up to six weeks ago lived by herself about one mile from Hermitage crossings in the vicinity of Ancaster, was originally disappeared, and the neighborhood believes that she has come to an untimely end. Mrs. Miller, up to five years ago, lived with her husband at the farm house. Mr. Miller then disappeared, and the wife with her young son, has been living alone ever since.

About six weeks ago, one Mondaymorning a farmer for the mess up John Hyslop, was passing the old house and noticed the woman standing on the front porch talking with two men who looked very much like tramps. The farmer nodded and passed on. Although this was six weeks ago, no living persons, apparently has seen or heard of her since.

The neighbors, it was said, regarded the place with fear, possibly influenced by the fact that over twenty years ago Janice Stillwater, 80 years of age, was found there in bed with his throat cut. The place remained vacant for a long time before the Millers took it.

The district was considered a very lonesome one, and for this reason the woman, who had lived there for 12 years, was looked upon as a mysterious personage. Mrs. Miller was a woman of striking appearance and said to be highly educated.

From all outside and business deal recently put through, the woman was known to have about twenty-seven dollars in her possession, but it is believed that she has been robbed in her home.

SPLENDID SAMPLE OF ROADWORK

One of the finest stretches of country road from the standpoint of construction and maintenance is to be seen on Concession No 3, Con. 3 tps. It is a two mile stretch and was constructed by Mr. G. H. Payne, road overseer, who should certainly be proud of the work. In its construction good, sound judgment was exercised.

The road bed is well nigh perfect, while every precaution was taken to see that it was satisfactorily drained. Farmers who do considerable driving, Dr. McAlpine, Roy Babcock and Wm. Suggitt, for instance, have nothing favorably commented on the stretch of road. Mr. Payne is being prevailed upon to explain his methods of roadbuilding through the columns of the Post.

The candidate for a young woman's hand makes a lot of campaign promises during courtship.

MEAT WILL BE DEARER HERE

This is the Result of the New Tariff Law

The new tariff of the United States which has come into force within the last few days will make a noted change in the price of meat in this vicinity. Already there is a noticeable raise in the price of beef, the wholesalers in Ontario having had to pay more per hundred lbs than usual in the course of the past week. This means that the consumers will have to pay two cents more on the pound for their beef than they did a few days ago.

The Post interviewed several local butchers this morning, and was informed that some of them had purchased stock ahead and that while the retail price had not yet advanced, it would take a jump at no distant date.

The prices of beef and pork are better in the States than in Canada and for the past few weeks the best cattle all over the country have been bought up and shipped towards the border, to await the passing of the new tariff.

Dealers say that this shipping over the line of cattle will inevitably result in a shortage in Canada, with many others and result in the boosting of both wholesale and retail prices.

LINDSAY IN MOVING PICTURES

Novel Advertising Scheme Adopted by Council

The Cleveland Motion Picture Film and Supply Co. of Cleveland has notified the Lindsay Board of Trade, Commissioner of Canadian Agricultural and Industrial Bureau, has made arrangements with the firm to send a reel of their moving picture show to this town to take 50 feet of motion pictures of our business streets, factories in operation, water power and any public improvements desired to be shown.

These will be exhibited in the principal towns and cities throughout the State of Ohio and elsewhere in leading picture theatres without any cost to the council, since Mr. Jones is defraying all expenses.

This modern method of publicity demonstrated to the manufacturer in a comprehensive manner the manufacturing and shipping facilities of the town that cannot be otherwise shown.

In a letter from Commissioner Jones dealing with this matter, it was pointed out that the only cost to the town would be the hotel bill of the moving picture operator, $6, providing he is kept no longer than three days. Commissioner Jones will also accompany him on his trip. The film will also be a complimentary picture of the council in session.

The council thought the scheme an excellent one, and a resolution accepting the proposition went through with a bang.

POLICE ARE AFTER "JAMES RAY"

Woodstock, Oct. 7.—Chief Killing has received a post card containing a description of "James Ray", the cheque artist, who recently secured bank managers in Ontario, with an alleged coupon. These men are supposed to be still in Western Ontario, and the police of all the towns and cities have been asked to be on the look out for them.

Monster Potato

Mr. John Palmer of Omemee, brother of Mr. Thos. Palmer of Queen street city, has on exhibition at the National Hotel a potato raised on the former's property, that is a corker. It measures 9 x 4½ inches and weighs 28 ounces. A peculiar feature about this potato is that the "eyes" are so nicely and form a perfect resemblance to a human face, possibly and clearly resembling the face of the man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo.—Peterboro Times.

GIBSON WILL ESCAPE GALLOWS

Gets Life Sentence in Penitentiary

(Special to The Post.)

OTTAWA, Oct. 8.—The prayer of the sixty thousand petitioners that the Government would interfere at the eleventh hour to save Charles Gibson from going to the gallows in Toronto on Thursday next has been answered. Last night it was announced that the sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment. It is believed that later on a new trial will be secured. And if the expected new evidence materializes, Gibson may then become a free man. His counsel feel that the jurors comes after practically all hope had been given up, following the decision of the Government last week to recommend executive clemency.

Yesterday morning Gibson's counsel, Mr. Hartney Lennox, K.C., M.P. for North York, with the Toronto delegation, was received by the full Cabinet Council and urged to strongly recommend the grant of a favorable reconsideration of the application for mercy. In the afternoon afternoon's sitting of the Cabinet Council was again gone into thoroughly.

It was finally decided that the decision of last week should be adhered to, and a recommendation was forwarded to His Excellency the Governor-General, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, for the death sentence to be commuted to life imprisonment. This recommendation was then expected to be formally signed by Sir Charles to-day. The prisoner stated that all his efforts will now be directed towards the new trial, and that he is hopefful that with expected new evidence this will be granted in the near future.

The Toronto deputation here in Ottawa yesterday, Mr. Lennox, M.P. night well pleased with the result of their visit. There was hope, it was felt that week by the Government that any recommendation would prove to be of avail in changing the Government's decision of last Thursday week. The result has proved the contrary, and the Government has made spectacular efforts in Gibson's behalf.

Gibson Said Nothing.

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—Within official advice that the sentence of Charles Gibson, convicted murderer, did not reach Sheriff Fred Nicol and other officials of the law against, Mr. Clancy, governor of the jail, concluded that the sentence organized in consequence to the government, the information received from the press.

Gibson was at first informed of the action as the part of the young man when the news was conveyed to him, he is very unemotional. He made no comment, but it was noticed that he was greatly relieved.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibson, parents of the prisoner, received the first intimation of the commutation when the Cabinet Council had decided to exercise clemency. They were deeply touched by the message. "It is a great day," exclaimed Mr. Gibson when he was assured that definite news had been received of the commutation of his son's sentence. "Yes," added Mrs. Gibson, "we have been waiting for this during the last eighteen months. We are exceedingly thankful. We can never repay the people of Canada for what they have done," said the father.

FOUND DEAD ON HIS COUCH

The funeral of the late Wm. Bell, of Toronto, son of ex-chief-of-Police Thos Bell, formerly of Lindsay, took place this morning from the eleven o'clock G. T. R. train to Riverside Cemetery where interment took place. The family resided in Lindsay some fifteen years ago and the mother of the deceased, Mrs. Thos. Bell, was buried at Riverside Cemetery.

The late Wm. Bell was a wireman with the Lindsay exchange of the Bell Telephone Co about three years ago and was a clarionette player in the Citizens' Band. He was well known about town and had many friends who will regret to hear of his untimely death.

The pallbearers were Messrs W. F. McCarty, W. Kelcher, W. Bell, W. Brown, Jas. Bell and H. McConnell.

Rev. Jas. Walker conducted the funeral services at the grave.

The Toronto Globe has the following:

William Bell, aged thirty, 171 Woodlawn avenue, was found by his father early yesterday morning, lying dead on a couch in the dining-room of his home.

For some time he had not been well. Monday evening members of the family heard him enter his home, and thinking, when he lay down on a couch that he purposed resting for a short time, paid no attention to him and retired for the evening. The police were notified. There will be no inquest.

USE PLANKS ON COUNTY BRIDGES

Warning to Owners Of Traction Engines

County Police Magistrate F. D. Moore, K. C., was in Coboconk this week where he fined a traction engine owner $5.00 for crossing one of the county bridges without first laying planks. The accused pleaded guilty, but claimed that the bridge was not damaged and also that other engine owners crossed the bridge without laying planks.

The Magistrate pointed out that the statutes dealing with this matter would be strictly enforced. Planks must be laid by all traction engine owners or owners of roadmaking machinery.

The attention of owners of Traction Engines, and Machinery for the construction of Roadways, is called to the Provisions of the Statutes of Ontario which are applicable to the crossing of Bridges and Culverts.

Before crossing any bridge or culvert it shall be the duty of the person or persons proposing to run any traction engine or machinery to lay down on such bridge or culvert planks of such sufficient width and thickness as may be necessary to fully protect the flooring or surface of such bridge or culvert from any injury that might otherwise result therefrom from the contact of the wheels of such engine or machinery, and in default thereof the person in charge and the owner, if any, shall be liable to the Municipality for all damage resulting to the flooring or surface of such bridge or culvert as aforesaid.

In addition to the protection of the floor or surface, if the engine or machinery weighs eight (8) tons or over such person or persons shall strength en the bridge or culvert at his or their own expense, and keep the same in repair so long as they use the highway for such purpose.

Note. Apart from damage. If any person shall contravene the Act, the offender shall incur a penalty of not less than than $5.00, nor more than $25.00, with costs.

POULTRY THIEVES AT THE FALLS

Fenelon Falls, Oct. 8.—The open season for poultry thieves, fruit pilferers, etc., began last week. One of the first victims being Mrs. R. Lee, south of the river, who had a number of fine fowl stolen one night recently. Several cellars have also been visited by sneak thieves, and householders who have laid in a supply of canned fruit, jam, jellies, pickles, etc., should be warned to take time by the forelock and secure their winter supply of fruit against the attacks of these marauders.

SAW CHARGE OF LIGHT BRIGADE

Mr. Neill of Atherley, Ont., Old Veteran

In a cottage at Atherley, Ont., there lives a veteran of the British army named Neill, who fought in the Crimean war and the Indian mutiny. He is generally to be found on a seat outside his cottage, and is always ready to recount his adventures.

He is slightly deaf, a defect which he dates from the battle of Balaklava, when he lay under the heavy guns and witnessed the charge of the Light Brigade.

Neill was invalided home. He has now a silver plate in his skull as a result of a wound, and was stationed at Windsor. He tells an interesting story of the late Queen Victoria. While he was on sentry duty one morning the Queen came out to walk down to the river. Neill presented arms, but the next sentry, a Highlander, did not move.

"Good morning, soldier," said the Queen.

"Good morning miss," replied the sentry. "I hope you are very well."

He afterwards confessed that he mistook her for one of the maids. The Queen, however, turned out to his advantage, for the Queen asked him his history, and on hearing that he was supporting an old mother in Ireland, who lived in a small cottage, she bought the farm and presented it to the woman.

Before commencing Neill relates that the Prince Consort asked him for his rifle to show to the Emperor Napoleon III, who was dining with him. Neill, being on sentry duty, of course refused, and heard Queen Victoria, who had also the carriage, reprove the prince for doing what might get the soldier into trouble.

When the mutiny broke out Neill was sent to India and entered Delhi by the Cashmere gate on the day it was stormed. The first street, he says, was lined with cases of brandy, left by the mutineers to attract the pursuing Britons. However, he kept the soldiers from the spirits until the city was taken by telling them that the brandy was poisoned.

PETITIONING THE KING

Some hot-headed leaders of the Tory party in Britain are doing their best to get King George to intervene in their favor in opposing Home Rule for Ireland. In discussing what is proposed the London Chronicle is even more outspoken than was the Westminister Gazette on a recent occasion.

"The Government have," says the Chronicle, "never wavered in their intention to place the Home Rule Bill on the statute book before they leave office. Some ill-informed Tories talk about petitioning the King to withhold his assent to the bill, and suggest that His Majesty should force a dissolution of Parliament. All this is the idle tattle of irresponsible persons who have not mastered the rudiments of our constitutional custom and practice. The King acts on the advice of his ministers. Any deviation from that salutary rule would mean chaos for the country and it might mean disaster for the crown."

Proceeding the Chronicle says:

"The Government are making all their plans on the assumption that the present Parliament will survive into the year 1915. Unless there is a fifth session—unless, that is, Mr. Asquith's administration is still in being in the opening months of 1915—the Plural Voting Bill cannot obtain the advantages of the Parliament Act, for that bill, to which the Liberals attach the greatest importance, was only passed a first time this year, and it must pass in three successive sessions before it can override the Lords' veto."

COUNCIL V. S. COMMISSION

The Kingston Whig in discussing municipal government says that the close of the municipal year is approaching and the question of Council vs. Commission government is discussed academically. It cannot, or need not, be discussed in any other way, however, because commission government is out of the question. It cannot be had legally in Ontario. There is not a general law under which there can be a change of government, and it would be impossible, we trow, under the present aspect of things, to secure a special act from the legislature.

Of course, the premier of this province professes to have a profound regard for public opinion, and if the people of several towns voted in favour of commission government Sir Cames Whitney would hardly say they could not have it. The Windsor Record and Woodstock Sentinel have been giving the subject some attention. The Record thinks the council would be very much improved if the people gradually took a larger and wider interest in public affairs. The Sentinel regards the commission as superior because it trained men for civic service. The advantage does not lie so much in the longer term or in the pay, as in the fact that commissioners take the offices for which they are best fitted, and retain them year after year, while the council will persist in changing its committees every year, and in contributing by this changing to their manifest inefficiency.

The Record thinks that pay would make our members of the council more devoted, and that the expenditure would be profitable. The Whig does not think so. The council system fails to arouse the interest which obtains in Britain, and fails to carry with it the sense of responsibility and integrity which are apparent in England. Pay would arouse the spirit of cupidity and it would wreck instead of improve the council plan government.

THE FIGHT AT CHATAUGUAY

In the bye-election at Chateauguay, according to the Montreal Telegraph, the Tory campaigners are still hard at work endeavoring to create the impression that there is a split in the Liberal ranks, that the division is full of the enemies of Mr. Fisher, and that the old champions of the people's cause are all turning against the new candidate. This is exactly what might have been predicted. It is all a part of the Tory tactics, as are the campaign piers in the river between Chateauguay and Ste. Martine, and as are the promises which are beginning to roll into the division in such plentitude of wonderful public works which will never materialise.

But while Liberals will not be misled by these obvious "turning movements" of the Tory strategists, they must be under no mistake as to the necessity of rallying one and all to the support of the champion of their cause. They have in Mr. Fisher not only a candidate of whom they may be proud, but one who is full of energy and fight. They must realize, however, that whatever may be the tactics which the Hon. Bob Rogers and his election experts will stoop to—and other by-elections in which Mr. Rogers has had a directing hand will give the clue to what those tactics may be—neither Mr. Fisher nor any of his supporters will respond in kind. Their fight, and the issue they will present will be a straight and clear-out one between Liberalism and all that it implies for a self-governing and democratic nation, on the one hand, and a plutocratic, and grossly extravagant Government on the other hand. We may be sure that every device which the Hon. Bob Rogers and his gang of experts can possibly bring into action to turn public opinion against the ex-Minister of Agriculture will be utilised. It behoves Liberals, therefore, to combat the Hon. Bob's "Manitoba Methods" by enthusiastic, whole-hearted, and generous support for the Liberal champion.

AFTER MINISTER OF EDUCATION

The Daily Standard (Independent Conservative), which has protested vigorously against the recent change in the bilingual regulations of the Province, and has gone so far as to call for the resignation of Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, throws some valuable light on the quesyion generally in a two-column editorial leader Saturday.

Desirous of obtaining information as to the manner of handling the foreign school population of New York State and Massachusetts, into which latter State thousands of French-Canadians have gone, the Standard has been in communication with the State superintendents of education at Albany and at Boston, and has put to them a number of leading questions.

The first question was: "Is the language of instruction in the education of foreign children confined to English?" In both cases the answer was "Yes." Then in order that there should be no misunderstanding possible in Ontario on the point, the further question was put: "Are the teachers obliged to speak the foreign tongues so as to instruct the children?" The answer again in both cases was "No."

Desiring, then, to meet the Ontario argument that confining the language of instruction to English would be a hardship on the children, the question was asked: "How long does it take the foreign children to learn English so as to make themselves understood?" The Boston reply is: "From three months to two years," and the Albany one: "These foreign children pick up the English language very rapidly." No hardship is evidently found.

Finally, the direct questions were asked, which may be regarded as the most important of all, "Do you think it necessary to have a bilingual system?" and "Would not a bilingual system retard rather than hasten to the education?" The Boston answer is, "No" to the first, and "Yes" to the second. The Albany reply is, "I do not regard it necessary to have a bilingual system, and think that such system would retard rather than facilitate instruction in the English branches."

Commenting on the information thus obtained by it, the Standard pointedly asks why, before he made the recent changes, Hon. Dr. Pyne did not seek such facts, that he might be informed of how similar problems are solved elsewhere, and then concludes its article by declaring that: "It is quite evident that he is not the proper person to be Minister of Education of this Province. He should withdraw from or be forced out of the Government, and with him should go these new-fangled bilingual regulations that have caused all the present trouble."

Mutilation of Shade Trees

In legislation for the protection of shade and street trees, the Province of Ontario sets a good example or the rest of the Dominion. Under the Tree Planting Act of the Province of Ontario, trees planted or left standing on the public highways (and also on toll roads) become the property of the owner of the land adjacent to the highway and nearest to such trees. Thus any company or individual destroying or damaging in any way (even tying a horse to) such trees without the owner's consent, is liable to a fine not to exceed $25 and costs, or imprisonment for not more than thirty days, half of the fine to go to the informant. Telephone companies, who, in the stringing of wires, very often seriously injure and mutilate shade trees, are apt to justify themselves to the property owners by asserting their legal right to do such "pruning," because of established precedent. In this case, no such practice, however long it has been tolerated by property holders, becomes legally justifiable, and such companies are just as liable for damages the last time they injure the trees as they are the first time. However long a wire may have been attached to a tree, the owner, if he has property in the tree, can compel its removal.

CAN ASK COMPENSATION

While even the owner may not remove shade trees without the consent of the municipal council, yet, on the other hand, not even the municipal council may remove any live trees without the consent of the owner of the property in front of which the tree stands, unless such tree is within thirty feet of other trees, and even then the owner must be given at least two days' notice, and can demand compensation if he has planted and protected such tree.

The property-owner who is aware of his rights in these respects, will take greater interest in and greater care of the trees bordering the highway opposite his property. He will also have more incentive to plant shade trees.

An optimist is a man who lays by a little sunshine for a rainy day.

GOOD BLOOD THE SECRET OF HEALTH

To be Healthy You Must Keep the Blood Rich, Red and Pure.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful in any disease caused by thin or impure blood, and the list of such diseases is astonishingly large. Anaemia literally means a condition in which the blood is thin and watery. Chlorosis is a form of anaemia most common to growing girls. In rheumatism the blood becomes thin more rapidly than in any other disease. After an attack of la grippe or acute fevers the blood is always thin and impure, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the tonic to use during convalescence. When the blood is poor and thin the stomach suffers. The food ferments, gas and certain acids form and the trouble is pronounced indigestion or dyspepsia. The nerves receive from the blood all of their nourishment to keep up their energy and repair waste or damage. Some forms of paralysis are caused by thin blood. The progress of locomotor ataxia is stopped in many cases when the blood is made pure, rich and red. This is only a partial list of the troubles having their origin in impure, watery blood, and all can be cured by supplying the blood with its missing constituents.

This is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. Their chief mission is to make rich, red blood, and this good blood reaches every organ and every nerve in the human body, thus driving out disease and bringing renewed health and strength to thousands of weak, despondent people.

Ask your neighbors. There is not an inhabited corner in Canada where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not restored some sufferer, and all over this country there are grateful people who do not hesitate to say they owe health—in some cases life itself—to this great medicine. If you are ailing begin to cure yourself today by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

AUTO ACCIDENT ON SUNDAY

An automobile accident, which might have been attended with fatal results, occurred on Sunday near Osaca, a little hamlet near Garden Hill and on the C. N. Railway.

Two automobiles, said to have belonged to Peterboro parties, were heading for Bowmanville Sunday morning. One of the cars crossed a bridge over a creek near Osaca safely, but the other auto containing four occupants, two ladies and two gentlemen, mounted the railing of the bridge and took a plunge into the stream. In some miraculous manner the car was prevented from turning turtle, and stood straight up in the stream. Those in the first car happened to look back just as the accident occurred, and hurried to the scene. They found that while the occupants of the car had been tossed with some force, only one of the ladies had sustained serious injuries.

Mr. D. Cinnamon, of Lindsay was on his way to Orono, when notified of the accident by a resident of the district. He hurried to the scene in order to render what assistance he could, and found the injured lady propped up with cushions and suffering great pain. The clothes worn by the occupants had been thoroughly soaked in the stream, and were hanging up to dry. The point where the accident occurred was in a deep ravine with a steep slope leading to the bridge. It is supposed the car, which was a new Ford, struck a stone on the road, thereby causing it to swerve and plunge into the creek. Mr. Cinnamon believes that the car, in its headlong plunge, caught on a post, as its wheels were resting with the mouth of the auto down in the water. He firmly believes that had the car turned turtle not one of the quartette would have escaped alive.

The owner of the car had been running the machine about a week. The party had been at Garden Hill, and intended going to Bowmanville. They had lost their way and had taken the worst route to reach that town.

Ald. Duffis, of Peterboro, had been phoned for and he arrived with his car to take the party to Peterboro. Arrangements had also been made to secure a derrick in order to lift the car, which was not very badly damaged, from the creek.

The Post called up Peterboro this morning, but was unable to gain any information regarding whom the parties were or the extent of the injuries sustained by the lady referred to.

Six Months in Central Prison

Patrick Cusack, a rosy cheeked son of the Emerald Isle, was arrested by Chief Chilton and Constable Parks near the G. T. R. iron bridge last night. There were nasty rumors afloat regarding Cusack's conduct in that section and it was felt that the man was better behind the bars.

At the police couet this morning it was brought out that Cusack was given instructions to leave town about a month ago, but did not take the hint. He is an able-bodied man well able to do a good day's work, but has no love for manual labor. According to his own statement he has been in jail several times in the United States.

Police Magistrate Jackson handed him a six months' sentence in the Central Prison, the charge preferred against him being vagrancy.

WORKING ON RECENT BURGLARY

The local police are still busily engaged trying to round up the parties implicated in the recent burglaries.

There is no doubt whatever that the parties who operated in Lindsay early Friday morning also burglarized the Orillia stores on Wednesday night or early Thursday morning. They had plenty of time to reach Lindsay on one of the many freights coming down from the north. Chief Chilton was in communication with Orillia's Chief of Police on Saturday, when a description of several suspicious characters seen in that town was given him, and which tallies with the description of two men who left Lindsay Friday morning bound for Whitby. The information was also received from Orillia that the hardware store burglarized handled a line of knives and chisels similar to the articles found in Lindsay. Chief Chilton will forward them to Orillia for identification.

On Saturday Chief Chilton found two large hammers belonging to Mr. D. Cinnamon, and which were used by the crooks—one near the G.T.R. station and the other near Maunder's mill.

The [illegible] have strong hopes of being able to fix the burglaries on the right parties. There is a growing belief that the burglars were assisted by several local characters, who bear unsavory reputations.

Killenbeck and Landry, the two Peterboro men who were arrested on Friday night, will come up for hearing on Friday next. They are held as suspects, and from here it looks as they would have a difficult time explaining their movements in a manner satisfactory to the police.

Many vigorous men waste a lot of perfectly good energy in making fools of themselves.

Fire Destroyed Hardwood Pile

Saturday afternoon a big column of smoke was seen in the north by residents of Cameron and Fenelon Falls, but no information could be had whether it was some farmer's buildings or merely a bush fire. It turned out to be a big pile of split hardwood piled alongside the G. T. R. tracks about three miles from Burnt River. It was being held there for loading to take to the nearest market.

red lips parting in a smile of recognition. There was no reservation, no restraint in that quick greeting, as she whirled by; he could not fail to comprehend its full significance—she had not forgotten, had no desire to forget. What he imagined he read in her face swept all else from his mind instantly, and, with eager eyes, he followed her slight, girlish figure as they circled the hall. The music ceased, and he still watched as the lad led her to a seat, himself sinking into a chair beside her. Then the passing out of several men, who declined return checks, claimed his attention. When the last of these had disappeared, he glanced again in her direction. She was alone, and her young partner was walking toward him across the deserted floor. The lad came to the door, which by now contained few loiterers, and stood there a moment gazing out into the street.

"Are you Sergeant Hamlin?" he asked quietly.

"Yes."

"Miss McDonald requested me to hand you this note unobserved. I have no knowledge of its contents."

Hamlin felt the flutter of the paper in his palm, and stood silent, clinging to it, as the officer carelessly recrossed the room. She was looking toward him, but he made no motion to unfold the missive, until his eyes, searching the chairs, had located Mrs. Dupont. The very secret of delivery made him cautious, made him suspect it had to do with that woman. She was beside the bandstand, still conversing with the Major, apparently oblivious to any other presence, her face turned aside. Assured of this, he opened the paper, and glanced at the few hastily scribbled lines.

"I trust you, and you must believe I do not act without reason. Delay the intermission be in the hotel parlor."

CHAPTER XIX.

A Full Confession.

There were two more dances scheduled on the program. The last of these had begun before the infantry sergeant returned, and, apologizing for his long absence, resumed his duties as the dance. Across the room, Hamlin's eyes met those of Miss McDonald, where she danced with an unknown officer; then he turned and elbowed his way to the street. The hotel opposite was all bustle and confusion, the bar-room crowded with the thirsty emergency waiters who had trailed about the ball completing final preparations. The Sergeant, intent on his purpose, and aware that the band had ceased playing, dodged past these and entered the parlor. It was already occupied by four men, who were playing cards at a small, round table and smoking vigorously, entirely engrossed in their game. None of them so much as glanced up, and the intruder hesitated an instant, quickly determining his course of action. There was little choice left. The girl would never make an appointment with him except through necessity, and it was manifestly his duty to prevent her from observation. Two of the men sitting there were strangers; the others he knew merely by sight, a tin-horn gambler called Charlie, and a sutler's clerk. His decision was swift, and characteristic.

"Gents," he said, stepping up, and tapping the table sharply, "you'll have to remove from here."

"This Porch Is Going to Be Vacated Inside of One Minute."

"What the hell—" the gambler looked up into the gray eyes, and stopped.

"That's all right, Charlie," went on Hamlin coolly, one hand at his belt. "Those are my orders, and they go. Bird a room upstairs if you want to keep on with the game. Pick up the stuff, you fellows."

"But see here," the speaker was about to plus last protesting. "The old man told us we could come in here."

"The old man's word don't go for this floor tonight, partner. It's rented by the post officers. Now mosey right along, and don't come back unless you are looking for trouble—you too, Pat, I say."

Right or wrong there was plainly no use continuing the argument, for Hamlin's fingers were upon the butt of his revolver, and his eyes hardened at the delay. The gambler's inclination was to oppose this summary dismissal, but a glance at his crowd convinced him he would have to play the hand alone, so he yielded reluctantly, swept the chips into the side pocket of his coat and departed, leaving behind him a trail of profanity. The Sergeant smiled, but remained motionless until the disappointed

"The bluff works," he thought serenely, "unless they make a kick at the officers in charge of the ball."

He stepped over to the window, and held back the curtain. A lonely figure occupied the bench, with feet upon the rail. Even in that outside dimness he could distinguish a hint of color. The very man, and the Sergeant chuckled quietly at the thought. Some hope that the fellow might create a row. Nothing at that moment could have pleased him better. He leaned out the parlor light, partially closed the door, and stepped forth on to the porch.

"Say, you," he said gruffly, dropping one hand heavily on the officer's shoulder. "Did you hear what I said to those fellows inside? Well, I'm sent here the same. Pack up, and clear the deck."

"We" dropped his feet to the floor and stood up, his bearded lips growling. Hamlin saw that his gripped his wrist, and the man stopped, his mouth still open, staring into the Sergeant's face. All trace of anger seemed to desert him instantly.

"Who—who—who, so?" and he stepped back farther into the shadow.

"I do, if you need to know," replied Hamlin, with a glance toward Seventh Cavalry.

"Oh!" the exclamation came from between clenched teeth. "Hell, I'm you started me."

"I see; nervous disposition, I reckon. Well, are you going quietly, or will I boost you over the rail?"

"I had an appointment here."

"Can't help that, partner. This porch is now the property of Seventh Cavalry, for a minute, or there is a declaration of war. Your easiest way out is through that vestibule, but you have to by rail if you prefer."

"Well, I guess I wanted half his allowed time in an effort to bluster; then, to Hamlin's utter disgust, shook through the window sill and across the darkened parlor.

"The gentlemanness cuss," the latter muttered, "he's worse than a cur dog. Blamed if he wasn't actually afraid of me. A fire-eater—eight!" He lifted his voice, as "Hab" passed in the light of the hall beyond and glanced back, a flat doubled and upliftted, "Oh, go on! Sure, you'll get me! You are the brave boy, now," and Hamlin strode toward the door threatening. "Lope along, son, and don't turn around to look in my face the bar."

He drew the door partially to again, and sat down facing the opening, where a stray beam of light fell across the floor. The day had given ture had scarcely proven interesting. Hamlin had anticipated a deal of actual disappointment. The dispersal of the card players was, as anticipated, easily managed, but the reputation of "Reb" as killer and bad man had given him hope of trouble, and the fellow had proven a perfect lamb. Hamlin crossed his legs and waited, his mind divided in wonder between what Miss McDonald might want, and the conviction of the fellow just driven out. The man was actually afraid—afraid to attack him. Yet he had got to his feet with that intention, and was only after he had looked into Hamlin's face and read in it what he was to gain to hedge and draw back. Could he have recognized him? Could Mrs. Dupont have warned him of danger in his direction? That would seem impossible, for the woman had not been with him for even a minute since their conversation. She had given him a swift signal at the door of the dance hall, but that could scarcely account for his present desire to avoid trouble. As engagement? Probably with Mrs. Dupont. But what was the use of speculating? Sooner or later the girl came she would have some light to throw on these matters. Surely her sudden determination to see him privately must have connection with this affair.

These thoughts came swiftly, for his period of waiting proved to be but a short one. He heard the laughter and talk as the merry-makers came into the hotel from the dance hall, crowding the passage, and thronging in to where the tables were set. Then a rattle of dishes, and the steady shuffling of waiters rushing back and forth, momentarily he could distinguish a shadow out in the hall, but never changed his motionless posture, or removed his eyes from the open door, until she slipped noiselessly through and closed the panel behind him, and leaned clasping the knob of the door. Apparently in the semi-darkness of this room she was uncertain of his presence, while her white dress touched by the outside reflection made her clearly visible.

"It is all right, Miss McDonald," he murmured hastily, arising. "There is nothing to fear."

"You are here—alone?"

"Yes," smiling in memory, "there were occupants when I was arrived, but you have permitted to depart. I had a suspicion you might prefer it that way."

"Yes," puzzled by his manner, yet softly pushing the door back so as to exclude the light. "I can see better now. Are—are you sure no one can overhear? I have something to tell you—something important."

"There is no one else here, yet some one might assemble into this room. It is not private, you know, for doors are so safer on the porch outside. Will you take my hand, and let me guide you?"

She did so unhesitatingly, but her fingers trembled, and he could feel the twitching of her nerves.

"You are frightened—not of me, surely?"

"Oh, no!" a slight catch in her voice, "but I am nervous and a trifle tenderness. I—I had to protect a lad who was trying to get away. You must condemn me until you know why I came."

"Condemn? Hardly, Miss McDonald. I am merely a soldier receiving orders; mine not to question why. Here is the window; now sit down on this bench. I'll keep guard, and listen." His voice took lower, a kind touch of tenderness in it responsible to discipline. "Are you in trouble? Is it something I can aid you to overcome?"

She did not answer at once but rested her chin in one hand, and turned her eyes away. Her breath came swiftly, as though she had just recovered from fright, and her face in the dim light looked white and drawn.

"We Were Engaged to Be Married," He Acknowledged Frankly.

"Yes, you can," she began slowly. "I am sure you can. I—I came to you because there is no one else whom I felt the same confidence. I know that sounds strange, but I cannot explain—only it seems natural to trust some people even when you do not know them very well. I do not suppose I know you very well; just a few hours we were together, but—somehow I think you are true. I'd certainly hope so," he put in earnestly. "I couldn't very well help being—with you."

"I believe that," and she lifted her eyes to his face.

"Yet I do not wish you to think me bold, or—or indifferent. You do not think so, do you?"

"That idea has never once occurred to me, Miss McDonald. I am only too glad to be of service."

"It is good of you to say that; you see, there was no one else."

"Your father?" he suggested.

"But that is the very trouble," she insisted, rejoicing that he had thus unconsciously opened the way to her confession. "It is because my father is involved, is completely in her toils, that I am compelled to appeal to you. He will not listen to a word against her."

"Her? You refer to Mrs. Dupont?"

"Of course; why, I hadn't mentioned her name! How did you guess?"

"Because I am not entirely ignorant of conditions," he answered soberly. "Although I have only been with the post a short time, I have managed to see and hear a good deal. You have not a chance to become involved in the shooting of Lieutenant Gaskins, and then I saw you riding with Mrs. Dupont, and recognized her."

"Recognized?" in surprise. "Do you actually mean you knew her before?"

"Not as Mrs. Dupont, but as Vera Carson, years ago. She knew me, too, once, and sent your driver over to the barracks with a note."

"Why, how strange. She asked me so many questions, I wondered at the interest shown. Do you mind telling me what the note was about?"

"Not in this least. She referred to the past, and asked me to meet her."

"Were you—very intimate? Great friends?"

"We were engaged to be married," he acknowledged frankly, his eyes upon her. "That was at the breaking out of the war, and I was in my senior college year. We were in school, and I was supposed to be the boy in large property. She is a beautiful woman, and she was a large girl then. I thought her as good as gold, and was quite enamored. Then I have learned her sudden—disappearance. Yet it was my money which attracted her, and she got rich by loved another man, a cavalryman."

She glanced up at him as he paused, but he resumed the story without being interrupted.

"The war came, and I enlisted at once, and received a commission. Almost our entire class went, and the man she really loved was next spoken to me in rank."

"Dorsey—I forget!"

"Yes; how did you know? Oh, I told you of him out there in the sandhills. Well, I urged her to marry me before I went to the front, but she made excuse. Later, I understood the reason. She was uncertain as to my inheritance, the property of an uncle. We were ordered to the Army of Northern Virginia. Once I went home on furlough, and was wounded. We were to be married then, but I had a letter from her, received when I was suddenly ordered back to the front. I did suspect then, for the first time, that I had been jilted for a richer, and afterwards discovered that during all this time she was in correspondence with Dorsey, and he was then detailed on Early's staff. It was his influence which brought about my sudden, unexpected duty. I fell at Cedar Creek, and later I was promoted major, and, at Dabney's Mill, found myself commanding the regiment. Early in the action Le Pevre brought me an order; it was delivered verbally, but only other men ever present a corporal named Shults, who was hiding behind little English Early's exact words were delivered at once across the creek, and engagement was opened, I was wounded, and man will move immediately. Deeper than ever the suspicion had appeared, there was nothing in the order as given to arouse suspicion. In obedience I turned my command forward, leaving them on foot. We charged into a trap, and the regiment was annihilated, and Shults was either killed or made prisoner. Two days later I was arrested under charges of treason, court-martial, and dismissed from the service in disgrace. Early produced a copy of his written order; it contained nothing to feel the enemy's position, and Le Pevre would not deny that and swore the original had been delivered to him. I had no witnesses."

"And she—Mrs. Vera Carson?"

The man laughed bitterly.

"Wrote him a letter, which the man actually had the nerve to show me when I was helpless, proving her alibi. I presided that I was a fool, and back seeking her. But she had departed—no one knew where—but had left enough behind to show that she had been erased from my uncle's will. We moved, and I heard that she married Le Pevre in Richmond."

"And she—that woman—actually asked you to meet her again tonight?"

"Yes."

"Did you?"

"I must plead guilty."

"Where?"

"Here; just where we are now; we were together half an hour."

She half arose to her feet, her hand grasping his.

"But I cannot understand. Why, why would she do so?"

"Not, well," he interrupted, venturing to touch her arm. "I came, not because I was interested in her, Miss Molly—but for you."

CHAPTER XX.

Molly Tells Her Story.

Her breath came in a little sob, and she sank back upon the bench.

"For me! How do you mean?"

"Surely I had every reason to distrust her, to suspect her motives, and I could not believe you realized the extent of wrong she had felt it my duty to discover her purpose here, and to warn you if possible."

"Then you succeeded! You learned her purpose in your interview?"

"Not exactly," with regret. "My suspicion was merely stimulated. To be frank, to speak plainly, I came for a renewal of our old quarrel. However, between what she said, and parts of a letter I secured afterwards, I know there is a blackmailing conspiracy on foot which has you as its involved. May I speak very frankly?"

"I certainly desire it," promptly. "I am sure I shall not have anything to conceal."

"Apparently the scheme these people have on foot centers around Lieutenant Gaskins. He is wealthy, I understand."

"I have been told so; yes, I know he is."

"This knowledge, coupled with the fact of your engagement—"

"My what?"

"Your engagement. I had heard it rumored before, and Mrs. Dupont assured me it was true."

"But it is not true, Sergeant Hamlin"—indignantly. "I cannot imagine how such a report ever arose. Lieutenant Gaskins has been very fine and—and—I mean he is breaking slightly, even asked me to marry him, I suppose, but I told him that was impossible. I like him very much, of course, in a way, but there is nothing, absolutely nothing, between us. I have never spoken about such a thing before to anyone."

If Hamlin's heart leaped wildly at this, it was not from any sense of evidence of it in his quiet voice.

"The point is, Miss Molly, that Mrs. Dupont, and those associated with her, think otherwise. They are presuming on your love for you. In love with you, Mrs. Dupont can be very amiable. Little by little she has drawn the lieutenant into her net, and he was engaged to you. They have him now where he must pay money for silence or be exposed, and see how it was worked. I do not know. The absolutely base part was done to coachen him they were serious. The fact that Gaskins later denied knowing who his assailants were—even endeavored to excuse me—is abundant proof of their success." He hesitated, wondering at her silence. "What puzzles me most is why you were present."

"Present? Where?"

"At this quarrel with Gaskins last evening. As I ran by toward the scene of the shooting I passed you hiding in the angle of the barrage wall. Or, at least, I have reason to think so."

"Why, I—I have mentioned the fact to no one. That was why I made no attempt to defend myself when arrest came."

She gasped for breath, scarcely able to articulate.

"You believe that? You think that of me?"

"I may have been deceived; I hope so; there was but little light, and I saw merely a glimpse," he explained hastily.

"You were deceived," impetuously "I was not out of the house that evening. I was in the parlor with my father when those shots were fired. You are sure you saw a woman there—also?"

"There is no doubt of that; her face gleaming plainly to be seen in the morning. This discovery, together with the size of the weapon used, mentioned to my immediate release. I saw her, and imagined her to be you. I cannot account for the mistake, unless you were in my mind, and possibly what I had heard of your conduct with Gaskins. Then it must have been Mrs. Dupont. That looks probable, for she also stays at your home, does she not?"

"She makes our house her headquarters, and is almost occasionally there at night she was here at this hotel. Well, we are getting this straightened out a little—that is, if you believe me."

"Of course."

"Then I am going to question you. You spoke of overhearing a conversation?"

NAVIGATION ON UPPER SCUGOG

With a view to improving navigation on the Upper Scugog and Scugog Lake, and the Trent Valley, the government of the present ministry privilege at Lindsay. Town Clerk Harris of Port Perry informed the council last night in order to secure their cooperation in the project. He represented the Trent Valley Association of Port Perry, which was endeavoring to secure the assistance of every municipality along the waters in order to secure an even level on the lake. Mr. Harris said that the Scugog was practically the only outlet through to Lindsay, and if the stretch was a section of the Trent Valley Canal, it was to Lindsay's interests as well as to Port Perry's that navigation should be improved. The Conservation Association had been asked by other municipalities that they would cooperate, and they wished Lindsay council to do the same. Petitions to be forwarded to Ottawa asking the government to place a sufficient sum in the estimates for the coming year, the present milling privileges at Lindsay. The Co. could operate their plant by electrical power. At present the water in the lake and dam is very low. Evaporation has taken a great deal of it, killing fish as well as navigation. The plan of the Conservation Association was also to keep the channel clear, have it properly dredged, and keep the water at such a level that not only navigation be improved, but the purity of the water as well. Lindsay obtained its water supply from the Scugog, and it was of the utmost importance that its purity be maintained. Mr. Harris, in conclusion said he would like Lindsay to send a deputation along with the delegates from the other municipalities who would visit Ottawa at a date to be decided, and to press their claims upon the Government. Mr. Harris also submitted the following resolution which the council will consider at another meeting:—

Whereas, the people residing in the neighborhood of Lake Scugog are entitled to the benefit of the navigation system of the Trent Valley Canal

And whereas for many years the water level of Lake Scugog has been allowed to vary greatly to the detriment of the interests of all parties residing on the margin thereof, with the result that navigation has been continually impeded and in a large measure and in many places prevented altogether, while at times large areas of mud have been exposed to offer great danger to the health of the people.

And whereas considerable commercial interests are involved in the summer tourist traffic, which greatly fallen off owing to the obstruction of the fish during winters when the level of the lake has been very low.

And whereas the town of Lindsay get their water supply from Lake Scugog and whereas when the water in the lake is low, the purity of the water is impaired and the health of out citizens is endangered

And whereas the great fluctuations of the water level has been caused on the side of the water at the Lindsay dam

The municipal council of the Town of Lindsay hereby resolve that it be represented to the Government on behalf of the said town that the interests of the residents thereof, and other upon or near Lake Scugog require that the dam at Lindsay be taken out of private hands by the purchase thereof by the government to the intent that it may be used in the public interest, so that the water of Lake Scugog may be kept at a moderate and even level.

READ OBITUARY MET MOURNERS

Owing to the confusion of the names of two railway engineers, both in charge of different trains in Lindsay, Mr. Jas. Murray, 52 McMurray street, West Toronto, a C.P.R. engineer, had the unusual experience of reading a notice of his own death.

It seems that when the message of the death of Engineer Murray, a Toronto man, while at duty in the engine cab at Lindsay was received, it was by a mistake sent to the McMurray street address instead of to the residence of Mr. David R. Murray, 81 Pearson avenue. The latter was the Grand Trunk engineer who had succumbed to an attack of heart failure. To complicate matters Dave Murray had shortly before left on a run to Lindsay in charge of a C.P.R. train. Later the mistake was discovered, and a telegram sent to the relatives of Mr. David R. Murray at Pearson avenue.

"The mistake caused a lot of trouble," said Mr. Jas. Murray, of Metcalf, at the McMurray street address. "I was kept busy answering the door for would-be mourners. When the train arrived from Lindsay I sent my boy over to confirm the message, but the man who was reported dead stepped off very sprightly alive. His sister could hardly believe that he was absent. Fortunately no arrangements had been made for the funeral."

Built Two Sides

Mr. Walter Curtis, of Ops, has recently built a two sides—one for himself and one on the farm of Mr. Joseph Meehan which are a credit to him. They were constructed of plank and are large and roomy.

OBITUARY

THE LATE H. B. BEALL

The funeral of the late Herbert Pelton Beall will take place from the residence of his father, Mr. G. W. Beall, Albert-st., on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 4th, at 1 o'clock to the Riverside cemetery. Services at the house at 2.30 o'clock.

The death of Herbert Pelton Beall has evoked expressions of keenest regret on all sides. Up until a few months ago deceased resided in Ottawa, when he moved to Lindsay. He was a man of splendid character and who held in the highest esteem by a wide circle of acquaintances. To the sorrowing wife and children, his father and other relatives, the sincere sympathy of the community is extended.

WM. J. COX.

Minden Echo—Cox of the prominent and highly respected farmers of Uxbridge passed away at his home on Wednesday evening, Sept. 3, 1913 in the person of Mr. Wm. John Cox, aged 59 years, 9 months and 4 days.

Deceased had been in a critical condition for a few weeks, and was warned by his doctors to be very careful, in fact, he was committed to bed, but being a little overanxious for the prompt resumption of his duties on the farm, kept at the various duties until the last week, when lack of strength forbade him. Fever overcomed him and he passed to his reward on the ab ove date.

Mr. Cox had purchased the farm on which he died, lot 7, con. 12, Reach township, some y ears ago, and kept the Marsh Hill p ost office. As a worker in the Methodist church he will be greatly m issed, being ready at all times to a ssist in that which helped his Master. He was Conservative in p olitics.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife, mother, four sisters, and five brothers. His mot her, Mrs. Ord, of Biggar, S ask., his sisters, Mrs. Geo. F. Brown, of Lindsay, Mrs. Fred Graham, of Biggar, Sask., Mrs. Robt. Archer, of Minden, and Mrs. Wm. McNeil, both of Minden; his brothers Joseph, Atkinson, of Biggar, Sask., Matthias, Mark, and Bill, all of Biggar, Sask.

Much sympathy is expressed for the sorrowing widow, and several orphan children, of whom Mr. and Mrs. Cox were guardians, who were very much attached to them for their great kindness to them.

The funeral, one of the largest known in the history of Uxbridge, was conducted from the family residence to the church on Friday afternoon, thence to Bethel cemetery, Green Bank, for interment.

The pall bearers were Mr. Geo. F. Brown, of Lindsay, brother-in-law of the deceased, Messrs. Geo. Longfield, Roy Gaston, R. Smith and Walter Scott.

JAMES JOHNSTON

Uptergrove, Oct. 2—Many heard with regret, but not surprise, of the death of one of the pioneers of this township, in the person of the late James Johnston, of Rathburn. Mr. Johnston, who was son of the late Murdo Johnston, (founder of Knox church here), was always highly respected by all who knew him, and had took place from his late residence to Knox church, when Rev. Mr. Kachevski preached from the text, "So Moses, the servant of the Lord, died," etc. The funeral was largely attended, amongst those from a distance being Mr. L. Johnston, of Markham, and Mr. H. S. Johnston, of Lindsay. The pallbearers were Mr. D. McKinnon, of Orillia, and Messrs. D. Calderwood, D. Elder, of Mackenzie, J. Mulvihill and M. McDonald, of Rathburn. Mr. Johnston leaves to mise, his widow, three sons and three daughters, and two brothers, Capt. L., of Orillia, and William, of this place.

PRISONER WILL BE DEPORTED

(From Tuesday's Post.

There were two cases before Magistrate Jackson this morning.

The first one to receive his medicine was Chas. Marr, the young son of Scotia, who swiped Chief Chilton's revolver while the Chief was giving him a second chance to make good on another charge. This morning he answered to two charges, that of theft and of vagrancy. He got two months on each to run concurrently in the County Gaol. In the meantime means will be taken to have him deported to his native sod as he has been in Canada only two or three months.

Laurence Gordon McPhee whose "nickname" is McLaughlin, was up before the Magistrate again this morning for vagrancy. This is the man who has been in the Rose Hospital ever since circus day on account of getting nearly killed by a brick on the head with a stake in the hands of another circus employee. He claims to have no knowledge of who hit him and says that he hails from the great U. S. of America. He wants to be deported. Letters from his mother prove however, that he is a native of New Brunswick, so deportation won't go.

The vagrancy case against him was adjourned till the matter can be still further looked into. There is a doctor's bill and also a heavy expense incurred in his treatment at the Rose Hospital which has not been settled yet.

In connection with Marr's case it was stated that Bailey's name had he was employed as clerk at the Pymtown House. It appears that he was employed, and only for a short time, in another capacity. This explanation is made in justice to the present clerk.

PLEASANT POINT

(Special to The Post.)

A large number from this corner took in the rural school fair at Dunsford on Monday and speak highly of the efforts put forth by the school children to entertain the public. This year surpassed any previous gatherings of the sort in exhibits and spectators. We are glad to have secured second place for our school, it having put up second best table under the tent. This is the second year for that position, and for a small school the children are to be congratulated.

Mr. Arthur and Miss Lula Briggs of here spent Sunday with friends on the Scotch Line.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. John Burnell of North Ops, who has not been well for some time, is not improving very rapidly.

Mr. Thos. Endicott, jr., has overhauled his home, having removed the outcrop of lumber and put a new foundation under the dwelling. It has greatly improved its appearance, and will also add to the comfort of the inmates.

Potato and apple picking is the order of the day.

SATURDAY'S FIRE AT STURGEON PT.

Mrs. Walker's store and cottage was a total loss at Sturgeon Point Saturday by fire. Two boat houses belonging to Mr. J. B. Flavelle and Mr. W. Flavelle were also destroyed along with their contents, except for six small boats which Mr. Chas. Walker and Mrs. Walker managed to get out when the flames were even then in full possession. Four other small boats such as canoes and rowboats were burned.

Mrs. Walker lost everything except a number of boxes of goods which had been carted to the upper wharf waiting for the first passing tow boat to call.

All the bedding, mattresses and house furnishings were destroyed as well as a large part of the stock.

Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Annie Wallkey who were there alone had left the house for a few minutes to walk back to a farmer's for some supplies. They had spent the morning cleaning up and had left a fire rubbish in the stove which had caught fire and blazed up before it was time to get dinner. On their return from the farm they were horrified to find the cottage on fire and Miss Walkey ran all the way to Mr. Jas. Graham's, nearly a mile along the lake shore to summon help.

As it was shortly after twelve o'clock Mr. Graham had just arrived from church and drove up at full speed with Miss Graham and all the help that could be gotten. There were only four available men on the point, Jas. Graham, Wm. O'Neil, Chas. Reeves, and another man who was working with Mr. Graham or Mr. O'Neil. All the women on the Point also turned in and did great work in keeping the fire from spreading, indeed the story sounds like some old tale of pioneer days. Several of th stood out in the lake dipping up pails of water to hand along to the men fighting the fire at close range.

Miss Annie Walkey was in the water almost to her waist for nearly an hour.

The roof of Mr. A. W. Simpson's cottage next door burst into a blaze and the whole house would have gone if it had not been for the heroic work of the volunteer, amateur fire brigade.

Mr. Wm. Graham stood on the peak in the midst of the smoke and flames dashing water on the fire as the pails were handed up to him. Another member of the brigade was inside under the gable throwing water on the under side of the roof.

Persistent work finally held and the cottage was saved. Hard work also saved Mr. W. Flavelle's launch shelter and a pier. Both were scorched and part of the shelter will have to be rebuilt.

All that is left of Mrs. Walkey's place and of the boat houses is a small heap of ashes with the iron parts of the ice cream freezers, mangles, stoves and so forth scattered around.

The building was all wood and very dry and burnt like tinder.

The loss will probably be a heavy one. There is a very small insurance. The main part of the insurance expired the day of October as it runs only the months from April till October when the risk is created. No other insurance has been placed yet on the total damage.

Mrs. Walkey has several sites in view for the new building if she erects one.

President Carew Makes Statement

Mr. John Carew, President of Lindsay Central Fair, interviewed the Post on Monday and gave the lie to the account of $5.00 for a constable at the fair, which came up before the council and was referred back again to the Fair directors. Mr. Carew said the official was looking after the town as well as the Fair, and the Directors thought the town should pay the account.

Mr. Carew also took occasion to deny the statement made at a council meeting that he was paid $60 a year in his capacity as president. When the proposition was introduced by the directors, Mr. Carew said he would not accept $10 for $200 — he wanted nothing. It cost him $150 for expenses in travelling through the country to get pointers for the fair. He had agreed to accept the $60 if it went toward paying his expenses. The Central Fair was the best ever set the town had, and it did not cost the municipality a cent. He would be sorry if it would. There was no man paid but the Secretary.

A stingy man is not popular, but he usually has the price.

They Don't Drip Oil

The neatest woman that ever lived would consider a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator an ornament in her kitchen. Thats because Tubulars are neat—have no oil cups, oil holes or oil tubes to drip.

You don't need an oil can for Tubulars.

Tubulars Are Neat

To oil the Dairy Tubular simply lift the gear case lid once a week and pour a spoonful of oil right down among the gears. The oil stays there. The lubrication is perfect and never forgotten. There is no dripping on the floor. Both men and women appreciate that—and the many other exclusive fine points about Tubulars—fine points other separators don't have. Tubulars double dairy profits and cut the work in half. Come in and see the Tubular—examine it inside and out—next time your in town. Welcome to look at every piece—and the pieces are few because the Tubular is mighty simple.

Old Separators taken in exchange. We sell the Sharples Mechanical Milker.

Children Cry

FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

WM. TAMLIN

Death removed from our midst an old landmark, in the person of William Tamlin, sr. Deceased came to Canada from Cornwall, England, when a young man of twenty-one, and settled in Darlington. Not long after he joined heart and hands with Mary Strutt in marriage. The happy union was blessed with eleven children. God willed it so to take two little lambs in their infancy. Across the river they'll be beckoning the whole family home to the sweet bye and bye. The two oldest children were born in Darlington, Mrs. Nathan Rodman, deceased, died happy in Christ five years ago, and Joseph at present living in Fenelon township. Thomas and William, extensive farmers near Cambray, Mrs. Wm. Western, of Eden, Mrs. Wm. Tompkins, of Lindsay, Wesley, of Salem, Charlie of Lindsay, and John in the Northwest.

Deceased has been a resident of Mariposa for over half a century. He proved himself all through life to be a quiet, inoffensive man, a good neighbor. His word was as good as his bond, a loving husband and a tender hearted parent. In politics he was a Reformer, in religion a Bible Christian, but after the Union he still retained his Christian fellowship with the Methodists.

His loving wife and faithful helpmate departed this life five years ago, who also was a good Christian woman. After his wife's death he made his home with his son William, and there he received the kindest treatment that any parent could receive from a child. Although afflicted for a long time, he bore it with Christian resignation to the will of God and on September the 27th he fell asleep in Jesus, aged 85, as if his spirit had rested upon the pinions of a seraph and was carried into the presence of his Saviour. On the following Monday his remains were laid to rest in Eden cemetery by the side of his partner. Rev. Mr. Rowe conducted the service at the house and at the grave. The pall bearers were six grandsons, Leslie and George Western, Fred and Arthur Tamlin, and Russell and Edward Rodman. Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Tompkins, who owing to sickness was not able to be present. Mr. Stoddard had charge of the funeral, which was very largely attended.

Shall we forget ? Ah no,
For memories' golden chain
Shall bind our hearts to the hearts above
Till we meet and touch again.

HOW TO SUMMON NIGHT CONSTABLE

For the benefit of our citizens who might find it necessary to call up Constable Short during the night or early morning hours, it might be mentioned that his police whistle is at Taylor's restaurant. A phone message to the restaurant will be answered by a member of the night staff who will summon the Constable by whistle.

This whistle, which can be heard a great distance, has been at the restaurant for this purpose for the last three years. A great many of our citizens were not aware of this fact.

SELLS LIMITED ADVERTISES TOWN

The proposition of the publishing firm of Sells, Limited, London, England, which was turned down by the council at a special session on Friday night, came up again last night in a different dress, and was accepted. This firm is one of the largest of its kind in the world, and are planning a scheme for advertising Canada on a large scale. Their representative was anxious to have Lindsay written up in the production, (one page of letter press and one page illustrated for $250.00.) The firm does all the advertising for the British Government, and would have the production in which Lindsay's advantages was written up, ready for distribution in the spring. A single copy of the publication would cost $52.00.

L. J. B. Aitkens of the firm, was present last night and stated that since he had interviewed the council Friday night the Industrial Commission had guaranteed $50.00, the Library Board $30.00, and a local industry $10.00. That would make it much lighter for the council.

Ald. Irvine wanted to know if several of the local industries would not be photographed.

The representative stated that it was up to the council to put photos in they deemed best.

Mr. John Carew addressed the council in reference to the addertising scheme, which he thought the town should consider. A young man was in town in the interests of the proposition, and Mr. Carew thought that the town should favorably consider the scheme. He referred to the great benefits his firm derived from advertising, and believed that it would be money well spent if the council took space in the advertising proposition referred to. He would like to see the town advertised well. The Industrial Commission would do their share. and he was prepared personally to contribute his share in order to bring Lindsay prominently before the world. He paid $200 for space in a newspaper for one year, and the ad paid him.

Ald. Adams said that while he had considered the proposition a good one, he had not supported it on Friday night on account of the scarcity of money. Owing to the guarantees received, however, it made it much easier for the council to consider it.

Reeve Kylie said he had opposed the proposition because he thought $250 was too much money for the advertisement. He was still of same opinion, and thought Sells Limited should accept $200 and wait for $100 until the work was completed. Councils never die and while this one would go out, and go out quick——

Mayor Beal—You bet.

Reeve Kylie—Another council would take its place. He had no desire to block the scheme, but thought $200 was sufficient.

Ald. Smale made a strong plea in support of the proposition. He referred to the tendency of British and European manufacturers to locate in Canada, and it behooved Lindsay to bring its advantages prominently before the nations of the world. It would be money well spent for the town to take space in the publication. No one could accuse him of spending money recklessly. In fact he had advised the council to go slow in expenditures, but sometimes moneu had to be spent in order to economize. It gave him great pleasure to support the resolution.

Ald. Warren then moved, seconded by Ald. Smale, that the council agree with the Sells Publishing Co. to pay $150 towards $250 charged for space offered, if other $150 be guaranteed otherwise and provided Company will accept our guarantee for price, to be paid for on delivery of book with advertisements and reading matter, as agreed upon by contract.—Carried.

Checker Club For Lindsay

An effort is being made to form a Checker Club in Lindsay. There are a large number of champion players around town who would like to get together for an occasional game, and there are also numerous other persons who would take a keen interest in checkers, which is one of the keenest games of wits, if they could get an opportunity to play. A meeting will be held Friday evening, October 10th, at eight o'clock in the G.T.R. library to talk over the proposition of forming a club in Lindsay, and everybody interested should attend.

Probably the worst thing about being in love with a girl is the interest you have to pretend to have in her family.

FOR SALE—Bay colt coming three. Apply A. T. Leach, Lindsay, or phone 424.

WEDDING BELLS

LETTY—MORRISON.

Kirkfield, Oct 7.—A quiet wedding was solemnized on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Neil Morrison where her eldest daughter, Margaret, was united in marriage to Mr. Edgar Letty, of Toronto. Rev. H. H. Turner performed the ceremony.

The young couple were unattended. The bride wore her travelling suit of navy blue with hat to match. Only immediate relatives were present. After the ceremony they motored to Beaverton.

They left on Saturday for a trip to Atlantic City and on their return will reside in Toronto. We wish them much happiness.

CRIMMONS—REYNOLDS.

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at seven o'clock at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church by Vicar-General Casey when Mary Agnes Crimmons, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D Crimmons, 42 St. Patrick St., was united in marriage to Francis Henry Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Reynolds of Burketon. Only the immediate relatives were present.

The bride looked charming in a navy blue tailor made suit and black velour hat trimmed with plumes. She was attended by Miss Lizzie Rivers, also in a navy blue suit with black beaver hat trimmed with plumes.

The groomsman was Mr. Thos. Massaw, of Lindsay.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful sunburst of pearls and to the bridesmaid, a pearl ring. The groomsman was the recipient of a pearl tie pin. The gift of the bride' parents was an oak china cabinet.

The esteem in which the happy couple are held by a wide circle of friends was evidenced by the many beautiful and costly gifts received.

On their return they will reside on St. Paul St. Lindsay.

Koyl, 702 Queen street, Saskatoon, when her daughter, Miss Muriel Bigelow Koyl, formerly of Lindsay, became the bride of Mr. Frederick Wm. Wellington, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. Brown. The bridal couple were attended by Mrs. A. Leon Koyl, matron of honor, Miss Lucile Koyl, bridesmaid, and Mr. Leonarh Morrison, of Toronto, best man. Miss Mary Hollindrake played Beethoven's Moonlight sonata as the guests assembled and the bridal march from "Lohengrin" as the bride entered the drawing room. Golden 'mums and autumn leaves formed the living room decorations. The newly married couple left at midnight for the Rockies. They will sail on October 8 from Vancouver on the Empress of Russia for Hong Kong. Their future home will be in Toronto. The bride's going away costume was of navy blue cloth with which she wore a plumed hat of taupe velours with touches of burnt orange. Among the bride's gifts was a silver jewel case, from the Fitzgerald chapter, I.O.D.R., of which she was one of the vice-presidents.

TEST YOUR LUNGS

People often suffer from weak, undeveloped lungs without suspecting it True, small, feeble lungs are usually associated with a small, narrow o sunken chest, but not invariably. By means of the misuse of physical culture it is possible to develop large chest muscles, thus acquiring a big chest measurement, while the lungs remain small and ill-nourished.

Again, lung mischief is often so slow and insiduous in its approach that the trouble is not discovered until it is firmly established. Here, however, is a simple test which will tell you whether your lungs are healthy or not:

Take as deep a breath as you can, and then in a slow but distinct voice count from one onward as far as you can without taking in more breath. The number of seconds you can continue counting is a pretty reliable index to the state of your lungs, so you should have some one to time you.

If your lungs are sound and normally developed, your range will be between twenty and thirtyfive seconds. If your limit is between ten and twenty seconds, there is no need to be alarmed, probably your lungs are merely in need of exercise, to be readily obtained by regular deep breathing in pure air. A range of less than ten seconds, however, points to more or less mischief, and you should not delay in having your lungs examined by a medical man.—London Answers.

It doesn't take the man who thinks he knows it all very long to tell how little he really knows.

The wise man follows the lines of least resistance by telling all women how well they look and all mothers their babies are beautiful.

A young man is doing the right thing when he begins to think seriously of matrimony, for matrimony is anything but a joke.

THE HOME OF BETTER CLOTHES

PREHISTORIC ART

While remarkable painted figures of animals have been discovered recently on the walls of European caverns, no equally good representations of the human form have been found there, and, in fact, very few human images of any kind. Professor Capitan, of the College of France, who writes in the Revue Scientifique, believes that the representation of men and women was forbidden by the religion of these historic artists, and that in the few cases found the rude and grotesque facts portrayed are those of masks, worn for ritual purposes. It has already been suggested that all the animal paintings were made with some religious motive. Professor Capitan takes for his text two small human figures, of a man and a woman, lately discovered. He says:

"While the figures of animals collected at the same time are, as we have seen, of a skilful, precise and very lively art, these two human images are gross, unskilful, and of a maladroit yechnic that contrasts strangely with that of the animal figures. This is the general rule with much of primitive art, for example, in Assyria.

"It is very difficult to give a satisfactory explanation of this. It may simply be asserted that amid quaternary works of art, compared with animal figures, human figures are extremely rare. Primitive artists evidently had no skill in this direction. On the other hand, it would appear probable that there was some sort of interdiction upon the reproduction of the human figure. It may have been tabooed, as in Arab art.

"In fact, we have long noted that when human beings are pictured on the walls of decorated grottoes (which is extremely rare,) they have an absolutely odd effect, like caricatures. The hypothesis has already been put forth that as the representation of the human face was forbidden we have here pictures of masked men, as seen both in nature and in images today among many half-savage races.

"Now the figures under discussion give us ample proof of this. There is on one side the figure of a woman whose face appears to be uncovered, but on the other hand, her husband, with long nose and beard, holds before his face a mask very accurately represented."

Life is not always one grand, sweet song for the man who is married to the woman who thinks she can sing.

WHO IS THE AUTO VICTIM?

Peterboro, Oct. 1—The mystery of the identity of the man killed in the auto overturning near Lakefield, September 25, fluctuates between the romantic and the ridiculous. While the body was at Lakefield it was identified by the people of that village as that of Ephraim Windsor, of Buckhorn, who, owing to police attention, had been absent for some time from the neighborhood. When, however, Windsor's wife saw the body she found it had all the distinguishing marks of her husband. Scars on the wrist, knee and cheek, and a broken finger on one hand, but her husband was nearly bald, while the man killed had fairly abundant brown hair. Last Friday at Lakefield, Wm. Junkin, lumberman, positively identified the body as that of Wm. Richardson, with whom he had worked in Carew's lumber camp.

J. V. ECK, SAYS A FARMER

This morning W. A. Bell, farmer, living on the seventh line of Smith township, having read of the difficulty of identification, came to the city and saw the body at the Carew's undertaking rooms, and identified it as that of James Vincent Eck, a man who had worked for him on the farm three years ago, knowing it, he said, by a scar on the inside of the face, received in a South African war, where Eck said he had served was wounded, and had a twisted mind, and by the figure of an Indian girl tattooed on the arm. While Eck worked for Bell he showed him that he had was the death certificate of his mother, a countess, and said he had been sent to his country with monthly remittances of $200, which had been forfeited by misconduct. Eck was well educated, and given to drink.

Eck, who was also known as McDonald, or "Mac," worked for several farmers in the neighborhood, and in lumber camps. He left with Mr. Bell his life insurance policy for $2-000, written by the Imperial Life of St. Catharines on February 1, 1911. The succeed was sponsored by George Hacker and Alderman R. F. Robinson, his age being given as twenty-eight. While the dead man seems older, he may have been aged by irregular habits.

Deceased was in Peterboro some days before the accident, gave the name of McDonald, and was picked up by Barry for a motor ride. The body has been sent, on order of the Coroner, to the Medical Department of Queen's University, Kingston, where it will be held a fortnight, awaiting claimant. The request will be resumed at Lakefield tomorrow afternoon.

BODY GOES TO COLLEGE

St. Catharines, Oct. 1—Efforts are being made by ex-Ald. Richmond F. Robinson, of this city to prevent the remains of the young man, James Sylvester Eck, killed at Peterboro, from going to the medical college at Toronto. Although without any relatives in this country, Eck was the son of very wealthy parents, his father being heavily interested in nitrate mines in South America. He resides in Devon, Middlesex, England. Mr. Robinson has endeavored by wire to forestall any disposition of the body by the medical authorities, and has given instructions to have the body embalmed. He will go to Toronto to take charge of the remains, pending the arrival of word from the father of the deceased in England, who was killed in a motor ride tonight by Mr. Robinson's brother-in-law in Cobalt. Eck, who was only 21 years of age, had been a large allowance exceeding $100,000. Three years ago he was a member of the St. Catharines City.

Banquet Tendered To Colonel Hughes

Quebec, Oct. 1—The following despatch was received here this morning from London:

"Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, was tendered a complimentary banquet by officers on Saturday. Among the guests were Lord Brooke, Sir Frederick William Taylor, Mr. Norton Griffiths, and Mr. Hickens, of Scammell and Laffr.

"Colonel Hughes was thanked by all for the excellent and elaborate arrangements made for the contingent.

"Part of the contingent is sailing on Saturday, the Minister, Col. Bigger and other officers later."

POLICE CHIEF IN POLICE COURT

Port Hope, Oct. 1—The Police Court case of Floody vs. Gummerson, which ended in a fine, Floody being ejected, drew a crowd of interest, were this morning adjourned until Monday.

On September 26 Chas. Floody laid two informations, and warrants, as prosecutor, against Gummerson, chief of Police A. W. Gummerson, one for trespassing upon private property, and the other for assaulting and beating the complainant. On October 1st Chief Gummerson laid an information under section 1 of the Act for wilfully obstructing the said Gummerson, peace officer, in the execution of his duty, contrary to the provisions of Section 149 of the Criminal Code. Mr. D. H. Chisholm is representing Floody, and it is reported that the town will also be represented by counsel.

The trouble is said to have arisen in connection with a Bastardo girl named Ruth Hibbert, aged about thirteen years, who, on the ground of necessitated ill treatment at her place of abode with a farmer, sought refuge at Floody's. The Chief is understood to have received instructions from the Bastardo Home at Peterboro, to take charge of the girl, which he proceeded to locate her at Floody's, and had her removed to a neighboring house. On Monday afternoon he learned that the girl had returned to Floody's. On the constable entering the house Floody objected, and on and in the fracas he was hustled aside by the policeman, this constituting the alleged assault.

Pavements Wore Too Quickly

Guelph, Oct. 1—The collector of customs reports a substantial increase in the receipts of the month of September compared with last year. September, 1912, $20,295; September, 1913, $32,620; increase $2,325.

According to the report of C. H. Mitchell, consulting engineer of Toronto, who made a complete examination of the paved streets in the city, $9,000 will have to be expended in repairs on roads which have been laid within the last few years, and not one of which has worn half of the guaranteed time.

DOING AWAY WITH THE MIDDLEMAN

As a result of the Ontario Government's investigation into the co-operative plan of selling, agencies may be established in the big centres for the sale and disposal of the products of the Ontario farmers and thus reduce the price of living.

This scheme, it is contended, will insure the farmer much better prices, while it would save the consumer a very great deal. It has been suggested by officials of the Farmers' Institutes and Agricultural Societies that profitable plan, both to consumer and seller could be established by the Government through these associations as a medium.

When asked about this today, Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, superintendent of Institutes, said: "That there is something wrong with the present system is obvious. When peach growers can get 25 cents a basket for their peaches, they were selling in Toronto for about 31.

APPLES AT $5 TWENTY A DOZEN

"Last year there were thousands of boxes of apples sent in from Washington and retailed in Toronto at 25 cents a dozen. Now, they look at the other side of it. Last year there were thousands and thousands of boxes of apples rotted on the ground in the orchards of Ontario, because it could not be sold in the city because of the high rates of transportation and 50 cents for barrels. There is another side. Now, when our own apples are being sold at $5 by the Ontario farmer at $1 to $1.25 a barrel for shipment to England, and American apples at half as cold can be bought in duty paid, and sold at 25 cents a dozen.

"Many of the fruit growers who sold apples last year, did not realize more than 28 cents a barrel on their apples. Fruit, vegetables, eggs, butter, poultry, honey and many other things could be successfully sold through the medium of the associations by a central agency.

FINED FOR AUTO SPEEDING

One automobilist, who exceeded the speed limit in Lindsay, was taught a lesson in police court this morning when W. H. Duncan, of Midland, was fined $5.00 and costs by Police Magistrate Jackson for speeding his car on Bond-st on Sept. 26th. Through his lawyer, Mr. A. M. Fulton, he pleaded guilty.

The information was laid by Chief Chillon who intends keeping a sharp look-out for all speed bonds on the public. This practice must cease and the sooner reckless auto drivers realize this, the better. The public must be protected.

MILLBROOK FAIR GREAT SUCCESS

Many Lindsay people took in Millbrook fair on Friday and report it better than ever. The crowds on the grounds were the largest in the history of the fair, and probably the largest of any two day fair within a small radius. The entries on the grounds was reserved for automobiles, and was literally packed with vehicles, machines, people from far and near. Many Peterboro people were also present, as well as visitors from Port Hope and Cobourg.

Millbrook fair had a first rate exhibition of horses, which seemed themselves before and after the main show. The racing was very good, with plenty of entries and fast time. The showing of stock kinds was first class and showed that the farmers' business is receiving extra good attention in that excellent farming section. The fruit, roots, and vegetables were up to standard, and there was a fine display of ladies' fancy work, preserving, and so forth. The floral showing was unusually good. The Crowd put in a very enjoyable afternoon, and everybody looks forward to attending another year.

BURGLARS OPERATE IN SEVERAL TOWNS

Hastings, Ont., Oct. 2.—This town was again visited by burglars last night. They forced the window at Lambert's hardware store, where they secured safety razors, knives and other goods to the value of about $100. They also entered Baker Bros' general store, where they were discovered, and when an alarm was sounded they escaped.

Several persons saw the two burglars after they left Baker Bros. store. They have a good description of them. The men tried to get into Coughlin's drug and jewelry store, but as a telephone exchange was there and a night operator on hand, they only succeeded in removing a little of the putty from the window panes. This is only one of a series of burglaries here. A gang has been operating between Norwood, Warkworth and Westwood.

TERMS OF NEW MARRIAGE ACT

Enquiries at newspaper offices and at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, about the terms of the new Marriage Act seem to evidence a false impression regarding the terms of that statute.

Under the provisions where either one of the contracting parties has been a resident in any municipality for three weeks the marriage license may be obtained in the ordinary way. Where neither of them have been resident for this period the application for the license must be approved by the Registrar-General, Hon. W. J. Hanna. This application may be made by telegraph, telephone or verbally. No application has yet been refused.

The provincial authorities state that the provisions of the new Act have had the effect of decreasing the number of marriages at Windsor and border towns.

DIED

BIRDSALL—At Lindsay, on Thursday, Oct. 2nd, 1913, Herbert Nelson Beall, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Beall, in his 14th year.

JOSEPH O'LEARY IS INNOCENT

Some three weeks ago, Joe O'Leary, who gave his place of residence as Lindsay, was sentenced by Wolthy by His Honor Judge McMillan to five years in the penitentiary for the crime of stealing and robbing an Indian named John Bigwind, at Washago. Friday afternoon last O'Leary's companion, Archie Scott, was sentenced on the same charge to a year and nine months in the Central Prison.

Throughout the course of the preliminary hearing and trial, he evinced men steadily maintained their innocence, giving reasons why suspicion should rest on two other men, named Davis and Hanover. At the time of the trial Mr. Rutledge, their counsel, endeavored to show that these latter two were on the scene about the time of the crime, and that they had conspired and then escaped, and that this theory was strengthened by the fact that O'Leary and Scott remained right in Washago after the time the crime was committed.

Mrs. O'Leary, who was at the trial and sentenced, has said she would spend her last cent in fixing guilt upon the proper parties. She has written Mr. Rutledge to that effect. Our last week a telegram was received at Col. Farewell's office, in Whitby, advising that she had evidence which would prove that two other men, were guilty of the crime for which her husband and Scott are receiving punishment. Later a letter was received from Mrs. O'Leary that one of the men is in gaol in Port Arthur, and that she is holding the other man in Toronto.

The Post was informed a few days ago by a relative of Joe. O'Leary that Davis had confessed, and had confessed to robbing the Indian.

Mrs. O'Leary has communicated with the Attorney-General's Department, and has strong hopes of securing her husband's release.

JURY ACCEPTS IDENTIFICATION

Peterboro, Oct. 2—The Coroner's jury inquiring into the cause of the death of the man killed in the auto accident at Lakefield, Sept. 25th, returned the verdict that James Vincent Eck met his death by the overturning of an auto on the date mentioned. The jury accepted the identification of Mr. and Mrs. William Bell of Smith township, who said that the man came to work for them and he gave the name McDonald, but when Mrs. Bell, who noticed the initials J. V. E. on his shirts, asked an explanation, McDonald admitted that his name was Eck.

Mr. H. E. Wood appeared for the Carew's, Mr. D. H. Chisholm for D'Arcy who was in the auto when it upset.

STOLE A TEAM GAVE HIMSELF UP

Fenelon Falls Gazette: On Saturday last while Chief of Police Jones was walking down street he was hailed by a man who said he wished to give himself up, as he had stolen a team of horses, and the man in state of confusion of mind caused by his act was because of bearable. Chief Jones was somewhat surprised, but took the man, who gave his name as Fraser, into custody, and proceeded to make inquiries. It appears that Fraser, while driving a team for a Mr. Ward of Toronto, took the animals to Brampton, and disposed of them for $280 and another for $300 and received only $20 down on the bargain, as the buyer would not pay any more without proof that the team was owned the team. Fraser then skipped out, and made his way here, chiefly on foot with his $20 as a good companion. He secured employment in Mickle & Dymond's mill, and had been working there for five days when he decided to confess. Detective Griffin of Toronto came up on Monday and took the prisoner back to the city. He will probably be leniently dealt with. The team of horses were recovered by the owner shortly after they had been taken.

It sometimes happens that when a man arrives home at 2 a. m. and his wife commands him to go straight upstairs to his bed, she is asking the impossible.

BEAR HUNT IN SOUTH VERULAM

Fred Sherman and Howard Davidson, of South Verulam, had quite a time the other morning. They were out about eleven o'clock and in less than an hour the building was totally consumed by the flames. There was no wind, but the dry timber burned so fiercely nothing could be done to stop it.

The boat houses adjoining belonging to Messrs J. D. and W. Flavelle were also totally burned and at one o'clock the fire had started on the Sherman's cottage, which is nearby.

Everybody available was working to quench the flames, but the fire is reported to have started burning through the dry grass and unless more help arrives in time other cottages may go also. A number of launches set out from here shortly after noon hour to take help down.

Mr. Stewart Flavelle and Mr. Arthur Simpson and a party left at one o'clock in the "Swallow." Mrs. Walkey was to have moved up Sunday, and had arrived from the Lindsay hotel, but as noon had not arrived in town.

The "Walkey House" as it has been up to be popularly known, has been a landmark at the Point for many years. Mr. Walkey started the store about twenty years ago in a cottage which was situated on the Point. Since then a number of extensive additions have been made to it from time till it covered quite a space of ground, and retained intact with the Flavelle boathouses, which were also burnt today. It is not known what amount of insurance was on the building, nor whether all the goods had been saved. Mrs. Walkey had lost all her but things several days ago, ready to be brought to Lindsay, but they were still in the Point. Some of them had been loaded on the steamer when the fire started.

Mr. A. Simpson's cottage is fully insured, and it is hoped will prove a heavy loss.

ENGINEER DIES AT THROTTLE

(From Saturday's Post)

David Murray, engineer on the 9.15 train from Port Hope, fell dead across the throttle about midsummer this morning. The train, in charge of Conductor Cone, left Peterboro at its usual time on its way through Lindsay to Toronto.

Engineer Murray was seated upon the engineer's seat upon right hand side of the cab looking intensely ahead scanning the track as the train sped along toward Lindsay. Suddenly his fireman, Casey Hogan, saw him pitch forward and fall across the throttle as the train was between Jones siding and Burnt River. His weight threw the throttle shut and cut off the steam and the train came to a stand still.

Fireman Heeley jumped up to help him but discovered he was dead with his eyes wide open in an unseeing stare toward the front where his duty lay. The conductor and train crew were hastily summoned and Conductor Jones took the train home and drove the train into Lindsay where another engineer was procured for the run to Toronto.

It is stated that Engineer Murray has been bothered the last two days with a slight case of indigestion but that otherwise he was in good health as normal. His sudden death this morning is attributed to a paralytic stroke or heart failure. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, a daughter, Lulu, and son, Spencer, in Toronto.

The Murrays formerly lived in Lindsay about twelve years ago, and are well known to a host of Lindsay friends.

Mrs. Murray, Melbourne-st., is a sister-in-law of the deceased.

HAVE YOU SEEN MISS IRENE SMITH?

Special Officer Weller of the C.P.R., Peterboro, has been notified by the company to be on the lookout for Miss Irene Smith, who a short time ago purchased a through ticket from Peterboro to Ottawa, and has not been heard of since. It is feared she may have been injured or have taken sick. All the hospitals and hotels in this district will be communicated with in an effort to locate the missing girl. Information concerning the whereabouts of Miss Smith should be forwarded to Special Officer Weller.

The whole judicial system is to be revised.

DISASTROUS FIRE AT THE POINT

(From Saturday's Post)

Fire started at Mrs. Walkey's store at Sturgeon Point this morning about eleven o'clock and in less than an hour the building was totally consumed by the flames. There was no wind, but the dry timber burned so fiercely nothing could be done to stop it.

The boat houses adjoining belonging to Messrs J. D. and W. Flavelle were also totally burned and at one o'clock the fire had started on the Sherman's cottage, which is nearby.

Peterboro Man Dropped Dead

Peterboro, Oct. 1—Robert McWhinney, aged 50, a well known merchant, fell dead at his residence, 543 Harvey street, while in the act of leaving the house. He had been a well known and much respected citizen here for about forty years. He was a Methodist by persuasion, and a member of the Masonic order and of the Canadian Foresters and Oddfellows.

BAPTIST FINANCES VERY HEALTHY

Baptist laymen to the number of 400 supped Tuesday night in Jarvis street Methodist Church, where they both eloquent and filled with inspiration were delivered by Mr. N. W. Rowell, President of the International Committee of the Baptist Missionary Movement, by Dr. Stackhouse, Mr. Murray Williams of New York and by several distinguished visitors.

The Baptist Laymen's Missionary Movement is working to the Baptists of Ontario and Quebec, and the subject chosen by Mr. W. C. Senior. There are 49,000 Baptists in Ontario and Quebec, and last year they retired in 1910 from the secretaryship of the movement was in a great way responsible for its success. The annual contributions amounted to $200,000, five years ago. Now it has increased that amount. Toronto alone gives $100,000.

"To-day," said Mrs. S. J. Moore, "in the day of opportunities India and Bolivia had their thousands of converts attending the Baptist church. The percentage of immigrants going west, the stated was less than those staying in Quebec and Ontario. But south of College street in this city, 30,000 young people never enter a church.

Read Laws

If you meet a rig the law requires you to turn to the right and give half the road. If you overtake a rig and want to pass, you should pass on the left side. If you are overtaken the law says you must give half the right and give half the road for the person behind to pass on the left side. Failure to observe these rules is liable to a fine.

SCHOOL FAIR AT DUNSFORD

Dunsford's annual school fair under the management of Mr. J. A. Knight of the Dept. of Agriculture, was held on the new school grounds on Monday, Sept. 29th. This was one of the best of eight such fairs held that fall. The following schools competed: S. S. No. 1 and 2 Verulam, No. 7 Fenelon, No. 11 Ops, No. 15 Emily and Ops, and No. 2 Emily.

Each school was given two tables on which to arrange the exhibits, and two prizes were awarded, one for the school and one for the second best school display. Competition for these prizes was particularly keen, and it was not until after half an hour's consideration that the award for the first place was given to the Second Line school, No. 1 Verulam. Miss Richardson as teacher. No. 7 Fenelon with Miss Hazel Cooper as teacher was awarded second prize, with Dunsford (Mr. Elliott), and No. 3 Emily, (Miss Day) in many respects just as good. A different set of prizes might have made quite a different placing, and there were good reasons for it. Special mention is made of the exhibit of No. 11 Ops. This is a small school and the teacher, Miss Peel, deserves great credit for the showing made. No. 16 Union School also did well, considering that this is the first year for school fairs.

The exhibits in all classes were excellent both in quality and quantity, and the demonstrations which were put on by the teachers and pupils all that could have been desired.

The Dunsford orchestra which were run off while the judging was being done, resulted as follows:

Jig Dance, 1st Dunsford.
2nd Scotch Lass, 3rd No. 7 Fenelon.
3 legged race, 1st Scotch Lass; 2nd Dunsford, 3rd No. 3 Emily.
Tug of war, 1st No. 7 Fenelon, 2nd Scotch Lass, 3rd Dunsford.

Orillia Bonus Bylaw Quashed

At Osgoode Hall Wednesday—Re Black and Town of Orillia.—W. A. Reg. K. C., for Black. D. J. Grant for town. Motion by ratepayer of the town to quash by-law No. 349, being a by-law to raise by way of debentures $20,000, to be paid to the C. N. W. Shoe Co., Limited, as a bonus to assist them in establishing and operating a boot and shoe factory at Orillia.

Judgment. The only substantial objection to the by-law is the statement in clause (a) of sec. 3, sec. (12) and (e) of municipal act, 1903 "Because it grants a bonus to an "industry already established" in London.

I do not think I can read into the definition the interpretation of the word "establishment" which Mr. Grant. The fact that the business of the company has been carried on in London for the last two months, amounts to an "establishment" that city within any meaning that can fairly given to that word. The by-law must, I think, be quashed. I do not think it is a case for costs, particularly in view of the failure of other objections.

LIEUTENANT WARREN EFFICIENT OFFICER

Col. Ogilvie, A.A.G., 3rd div., was in town yesterday inspecting the stores of C. Corps and transferring them to Lieut. Warren. Col. Hopkins has appointed Lieut. Warren to command "C. Co. instead of T. Murtagh and as Lieut. Warren has proved himself such an enthusiastic, energetic officer, the Post feels assured that this is a wise selection and that Mr. Warren will have one of the banner companies of the 45th at his command. Col. Hopkins has informed us that Mr. Warren will be getting a lot of fine new equipment, as considerable of the worn out, antiquated stores of this company have been discarded.

Due to Good Seed

At the Central Fair Mr. Thomas Hickson, Maurice, carried off practically all the prizes in fodder, roots and field vegetables. He attributes the success to the fact that he sowed first class seed from Mr. James Keith.

Pocket Picked Coming From Fair

A most brazen theft of the pick-pocket variety was made last night on the train leaving Markham at 8 o'clock coming to Toronto. Thomas Gibson, an elderly and well-known farmer of Scarboro' township, was the victim, and he lost $30 in cash and a Dominion Bank book.

The train was crowded with people returning to the city from Markham Fair. Mr. Gibson had just risen from his seat that a lady might take it, when a group of young men jostled him. Immediately after he thought to change the pocketbook from his right trousers pocket to one of his coat pockets, and found that it was missing. He reported his loss to fellow-passengers, and one lady stated that she had seen a young man take it. There was no police officer on the train, and Mr. Gibson did not report his loss, but got off the train at Scarboro' Junction and went to his home. The man who several passengers alleged took the money came on to Toronto and got off the train. Nothing was done to stop him.

MORE TURKEYS THAN REPORTED

Reports that turkeys are scarce in the country around Lindsay are not substantiated by drovers who, next to commission men, should know the real conditions. One prominent dealer in cattle stated recently that he had not paid a great deal of attention to the flocks, but in his travels he had noticed large numbers of them. He believed that in this county at any rate the supply would be as ample as usual, if not surpassing the normal.

Father's Day On June 1st

Washington, Oct. 3.—A resolution was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Moore, of Pennsylvania, designating the first Sunday in June hereafter as "Fathers' Day." The emblem of sentiment shall be a rose, irrespective of color, according to the resolution.

ABOLISH THE USE OF DOGS

The Secretary of the Fish and Game Association of the province of Quebec, is to use his influence towards having the hunting of deer by dogs abolished. It should have been done years ago, both in Quebec and Ontario. There is no hunting in running deer with dogs, it is simply slaughter. Any two legged Darwinian freak, dolled up in khaki suit, can squat in a canoe till a pair of dogs chase a deer into the lake. If dog hunting was cut out the rush to the woods in the fall would be clipped by about 90 p. c., for about that percentage of those who go to the woods with dogs, know no more about hunting a deer than a deer knows about chasing a street car.

POLICE ARE AFTER BURGLAR SUSPECTS

Chief Chilton has had a busy time since Friday morning looking up clues and shadowing suspects in connection with the recent burglaries. As was announced in Friday's Post, the safety deposit box belonging to Mr. D. Cinnamon's safe was found in a field near the G. T. R. bridge together with valuable papers. Chief Chilton also found a new jack knife and a chisel. The knife is of the Elliott make, while the chisel bears the McIntosh-Heather stamp. Neither the Cinnamon or McLennan firms handle these makes, and this fact adds strength to the Post's contention that the crooks were the same parties who operated in Orillia on Wednesday night. Reference was made to the burglary in Friday's Post, and our readers will remember that a hardware store was entered in that town.

Mr. W. M. Robson, whose store was burglarized, reported this morning that a chisel belonging to his late father was missing.

On Friday Chief Chilton assisted by County Constable Thornbury, corralled a number of local young men who have been in the habit of loitering on the streets at all hours of the night and early morning. They were brought to the police station, and put through a gruelling examination, but were afterwards allowed to go. Last night a young man who has been engaged as a farm hand, but who has been hanging around town lately, was put through the "third degree" at the police station. He denied all knowledge of the crime, and cried bitterly for some time, until he fell from his chair in a swoon. First aid was applied by Chief Chilton, and after recovering he was allowed to go, as it was felt he knew nothing about the thefts.

As a result of certain information given by a Post reporter, Chief Chilton got busy last night, and about 10.30 o'clock arrested two young men from Peterboro, Landry and Killenbeck, at the G.T.R. station. These young men have police court records, and this morning they were charged with vagrancy. They were remanded until October 10th, and will have to give an account of their movements.

The local police are leaving no stone unturned in their efforts to run down the guilty ones, and while they are not saying very much, it is believed they have several clues that look good.

NO CHANGE IN PRICE OF SUGAR

A Toronto dispatch announces a drop of ten cents per hundred in the price of all grades of sugar.

This will not mean any change in the prevailing price of this commodity to the consumer, since it only affects the deal between the wholesaler and the retailer. A drop of ten cents per hundred means only one-tenth of a cent a pound, and this is so small that the retailer cannot make any change in the number of pounds for a dollar or in the price per pound. So for the present, at least, there will be no change in the price of sugar to the consumer.

IF A MAN IS BAD

There are few subjects on which so much "scientific" nonsense is talked and written as on heredity. Not very much is known of it as regards plants, less of animals, and almost nothing as regards humanity. To read books on heredity, especially those of the Eugenic Society, is to read a mass of suppositions and hazardous inductions, where most of the facts are negative, and only the exceptions are positive.

The very meaning of "heredity" is not understood. If any quality is truly heredity, then it is always hereditary. It never occurs except as the result of heredity, and it is constant; that is to say, it invariably follows. But there is no quality of which this can be said. That genius is not heredity is known. Even talent is not. Nor is any aptitude. A lawyer's son more often wants to be a soldier or an artist than a lawyer, notwithstanding the environment, and it is so with most professions. The exceptions seem to be due to training and influence, not to blood heredity transmission.

A superficial likeness to parents seems hereditary, but that is all that we can assert, and that outward likeness by no means inferes an inward likeness. There is nothing so easy and nothing so fatal as this tendency to attribute to heredity what is due to training or want of training. It excuses supineness in governments and professions. — H. Fielding Wall, in Atlantic Monthly.

TO BENEFIT OTHER SUFFERERS

You May Publish My Letter About "Fruit-a-tives"

Mr. Jones is proud to acknowledge the great debt of gratitude he owes "Fruit-a-tives". He is glad to have his letter published in order that other sufferers may be induced to try these wonderful tablets made of fruit juices.

SARNIA, ONT., FEB. 5th. 1911

"I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of the Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors, but derived no benefit whatever. Finally, I read an advertisement for "Fruit-a-tives". I decided to give "Fruit-a-tives" a trial and they did exactly what was claimed for them. I have now taken them for some time and find they are the only remedy that does me good. I have recommended "Fruit-a-tives" to a great many of my friends, and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly"

BURGLARS HAD A FIELD NIGHT

From Friday's Post.

Burglars of a very amateurish type and somewhat crude in their modus operandi, visited some eight or nine local business places last night, but were poorly rewarded for their labors. They started their purloining after midnight and their work shows that they have a great deal yet to learn before they can graduate as full fledged crooks.

Considerable excitement prevailed this morning, when the news spread that burglars were busy during the night, and people were anxious to know the extent of their haul. The loss in cash and goods is a mere bagatelle, but the crude methods adopted by the crooks resulted in considerable damage to property.

AT MAUNDER'S MILL

At Maunder and Sons flour mill, the thieves entered by prying open an office window on the south side of the building. The till was pried open and also a drawer in a cabinet. The safe was next attacked. The big door was left unlocked, and the burglars had no difficulty in opening it. Inside, though, is another heavy iron door nearly half an inch thick of solid steel. This was securely locked and baffled them. An attempt was made to hammer off the lock or break the door, but failed. There are hammer marks all around the lock. Some marks six inches away testified that the burglars were not experts and bungled their work.

The noise made by their hammering could be heard distinctly half a block away. Mrs. Wm. Maunder, who lives nearby, was aroused about two o'clock, and looked out of the window in time to see two persons come out of the office door and strike off at a fast walk toward Robson's. She wakened Mr. Maunder, but the men had disappeared. This morning Mr. Jos. Maunder went over things, but nothing was missing, although the safe was damaged slightly by having its inner lock reduced to fragments of broken iron.

ROBSON'S GROCERY ENTERED

The thieves next visited Robson's grocery. Entrance was first attempted by a side door opening on Sussex-st. The wire screen was cut and after the screen door was unhooked and thrown open, a determined attempt was made on the wooden door, which was marked up with indiscriminate hammer blows and marks of a chisel or pry thrust in at different places all over the door jam. The intention was evidently to force the lock. An attempt was also made to cut away the panel, so that the lock could be undone from the inside, but the door is an old one, built extra heavy, and denied their efforts. They finally got in by breaking a pane of glass in the front door.

Mr. Robson states he left the safe locked, but the thieves managed to get the combination. After breaking open the till in the counter, which was empty, they went through all the drawers in the counter, but got nothing of any value, and then devoted their attention to the safe. The drawers inside were pried open, and destroyed, and the papers they had contained littered all over the floor. Only a small sum was taken. A check and two one dollar bills, folded in an old bank book were overlooked. A number of first class finger prints were left on different objects around the store, such as on some glass and on papers.

RESTAURANT VISITED

The miscreants next passed through a door in the wall into the Park Restaurant, where the till was ripped open, and the contents taken. Nine dollars in bills and some silver was taken, probably twelve or thirteen dollars in all.

CALLED AT BUTCHER SHOP

At A. Metcalfe's butcher shop in the same block, entrance was gotten by breaking a pane of glass in th' store front window. The same rough method or lack of it was used to break open the till, which contained seven coppers. The office was rummaged also, and a chicken, a quantity of butter and a fountain pen were taken from the store.

IN CINNAMON'S STORE

At D. Cinnamon's hardware store, the thieves got in through a rear cellar window, which they shoved open. They broke open the cellar door, and after the usual search of the store, and breaking open the till, they commenced their attack on the safe. It was closed and latched, but not locked. It would have opened by simply turning the handle. They attempted to pry it open by levers placed under the handle. A 38 Winchester rifle was used as a pry. The stock was broken and barrel badly bent by the strain. A newer rifle belonging to Mr. Geo. Marshall was evidently taken out of the case, but replaced, as it looked too good to put to such use as the second hand 38. Some way they discovered how to get the safe door open, and then commenced their second problem of how to get at the contents of the strong box inside. All drawers inside were pounded to kindling wood and the papers thrown on the floor. The steel safety deposit box was pried loose, and the thieves took it away with them. It has not been recovered. It contained a large number of valuable papers such as fire insurance policies, deeds, life insurance policies and papers connected with the business, and also nearly twenty dollars in cash.

ALSO ENTERED McLENNAN'S

A steel bayonet was found in Cinnamon's. It was from McLennan's store next door, which had also been entered from the rear lane. Here also the tills were all gone through, and whatever was of value was taken.

C. P. R. STATION.

The C.P.R. station was also entered. The burglars pried open a window and after going through a suitcase which had been left in the office, tried to go through the ticket case and cash drawer. As usual they broke the till open, but got no money. They tried the combination of the big safe, but found it hopeless.

A number of other places around town were attempted.

LITTLE'S BOOKSTORE.

Mr. G. A. Little's bookstore was one of these. A shutter was pried off a rear window and a window pane was broken. Numerous burnt matches showed that the thieves had looked in through the hole and concluded that they were in a store room, as they could see only piles of wall paper from the window. They gave up the attempt.

OLYMPIA CANDY WORKS

At the Olympia Candy Works similar tactics were used. A wire screen was cut and a window pried open. The lighted matches this time showed rows of wooden candy boxes at the rear of the candy factory. It looked like waste time, so they gave it up.

Throughout their work the burglars showed themselves to be amateurs or mighty poor workmen. The marvel is that they were not caught red handed. At Maunder's mill they hammered with a tremendous racket for about an hour and woke the whole neighborhood up. The neighbors thought some of the men were working all night at the mill, and although they grumbled at the noise, made no attempt to stop it, as it sounded so matter of fact and assured. Mr. J. B. Begg was wakened up by the noise, and Mrs. D. Sinclair also heard it for a long time. Each thought it was some special work to the machines at the mill.

This afternoon Constable Parks and Chief Chilton in searching for the safety deposit box belonging to D. Cinnamon's safe, found it near the iron bridge. The money (in silver) was missing, but papers to the value of $5.00 were unmolested.

OPERATED ELSEWHERE

The thieves are probably the same individuals who have been operating in Orillia. The News Letter says:

"Wednesday night thieves entered three Orillia establishments and succeeded in getting away with quite a haul, including about $28 in cash, a suit case, sweater coat, rain coat, revolver and a few knives.

"At the C.P.R. telegraph and ticket office the burglars made their entrance by taking out a pane of glass in the back door, an easy task, and then reaching in and removing a board that was propped against the door to keep it closed. After getting in they ransacked Mr. James' and Mr. Horne's desks, scattering the papers all about. In a lower drawer in Mr. Horne's desk they found a bag of money, amounting to $20, belonging to the Baptist church, of which Mr. Horne is treasurer. It's a mean man that will take church money, but they copped it and also a five dollar bill lying loose in the till.

"Mr. Fox's store, next door to the C.P.R. office, was also visited. Entrance was easily gained by raising the back window, left unfastened. Here the robbers secured a suit case, a sweater coat or two and a rain coat. They may have taken more but this is all that is missed up to the present. This morning when the store was opened the sweaters and raincoats were all scattered about the floor.

"The other place entered was Macnab Bros. hardware store. The burglars first withdrew a staple on the door leading into a storage outhouse, evidently expecting to gain entrance through it, but they struck a blank wall. They then tackled a back window, which is 10 or 12 feet off the ground. Climbing up on some empty boxes they found the luxfer prism in one of the windows cracked. The lower part of this they succeeded in withdrawing and thus got inside. They went through a number of drawers and ransacked a show case in which was a number of jack knives. A revolver and some knives are missed. The till was also visited and loose silver to the amount of $2.22, left in it overnight, was taken.

"Nightwatchman Wright received a telephone message during the night from Barrie, informing him that a gang of burglars were operating in this territory, three Barrie stores having been entered on Monday night, and to keep a sharp lookout. He made punctual patrols of the street during the night, but did not hear or see any signs of the thieves.

"An attempt was made on McKerroll's store, but the man were frightened away, probably by the night watchman.

"Merchants may save themselves some regrets, by seeing that the back of their premises is securely fastened."

MUSINGS OF A COUNTRY MERCHANT

"Yes," remarked a country merchant, "I certainly have a snap. Wholesale houses send duns every month, and draw on me at sight, but if I send a bill to a customer, he becomes swearing mad and quits trading at my store. While I am hard up for money, many of those who are owing me are sending money in advance to mail order houses. If I contribute money for any cause, people say I'm bidding for trade. If I don't they say I am a hog. Every day I am expected to did up for everything that comes along, from a raffle ticket to a church fund by people, who, I claim ought to do part of their trading here, but our friends Robert Simpson and T. Eaton neither buy tickets nor help church funds and yet they get the cash in advance business. If I sell a pair of pants, I must treat the family with candy and cigars. If I buy a load of potatoes I must do the same. Customers who are able to pay hang on to their money while I pay 10 per cent at the bank to get ready cash. I have big business during hard times and poor crops, from those willing to trade with me provided I can duplicate catalogue house prices and wait until harvest for money. My scales weigh too much, when I sell sugar, and too little when I buy butter. I am a thief, a liar and a grafter. If I smile I am a soft soapy hypocrite, and if I don't I am a grump. Yes, certainly, this is a snap." And he looks over $10,000 worth of accounts, all good, and wonders how he could raise $350 to pay a sight draft due tomorrow.

The work of the Board in regard to County and Division Courts has been completed, but the Surrogate Court work is not expected to be completed till the November meeting of the board.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY

An eminent scientist, the other day, gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is insured against blood poison! Not one species of microbe has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

SAID FAREWELL TO FATHER GUIRY

Last evening Rev. Father Guiry who left this afternoon for Kinmount where he has been appointed parish priest, was the recipient of a double presentation at the hands of the Sanctuary Boys and congregation of St. Mary's Church.

At the conclusion of the evening service, the Sanctuary Boys gathered in the sacristy where Leo Murtha read an address to Father Guiry, voicing the Sanctuary Boys' regret at his departure and wishing him every blessing in his new field of labor. Coleman O'Loughlin then stepped forward and presented Father Guiry with a handsome clock.

Rev. Father Guiry in reply thanked the boys for their kindness. He would always remember them in his prayers and asked them to pray for him that his work in his new field of labor would be productive of much blessing.

Rev. Father Cote, of Peterboro, also addressed the gathering.

PRESENTED WITH PURSE.

A large gathering from the congregation had assembled in the Parish Hall in order to say farewell to Rev. Father Guiry and to express in a tangable manner the regret experienced in his departure.

Mr. B. J. Gough in a few words explained the object of the gathering and then called upon Senator McHugh to make the presentation of a well filled purse.

Senator McHugh said the occasion was one mingled with pleasure and sadness. The many friends of Rev. Father Guiry were pleased to know that one of the first official acts of His Lordship Bishop O'Brien was his appointment to a parish. The announcement caused a thrill of gladness, which was tinged with sadness when the fact was realized that one who had labored in their midst for three years was about to leave them. On behalf of the gathering, and those who were unable to be present, he wished to express their heart-felt regret at the departure of one who in his priestly vocation had endeared himself to all and who had performed his holy duties with zeal and earnestness. He was very zealous for the welfare of the youth and had been kind and attentive to the aged. His friends would wish him every success and blessing in his new field of labor and would be assured of a warm welcome on his visits to Lindsay where the door would be found unlocked and the latch string on the outside. Senator McHugh then asked Rev. Father Guiry to accept the purse, not for its intrinsic value, but as a slight appreciation of the esteem in which he was held by the people.

Rev. Father Guiry was deeply moved and said he felt the situation keenly, and was not capable of expressing himself as he would wish. When he looked and saw many who had worked hard all day gathered to participate in this presentation, he was deeply moved. Many present knew him long before he knew himself. He appreciated their kindness very much. It was the little things that made life pleasant for us all. What good was in him had been well received and many times magnified. Testimony to this could be seen in the gathering present. He asked those present to pray for him as he would pray for them and a warm welcome would await them should they ever visit the north country.

Rev. Father Cote, of Peterboro, also addressed the gathering. The people of Lindsay were not losing Rev. Father Guiry. He was going out from among them. Shakespeare said "Parting is sweet sorrow," and Father Guiry in his appointment to Kinmount would have a diocese by himself. The people in his charge were kind-hearted and just, and could not do too much for a person. Rev. Father Guiry had bore the burden of the priesthood well and in his new appointment he would receive the prayers of his many friends.

Principal Rogers expressed his regret at Rev. Father Guiry's departure. He was closely identified with him since his coming to Lindsay, as their work was somewhat in the same groove. He knew of the splendid work he had performed in the parish. There was no opportunity but what he embraced and no labor but what he tried to accomplish. He was sincere, energetic and hardworking and it was a source of gratification that he had been promoted. He would like his new charge. His work would be arduous, but he had the indomitable will to accomplish much. In conclusion Mr. Rogers wished Rev. Father Guiry Godspeed.

Mr. John Fleury wished Rev. Father Guiry every blessing in his new appointment, and hoped he would long be spared to minister to the people.

Messrs A. D. Mallon, A. O'Loughlin, B. J. Gough, Reeve Kylie, Jas. Gillogly, sr., Peter Kennedy, T. Brady and James Healey also delivered addresses, in which regret was expressed at Rev. Father Guiry's departure.

COUNTY TEACHERS ELECTED OFFICERS

Thursday afternoon the Teachers' Association had a very interesting session.

Mrs. Miller, of Guelph, gave a talk on The Teaching of Agriculture and School Gardening in the County Schools which proved very interesting and highly instructive. Mrs. Miller pointed out the benefits of school gardening and told of the grants and other aid that was offered by the government to schools giving this course.

Miss E. MacNamara then gave a very pretty solo which was heartily encored.

Mr. D. D. Moshier, B. A., B. Paed, of Toronto Normal School, was the next speaker and devoted his attention to Primary Reading. He dealt with the three methods of teaching the child to read. First by the old method which was the alphabetic. Second by the Word Method and Third by Phonetic method which was the most modern and best of all known methods. He devoted a good deal of time to the details of the phonetic method. The meeting closed with a violin solo beautifully rendered by Miss M. Walsh, of Lindsay Central School.

This morning's session opened at nine o'clock. "Plays, songs and story telling in the schools" was dealt with by Mrs. Miller who showed the value of plays in school work Their place in the curriculum and the kind of plays to choose for the class.

Songs and their value as well as the value of story telling to the children was ably demonstrated and pointed out. A piano solo by Miss M. Wray, of Omemee Public School, which followed was greatly appreciated.

Another subject which claimed great attention was that of "Physical Exercises." Miss M. R. Governlock read a paper on the value of physical exercise in school work and pointed out the best ways of its application in conjunction with the studies. A class on the same subject was ably taken by Miss L. T. Johnston.

Another violin solo by Miss M. Walsh was heartily applauded by the teachers. Miss Walsh plays with great feeling.

One of the most important matters of business transacted during the day was the election of officers.

President, Mr. Cameron, of Fenelon Falls; Vice Pres. Miss A. F. Fanning, Treasurer Inspector, W. H. Stevens; Secretary, J. A. Trask; Librarian, E. W. Jennings, B. A., Committee:—Miss M. Graham, Miss Francis, Powles Corners, Miss Johnston, Lindsay, Mr. Somerville, Lindsay, Principal J. Rogers, Lindsay, Mr. Elliott, Dunsford.

Mr. E. W. Jennings was elected as the Association's representative on the Public Library Board. Mr. Mills, of Bobcaygeon, Miss Thomas, of Lindsay, and Mr. Hoidge, of Kirkfield, are the Association's representatives to the Ontario Educational Association.

Two Cows Killed

During the terrific storm which prevailed at Woodville last week, Mr Don. Grant had two fine cows killed by lightning. The animals, were with the herd in a field close to the barn. The rest of the herd were badly stunned by the electric discharge, but are recovering. One of the killed animals was a valuable Holstein recently purchased.

Well Preserved Shingles

Mr. William Lees, who resides on Kent-st. east, this morning showed the Post a pine shingle which had been laid with others on the roof of the late Chas. Britton's residence, corner Kent and Ridout-sts., in the summer of 1861. The shingles were removed from the roof this summer and were replaced by a metal roof. The shingle shown by Mr. Lees was in a perfect state of preservation. He states there are plenty of them in a similar condition.

WEDDING BELLS

ALLISON—DREW.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Drew, 30 Front street, when their eldest daughter, Miriam Eunice, became the bride of Mr. C. J. Allison, of Allandale, son of Mr. Alex Allison, of Garden Hill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. W. Anderson, M. A., Presbyterian Minister. The bride was married in her travelling suit of navy blue serge, and hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Allison left on the 4.28 train for Toronto, Port Hope, Buffalo and other points. They will reside in Barrie. There were thirty guests present, among those from out of town being Mrs. Sherk, of Buffalo, Mrs. Matthews, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Allison, of Garden Hill, parents of the groom, Miss May Allison, Garden Hill, Miss Horn, Lindsay, Miss Birchard of Linden Valley, and Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Drew, of Midland.—Orillia Times.

WILLIAMSON—BOUNDY

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Boundy, Cobourg Road, when their daughter, Ethel Fanny, was united in marriage to Mr. Walter Edmund Williamson, son of Mr. Williamson, of Peterboro. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father, and was dressed in Masseline silk of pale green trimmed with Irish Point lace.

The bride's bouquet was lily of the valley and maiden hair fern.

Rev. Mr. McGoing, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated. Mr. Vernon Fisk, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march and at the close of the ceremony, sang, "O Promise Me." The bride's gifts were numerous and useful. About thirty guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding repast, at which the bride's health was drunk. Among the guests were friends from Pefferlaw, Woodville, Argyle, Peterboro, Toronto, and Port Hope. The happy couple left on the International Limited for an extended tour of Western Ontario, after which they will take up their residence in Calgary, Alberta. The bride's travelling costume was a navy blue cloth suit, with becoming French plumed hat. The bride's many friends wish her much happiness and prosperity in her new western home.—Port Hope Guide.

Charged With Stealing Revolver

On Saturday Joseph Marr, a young Scotchman, who has been in town for about three months, and who had been employed for a time as clerk at the Pym House, stole a revolver belonging to the police department from the police station. The weapon was hid behind the post office. Chief Chilton suspected the young man and placed him under arrest.

At this morning's session of the court he was remanded until Tuesday next.

PRESENTATION AT MANILLA

On Friday evening, Sept. 27th, the members of the Dramatic Club met at the home of Miss Hunter to bid farewell to Mrs. McPhail, and to present her with a handsome cut glass water sett. Mrs. McPhail is about to leave Manilla, and the members of the club felt that they could not let her who has taken such a deep interest in the club's welfare, and who has been its guiding spirit, leave without endeavoring to show her, in some slight way, their appreciation of her untiring efforts.

A very eloquent address was read by Mr. Geo. M. Douglas, and the presentation made by Miss Hunter, who has always been closely associated with Mrs. McPhail in all the plays.

Mrs. McPhail was completely taken by surprise, but, as always, rose to the occasion, and in a few well chosen words, thanked the club most heartily for their many good wishes.

HALF MILLION FOR MISSIONS

"Get out of the rut, a rut which gets too deep becomes a grave," declared Mr. J. Campbell White, in addressing the Laymen's Missionary Conference at the Luncheon in St. James' Parish House, Toronto, Thursday afternoon.

Dealing with the necessity of an every-member Christmas envelope for all the missionary problems at home and abroad were to be solved, he declared that, while the increase in missionary giving during the past few years had been most gratifying, still the limit had by no means been reached, and the output in the next five years could easily be doubled. The amount yearly subscribed per head by the Methodists, Presbyterian and Baptists in Canada for all missionary purposes was but $2.50, $3.50 and $4 respectively, which was a very low average in view of the vast amount of work waiting to be done.

SUCCESS IN THE SOUTH.

The simultaneous canvass had been tried with great success in the United States, where the Presbyterians had averaged $6.35 per head by its aid, and next spring the various Protestant denominations there were going to unite in one great effort to raise the twenty million dollars concentrated as the required amount for missionary purposes, during the coming year.

"Toronto has always been held up as an example of how these things are done," declared the speaker, "but you will soon have to hustle and show what you are capable of."

Mr. Murray Williams, of New York, dwelt on the obligation of every man in his own church to put forth his best personal efforts and to remember that he was not a sanctified beggar, as some people supposed, but a soldier in a great campaign.

Mr. George Innes, of Philadelphia, spoke briefly and urged the delegates to strive to do even better in the future than in the past.

HOPE FOR HALF MILLION.

Five years ago Toronto's contributions to missions was $150,000, and the conference set as a mark for this present year the sum of half a million dollars, which is likely to be attained before the end of the year.

Following the luncheon the details of the series of county conferences were explained by H. K. Caskey, the secretary. The object of these conferences, of which 38 will be held in various Ontario towns next month, is to reach the country churches and rouse up the individual members to a sense of their responsibilities. Three conferences were held last spring as an experiment, and were successful.

Fair to Middling

"Well, George," said the president of the company to old George, "how goes it?"

"Fair to middlin', sir," George answered. And he continued to currycomb a bay horse. "Me an this here hoss," he spoke aside, suddenly, "has worked for your firm nineteen years."

"Well, well," said the president, thinking a little gratitude of George's seven-dollar salary. "And I suppose you are both pretty highly valued, George, eh?"

"H'm," said George, "the hoss of us was took sick last week, and they got a doctor for the hoss, but they just docked my pay."

SMOKE CONSUMERS FOR GRAND TRUNK

The G. T. R. has been experimenting for some time with smoke consumers for application to locomotives, and has so far met with sufficient success to warrant the equipping of all the engines used on the Windsor, Ont., as well as a few others at different points on the system. The type used is similar to that now in use by railways in Chicago, where an anti smoke campaign has compelled the railways to use some method of smoke prevention in the city limits. Along the side of the firebox, from 10 to 18 ins. above the fire, there are eight 2 in. tube openings through the water leg, 4 on each side. On the outside, back from the side sheet about 5 ins., are small deflecting jets, one for each opening, located in such a position that the jet at the point of entering the tube completely fills the latter, creating a strong draught, carrying in a volume of air over top of the fire. The brick arch in the firebox of the locomotive is thicker than usual, so that the air brought in through these side openings mixes thoroughly with the smoke in the firebox immediately after it is given off from the bed of coals. With a bright fire burning the smoke is almost completely consumed. In a demonstration which the writer witnessed, several shovels of coal were thrown on a bright fire, resulting in dense smoke being given off. Turning on the steam through these side jets reduced the smoke almost immediately, so that the vapor given off at the stack was just slightly colored. The results of the experiments have been so successful that it is not at all unlikely the yard locomotives all over the system will be so equipped. The road locomotives may likewise be so equipped, but the advantages accruing are not considered to be as great as in yard locomotives, where the question of smoke in the atmosphere is of considerable importance to the community.

The G. T. R. is also experimenting with a circular blower in the stack, consisting of a pipe with a row of holes in the upper side, so placed as to form a draught zone over the exhaust pipe. This is to replace the type of blower now generally in use. The draught given by the new type is very uniform.—Railway and Marine World.

THE BET WAS MADE

Some years ago a cavalry regiment in New York had a badger in a barrel, and a party of officers once told Sir George Wombull that their badger was very difficult to draw. "Oh," said Sir George, "I have a six-months-old puppy that I bet will draw him!" The bet was made, and the following day Sir George appeared at the barracks, not with a sharp terrier, but a lanky and thin retriever, which was greeted by roars of laughter by the officers. Quite unperturbed by their mirth Sir George turned to his dog and said, "Put him in, John!" not head first, as was expected, but tail first. The badger seized the tail, and the dog, without ado, drew the badger with him, and was half-way across the barracks square before the officers realized how cleverly Sir George had won his bet.

FIRE FIGHTING LOCOMOTIVES

Mention has been made in the technical press that certain U. S. railways have equipped some of their locomotives with fire fighting apparatus, to act as auxiliaries to the local municipally owned apparatus at the several stations where these equipped locomotives are to be located.

For some time past, the C. P. R. has been equipping all its switching locomotives with fire fighting apparatus, and in addition to this being ordered on all new switching equipment, orders have been issued to add it to all that class as they come in for shopping. At the end of last year, there were on all parts of the system, 152 locomotives so equipped.

The equipment is standard, apart from the method of installation on old and new locomotives. There are three different styles.

The only changes in the existing equipment to introduce the fire apparatus, is to place a Y connection in the boiler feed pipe, with a valve, operated from the cab, to force the hose connection. In style 2, the arrangement is the same except that it is for the boiler feed injector. Style 3 is similar in most particulars to style 1, except that the boiler check valve is in the head board of the boiler, and is provided with some small middle back switching locomotives, necessitating a pipe branching from the feed pipe and running forward under the runboard. Each side of all the locomotives is similarly equipped, so as to make the auxiliary injector of service.

Each locomotive is equipped with 50 ft. of 1½ in. canvas hose for attachment to the Y connection. This is provided with 1 in. nozzle. With the pressure of the water, as forced out by the injector, a stream can be thrown for a considerable distance, with the stream of such volume as to be of considerable assistance in checking a fire in the early stages. Each locomotive is also equipped with a nipple threaded to fit the local hydrant of the place where the locomotive is stationed, so that the hose may be used on the local service when the water in the tender has been exhausted, or when it is otherwise deemed expedient to do so.

New Material For Laying Dust

Experiments recently conducted at Queen's University, Kingston, show that molasses and the black-colored liquor obtained as a waste product in the manufacture of sulphite wood-pulp makes a better dressing for public highways than the low grade oils now used. The two treatments were compared under identical conditions and it was found that the same quantity of concentrated liquor (one to one) waste liquor will last longer than road oil when subject to the washing of rain, and has the additional advantage of being free from the nauseating odour so objectionable in low grade oils. The Laurentide Pulp and Paper Company have been using this waste liquor for a considerable time on the streets of Grand Mere, Que., where their mills are located, and find it very satisfactory.

The bulletin on pulpwood recently issued by the Dominion Forestry Branch at Ottawa, states that one ton of the pulpwood used in Canada in 1912 was manufactured into pulp by the sulphite method, the other wood constituents being dissolved out by a solution of calcium sulphate and piped into the river as waste liquor. Thus one-half of every cord of wood becomes absolute waste, as also the 140 pounds of sulphur used in its dissolution, for the sulphur becomes so combined organically that it cannot be economically recovered.

It is calculated that material valued at over one and a quarter million dollars is thus wasted in Canada each year.

The utilization of this enormous waste is, therefore, a very important problem in Canada, where an increasing amount of sulphite pulp is being manufactured every year. As a temporary expedient, the use of this waste liquor as a road dressing is to be desired, for it would prevent the contamination of the river with the sulphite mills are situated.—Forestry Bulletin.

Sewing Up Human Heart

Probably the most daring chapter in modern surgery is that which treats of operations of the heart. "The road to the heart is only two inches long," says Dr. Hull, but in this surgery nearly 2,600 years to traverse it," is one writer's estimate. Surgery in this sense this work is made plain by the fact that a book published by Stephen Paget in 1891 contained a chapter on the "Surgery of the Heart," the words being contemptuously enclosed in quotation marks. The sceptics as well as the layman looked upon the heart with an almost superstitious awe. Any surgeon seriously inclined over any interference with such an organ could only hasten the end. Yet many years ago, long before the time of Paget, it was noted that all heart wounds did not result in instantaneous death.

It was not until ten or fifteen years ago that surgeons began to get upon this knowledge. In exceptional cases death did not follow immediately from a heart wound, there were intervals of a few minutes, a few days, or a few weeks. Why not utilize this interval in an attempt to sew up the wound? Medical history now reports many successful operations of this kind. An especially noteworthy one, performed upon a Spanish soldier in 1912, illustrates the resources of modern heart surgery. This boy had been the victim of an especially ugly stab wound. The knife had penetrated the apex of the heart and passed into the left ventricle, making a wound nearly half an inch long. When the boy was placed on the operating table, it was a little negro child, the signs of death had already appeared. His feet were cold, and his face showed signs of the utmost distress. The surgeons made a little window like opening just above the heart, through which they could readily see the injured organ. The blood spurting from the wound at each pulsation, the surgeon put in his hand, pulled the wound together, and while another sewed the wound with a catgut, the operation—performed with an anesthetic—lasted fifty-three minutes, on the sixteenth day the boy was sitting up, in a short time his heart was as good as new.

The crowd in the parlor consisted of a man, a girl and a lamp. "Two people objected," protested the man, whereupon the lamp obligingly went out.

COUNTY TEACHERS IN CONVENTION

There was a large attendance of pedagogues at the Victoria County Teachers' Convention held at the Central school today. In the neighborhood of one hundred and fifty teachers were present, and Secretary Trash had a very busy time entering up their names, and supplying those who applied, with tickets to see "Laurant" the first concert on Mr. C. C. Forsythe's Lyceum Course for this season. Nearly every one of the teachers are going, and seem to be taking two or more friends with them.

The first hour of this morning was spent in chatting with friends, and in looking around the school building. Some of the teachers were also arranging exhibits of the work of their pupils in drawing, water colors, clay modeling, and so forth, but the exhibit was not complete up to noon today. Last year a number of rooms were used for showing the phase of school work, but this year the displays have been condensed so as to occupy only one room.

At eleven o'clock President A. M. Kirkconnell called the meeting to order. Then in a short address he welcomed the teachers to Lindsay. He stated that his message to them was given fully last year, and it would be only a waste of time at the present occasion to repeat it, as all were probably familiar with the thoughts he had conveyed. He thanked them heartily for honoring him so soon after coming here by making him president of the Association. He spoke of the new regulations which have come into force. Writing is now left off the high school entrance examination, and therefore have to be taught more thoroughly in the public schools as pupils would now be tested at the Entrance examinations on that subject. Time devoted to reading has been cut in half. Bookkeeping is cut off the course altogether, except in the case of pupils taking the special Commercial course. The new regulations also are that pupils from schools not approved by the inspector will have to try Entrance examinations a day ahead of pupils from other schools. President Kirkconnell also pointed out that one of the greatest difficulties in teaching was personal enthusiasm, and ability to enthuse pupils in their work. Teachers should do so make their school rooms inkeable places. A funeral atmosphere was not conducive to good results. An occasional joke, from the teacher, and good relationship between himself and his pupils, was the best way to get good results.

Speaking of Dr. Merchant's statement that Lindsay with 16 per cent. of pupils of twelve years of age in the second book, was much better than any other town in Ontario, Mr. Kirkconnell said it should be the aim of all the teachers to reduce even that percentage to ten or even five per cent.

Mr. R. W. Jennings, B. A., of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute, then gave a very interesting talk on "History and methods of teaching it." In the last few years certain changes in the method of teaching this subject has made it much more interesting than formerly. There are three methods most in vogue. The first is an outline method, which is very rapid but sketchy, with no particulars. It has advantages such as definiteness and rapidity. It is organized and emphasizes the most important things. The disadvantages are that it is sapless, and a skeleton, and won't arouse the student's interest.

Another method is by reading from a larger book and getting the thought. The teacher then questions the class and gets at their opinion on the subject. The disadvantage of this is that the good student carries the class along, and the poor one is liable to be overlooked.

Then there is the Graphic method, which is to work from pictures to the pupil's imagination. The teacher commenced before the class with a book or picture which seems to have nothing to do with the school work. For instance take the Tale of Two Cities. Tell the pupils a few explanatory notes connecting it with history, and get him interested in reading of the king. This method is slow, but does good work.

Pictures and cartoons are of incalculable value in interesting a class in history. More thought can be gotten from a class in half an hour by this method than by any other. It is rapid, interesting, and the information imparted is authentic and stays with the pupil because he gets really interested. Mr. Jennings illustrated this method with a picture of Queen Elizabeth in court dress, remarking on the dress and court usages of that day, and leading in a very interesting manner from incidents in the history of that period in such a way that it could not be forgotten. Other pictures were also shown, and the great importance of this subject and more public method illustrated through attention is being directed every year toward plating that subject to the force on the country school room.

The afternoon session was taken up by an address by Mrs. Miller, of Guelph on the Teaching of Agriculture and School Gardening in the County Schools. The country at large has begun to realize the importance of this subject and more public method illustrated through attention is being directed every year toward plating that subject to the force on the country school room.

KING ATTACKED BY SUFFRAGETTES

Surrounded Carriage Containing King and Quee

(Special to The Post.)

London, Oct. 15—Suffragettes today attacked the carriage in which King George and Queen Mary were in their way to St. James Palace, to attend the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and the Duchess of Fife. One woman, bolder than the rest, jumped on the step of the king's carriage and attempted to throw a petition into the vehicle. Police dragged her away, and had difficulty in saving her from an angry mob. Other militants succeeded in throwing copies of the Suffragette into the car in which Queen Mother Alexandria and the Queen of Norway were riding.

Auto Accident Narrowly Averted

From Wednesday's Post.

What was nearly an automobile accident happened this morning near noon at the corner of Kent and William streets.

A stranger touring through Lindsay in a big car passed along William st and when near Saunder's Hotel a small boy breaking in a toy express waggon turned out suddenly without warning from the sidewalk on to the pavement directly in front of the oncoming car. The chauffer jammed on all the brakes and reversed to the left side of the road or the lad would have been hit. As it was he escaped by only a couple of feet.

The boy came on to the road so rapidly and so close to the big vehicle that it was a difficult matter to avoid him. If it had been a horse and rig he would have been directly under the horse's head, and only good horsemanship would have saved doty on to the road midway of the film. Too many people turn out suddenly on to the road without first looking to see that they don't step in front of rigs.

Drivers of delivery waggons and cabs complain of people carelessly stepping in front of them, at street crossings, but almost any place on the streets.

KILLED AND PLACED IN VAT

Theory of Police in Toronto Tragedy

(Special to The Post)

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—That Antonina Thomas Anko was murdered in the dye works of Abraham White at 135 William street last Saturday night, and that the death was not due to suicide, as at first believed, is the opinion held by those who have been investigating the case. Evidence secured tends to show that Anko was killed by a blow on the head and placed in the washing machine in a dying condition. City detectives are now working on the mystery, with a view to exhuming a body, if, as is alleged, to have threatened Anko some time prior to his death.

It was not until the funeral of Anko yesterday that the statement was made that he had been murdered. Anko was a Lutheran and one of the relics of the church in that a member can get no Christian burial if he commits suicide. When arrangements were made by the burial of Anko yesterday from St. Mary's Lutheran Church, friends consulted the authorities with the information of Anko's death and was informed that he should be given a Christian burial, as the evidence led to the suspicion that he had met with foul play. The funeral was held under the auspices of the Lutheran society.

From a close investigation of the interior of the dyeworks and the washing machine in which the body was found detectives are convinced that it would have been impossible for Anko to have committed suicide. Marks and bruises found on his body were evidently received during a fight. The opening in the vat was too small that it would take considerable effort to force Anko's large body through the opening, and he was more than Anko was capable of in his weakened condition.

It is said that wrenches were found in the dyeworks not and that marks on the body would indicate that Anko had been struck down by one of these.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT NEAR VALENTIA

Valentia, Oct. 14—A rather serious accident occurred last Sunday about twelve o'clock, when Mr. Stanley Bowen, his wife and infant child and Miss Ashburn, of Toronto, were on their way to his mother-in-law's, when they were thrown from their carriage, Mr. Bowen receiving a number of bruises, and being somewhat shaken up, still he was able to get around nicely. Miss Ashburn, however, who was thrown against the fence, received more serious injuries, yet it is hoped that she will recover speedily. Mrs. Bowen and the baby escaped unhurt. The carriage was badly wrecked.

BOVING ENGINES HAVE ARRIVED

Is Planing for Extension of Local Plants

Our citizens will be pleased to learn that four Swedish engineers connected with Boving & Co, Limited, arrived in town a few days ago and are now busily engaged in making preliminary arrangements for extensive additions to the local plant of the Canadian Boving Co, Limited.

Our readers will remember that some days ago a letter received by Mr. J. D. Flavelle from the parent Company in London, England, appeared in our columns in which it was stated the engineers were on their way to this country. Their presence in Lindsay means that important developments may now be looked forward to in connection with this important industry.

Not Going To Calgary

Examiner: It will give large pleasure to know that Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, parish priest of Bonsmorre, has elected to stay with his old parishioners. To appreciate Bishop Bishop McNally's reference in consecration sermon to Bishop O'Brien giving his consent to a priest from his diocese being translated to Calgary, it is understood that Bishop O'Brien left the matter optional with Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, and it is no surprise that the latter has shown the amiable weakness of standing by his old friends. Whatever there may have been of temptation to accept the promotion involved in his going to Calgary, it was neutralized by the entreaties of his friends in the parish and elsewhere. They did not wish to lose so good a friend who had done so much for the upbuilding of the parish, and who had endeared himself by his personal and kindly qualities to every parishioner. Nor did his friends in the parish and those not of it if wish to lose his genial presence and valuable citizenship. When affection and appreciation were thrown into the scales against a natural ambition and undoubted preferment, the former sent the balance down, and so Father Fitzpatrick stays with his old friends with whom it is hoped he will spend many happy and useful years.

400 ENTOMBED IN WELSH MINE

500 Saved From Burning Pit

(Special to The Post.)

CARDIFF, South Wales, Oct. 15.—The long and terrible record of Welsh coal mine disasters was added to yesterday morning by one of the worst catastrophes of the present generation, a terrible explosion in the well-known Universal colliery, at Senghenydd, near Cardiff, entailing a loss of life which will, it is feared, total 434.

The Mines Rescue Brigade at once in the pit when the explosion occurred, had to retire.

Rescued, approximately, 500.

Injured, approx. 40.

The day shift descended the shafts in the cages at 4 o'clock. An hour afterwards a rumbling report brought the inhabitants in the vicinity of the pit mouth to the pit head; where they found the ventilating building, situated at the top of the shaft had been blown to atoms, and a man who had been working in a yards away had been decapitated.

Rescue parties of miners belonging to the night shift were soon on the scene. The fore-noon of the miners, however, gave little cause for any of those below could be rescued alive.

An entrance was found, however, by one of the miners and all of the rescuing parties came across some men who had been in a place where the ventilation was still good.

Some 327 living miners had been rescued from the pit when the shaft with the bodies of six of their comrades, who had fallen victims to being dashed against the unglobed electric lights in the galleries by the explosion.

The rescuers continued their search in remote galleries and by noon had picked up and brought to the surface about 500 men.

At the pit head the wives, children and relatives of the entombed men in the miners gathered in thousands and waited for the rescued men, and for men and children cent and clamored for news of their dead in the pit.

The men brought to the surface were found on the east side of the pit. Some of the rescued men were fairly good while on the west side, where the explosion occurred, they soon added its terrors to the death affrights of the men who, if alive, were unable to make any progress to the surface, owing to fire.

The officials of the mine found it necessary to sill a detachment of pony guards keep back the women and children, while the mine managers, with tears streaming down their eyes, replied to all inquiries, "There is little hope."

Most of the rescued men presented a pitiful appearance. Some of them were not expected to live and nearly all of them were suffering from fright and shock or the effects of after damp.

The same pit was stricken by an explosion three years ago, when 120 men and boys were killed and only one of those below at the time was rescued alive.

Safety First On the C. P. R.

Safety first is an urgent consideration with all the railways, but the Canadian Pacific Railway is leading in time in supplementing its protecting agencies devised to reduce the danger of accident to a minimum, if not to eliminate them altogether. The company has made a vigorous commencement in the introducing of the system with an automatic electric block signal. This is somewhat similar to the ordinary semaphore, which is a white iron or wood board, and, some twenty-five feet high, with painted cross-arm for daylight purposes, and red, yellow and brilliant lights for night use. The track is divided into blocks at the end of which is a signal. A train standing or running in given block, will set the signal in the block immediately behind it, against following trains—thus ensuring perfect safety from rear end collisions. This is the case in double track, but in a single track installation, the signals are so worked that a train in a block will set the signal against following trains—thus ensuring perfect safety from rear end collisions. DEALING WITH THAW

Canada's method of dealing with Mr. Thaw seems to elicit this comment from Harper's Weekly:

"The Canadian government seemingly has advantages. The presence in that country of a degenerate young man of wealth, who happened to have shot a famous architect and been associated with a famous beauty, created some excitement for a few days in a very small town which had theretofore led a peaceful life. But the Canadian government rapidly tired of this species of limelight, and calmly threw Thaw across the border back into the country that produced him. Canada will now go back to doing its work as usual, and let the business of filling its newspapers and possibly its courts with Thaw's affairs will be left to the United States."

ABOLISHING HOME STUDIES

A few days ago the post published a paragraph to the effect that a movement was on foot in Alberta to have abolish home lessons for small children. There is also a report that night classes are to be cut out in two certain institutions of learning in order that the evenings may be given to the pupils for entertainment or for social study. Does this mean that public opinion as well as educationists are beginning to doubt the wisdom of home lessons?

In some circumstances, remarks the Kingston Standard, home lessons may be desirable and even necessary, but taken as a general rule they are at all events open to question. The necessity for them would appear to arise from what is complained of so much; the multitude of subjects which are attempted to be taught. If, as we think should be the case, these were reduced with the primary aim of a thorough grounding in reading, writing and arithmetic, with the other subjects, there would be no necessity for home lessons as time could be obtained during school hours. That is the time for preparing lessons.

The words have been used in connection with the aim of this movement in Alberta of "lightening the children's labours;" it is an estimative and sympathetic. If you come to think of it, many children are forced to labour harder than their fathers. How many of the latter have Sabbath home work to do, or go back to do it? Is it reasonable that our public school system should enforce this child labour? We make laws against employment of children in factories—yet make the children work at home.

Many parents no doubt think that the home lessons keep the children out of mischief, which is really a very serious reflection upon themselves. The training of character should be done at home by the parents. Then the evenings should be made use of for games, reading, and the giving of that knowledge and culture which many people claim are so lacking in Canada. Again in the summer after the school hours, youth is taken up by sports, organized sports, which are so admirable in themselves, but which should form a part of education.

THE KING'S SLUMS

"The Soul," Canada's largest city, and a splendid example of what provision can do for a country, was visited last week by Thomas Rickerdsen, a labor member of the British Parliament, says the Grain Growers' Guide. Unlike most of our distinguished visitors from across the sea, Mr. Richardson did not confine his sight seeing to an automobile trip through the best business and residential parts of the city. After he had seen the banks and the homes of a few millionaires, he placed himself under the guidance of Mrs. Ross Henderson, social worker and juvenile court probation officer, who showed him around Griffintown, where the poorer classes of workmen live. To his guide Mr. Richardson said:

"I never in all my life saw slums as terrible as absolutely filthy, as those you have shown me here in Montreal. Why, in parts of England, we tear down, by order of the health board, places that are palaces to these."

Chas. B. Gordon, the new president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, who is president of the Dominion Textile Co., and one of the "42" who own Canada, is a Montreal man, and as one who lived his city and is consumed with the desire to uplift the masses, he will no doubt see that the condition is at once remedied.

THE RESULT IN CHATEAUGUAY

The influence of the Hon. Bob Rogers and his satellites was too much of a handicap for the Liberals in the Chateauguay election on Saturday in which Hon. Sydney Fisher, former Minister of Agriculture in the Laurier Cabinet was defeated.

The question of naval defence, which the Liberals made the one issue in the campaign, was ignored by the Conservatives. Money, promises of government works and an appeal to racial prejudice were the three factors which told against the Liberals "Win at any price" was the slogan of the political bucaneers who defeated the riding.

The Liberals will contest the election on the Military ticket, when revelations of a startling nature will be made public. A deputate from Armston, Que., says that almost all members of the Tories in that last desperate efforts to defeat Hon. Sydney Fisher. The Liberal workers in the riding had a large staff of detectives watching the Tory organisation, and these, together with the leading Liberals of Chateauguay and Montreal, within the past ten days succeeded in running down what is declared to be the most wholesale system of bribery and corruption ever attempted in Canada.

No two-dollar bills enfeed for this election. The Government was determined at all costs to defeat Hon. Mr. Fisher, and the money travelled in bills of large denominations. Contributions for votes ocon mounted to unheard-of figures.

SOCIETY AND CRIMINALS

(Kingston Standard.)

How far are society responsible for the manufacture of its criminals? What is the relation of social conditions to crime? How far is part at least, the cause of crime and effect? Is the criminal an output or product of society—of its evil conditions, its low standards, its selfishness and injustice? How far are heredity and environment to blame when a man steals a pair of boots? Man is a gregarious animal. We live in groups. Our moral standards are those of our own set, and they are shaped by the heredity and environment of generations of men. They have come to us from the past, they are the result of our tradition. The story of George Washington, and his hatchet has been an important factor in making the American a truthful man. On the other hand, the story of Jesse James the dime novel, the sensational accounts of crime in the press, work the other way. We do not feel guilty if we defraud an old lady, or steal from a big corporation, but we feel guilty if we do a dishonest act. Boys can be traced from the pool room and the bar to the den, where they plan the shop-breaking raid, and thence to the penitentiary.

Then, is society responsible for the poisonous environment which it imposes on the boy, sending him to the school of crime, from which in due course he graduates, a hardened criminal? Society sends him to a prison where he meets a new kind of "group," a new "set." It is composed of criminals, old, young, and mid-dle-aged, who welcome the boy as a comrade, they are sympathetic with him, at the time of his life when he most needs sympathy—cut off from home and friends and the things that for him made life worth living. Tarde, the French criminologist, says: "The sovereigns of the kingdom of evil are imitation and heredity. In an aggregation of men a psychological fermentation takes place. Criminals live together in groups, and imitate one another. They are influenced by mutual suggestion. From the individual of vicious character there goes out through the group a contagious propagation of evil influence."

A TIMELY QUESTION

"Go and sin no more," said Sir John Boyd at the fall assizes in Ottawa the other day to an unfortunate girl, who had been charged with murdering her infant child. The real culprit is the man, declared the judge. "Open the door and let her go." But why was the real culprit allowed to go unpunished?—Hamilton Herald."

The unfortunate young girl may make a brave attempt to lead a better life, but, as is the case in a great many instances, society will bar the door of its heaven against her. Her seducer, however, can mingle in with the community with impunity and his crime overlooked. "Alas for the purity of Christian charity."

UNITED IRELAND

John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, speaking at a great home rule demonstration in Limerick Sunday declared himself unalterably against the suggestion made by Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, in a speech at Dundee last week, that a settlement of the Irish question might be reached by the exclusion of a portion of Ulster from the operation of the bill.

Mr. Redmond said that the suggestion was impracticable and unworkable. Such a proposition, he declared, would have no support from the Nationalists, and even the Unionists of Ireland were against it. He had always favored giving every safeguard that Ulster desired, but Ireland must remain a nation.

AWKWARD PRECEDENT

This is from the London Advertiser:—

"The commutation of Gibson's sentence has no legal ground. It is merely a contention to the sentiment against capital punishment. The next murderer will have the same right to executive clemency, and will probably secure it if he can present a petition signed by thousands. The Gibson case will be an awkward precedent. The consistent course would be the abolition of capital punishment."

There is considerable truth in the Advertiser's contention. The precedent established is bound to create trouble in the future. People can be stampeded into signing a petition for almost anything nowadays.

Where Charity Is Misplaced

How many times a month do you put your hand in your pocket and produce a coin in response to the "appeal to charity" of the cripple (?) who is selling court plaster, worthless lead pencils, or "web poetry" on a dirty card? You figure that it is cheaper and less troublesome to give a nickel or a dime than to stop a quarter, you may happen to have in your pocket, than to argue the point with the undoubtedly prevalent species of mendicant.

Towards the end of the day you may meet the object of your tender solicitude and sure alarm coming out of some saloon reeling with the load he has bought with your change and coins. He is not the only one badly crippled as he was when he appealed to you for a hand-out, and he is now as independent as Daddy's pig.

Did you ever figure out that these wandering beggars gather in as much as five and six dollars in a day?—It only takes fifty dimes to make a five spot—and it is quite probable that not one of those who contributed to the spoils of the day, earns half as much as the cripple's total collections.

The "Mendicants Need not Apply" sign should be hung out in front of every business place. If the cripple is worthy of support, the state at large should look after him, but the individual can do nothing to every beggar that comes along is but perpetuating a class of hardened hobo who are laughing at the soft-hearted public, which supplies them with boozemoney.—Port Hope Times.

RAILWAY BOARD SENDS ENGINEER

Reeve Kylie and Ald. Smale returned from Toronto last evening, where with Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, K. C., they appeared before the Board of Railway Commissioners in connection with the town's application for a ruling re the removal of the G. N. W. Tel. Co's poles of Kent-st.

The town's representatives very ably presented the town's case before the Board while President Perry, of the G. N. W. looked after the interests of his Company.

Chairman Drayton during the course of the hearing evidently was in doubt as to the authority that the G. N. W. did not remove its poles when the other Companies had done so. The matter of assuming the cost, he remarked required some consideration, and in order to arrive at a satisfactory solution, the Railway Board would send down one of its best Engineers to go carefully over the ground. He would visit Lindsay in the course of a few days and the council would be notified of his visit.

The Globe in referring to the proceedings says:—

The town of Lindsay applied for an order compelling the Great North Western Telegraph Company to remove its poles from Kent street to a less prominent thoroughfare. A representative of the company appeared and said the company would not object if the town assumed the cost of moving the poles and readjusting the wires, which would be about $1,300. He said that the gross receipts of the company in Lindsay last year were $1,500, while there was a net loss of $266.

"Why not leave the town alone altogether?" suggested R. J. McLaughlin, K. C.

COULD NOT DESERT LINDSAY

It was stated by the representative that the company's telegraph service in the surrounding country which went through the Lindsay office.

The matter was referred to Engineer Mountain, who with an official of the company made a representation of the town, will go into the matter.

THE TORTURES OF RHEUMATISM

Driven From the System by Dr. William's Pink Pills.

The sufferer from rheumatism who has not gone about during himself in the right direction, knows the pain of the torture with every change to cold or damp weather. It is not the change to the weather that causes the rheumatism, but it does start the aches and pains. Rheumatism is a deep-seated disease of the blood. You cannot possibly cure it with outward applications or hot fomentations as so many people in their ignorance do the real cause of the trouble try to do.

Rheumatism can only be driven out of the system by driving out the poisonous acid in the blood. This can only be done by making the blood rich, red and pure. It is in this way that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure rheumatism, even after other remedies have failed. These pills make rich, red blood; they go right to the root of the trouble, and the pains and aches are driven from the system and will not return if the blood supply is kept pure. That is the whole secret of curing rheumatism. Mr. Jean Lecuyer knows how to cure yourself today by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Among the many sufferers from rheumatism driven out by the use of this medicine is Miss Mary D. Kelly, South Dunmore, Ont. Miss Kelly says: "Some time ago I had a very bad attack of rheumatism. At times I would be confined to bed for a couple of days and would be almost paralyzed with the intense pain in my back and legs. At such times I could not walk, and my joints were stiff and swollen. I underwent treatment for it and took their medicine, but did not get more than temporary relief. At this time a neighbor advised me to try Dr. William' Pink Pills, and I got a supply. After taking a few boxes I found they were greatly helping me, and I continued their use until the trouble completely disappeared. I can strongly recommend this medicine to others who suffer as I did from the pangs and tortures of rheumatism."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Ordered Wires Removed to Poles

The Berlin, Ont., item in Thursday's Post was unfortunately erroneous and misleading. The Railway Board made an order directing the removal of the C.P.R. and G. N.W. Telegraph Companies' wires on Queen street, but Mr. Angus MacMurchy, solicitor for the C. P. R., points out that the board did not order the lines placed underground, as stated in the heading of the article referred to in the week note. The company has only "accepted the telegraph companies' proposal," and directed the wires removed from the municipal poles on Queen street, and placed in substitution" on "similar poles on Frederick street." The question of cost was reserved. The item as received from Berlin said nothing of the substitution of pole lines on another street, and did mention application as being "also made to compel the Bell Telephone company to remove its poles and place the wires underground on King street," hence the natural inference that the telegraph wires were to be placed underground on Queen street.

Potatoes Plentiful

The family potato barrel will not fail in Ontario homes this winter, according to present crop indications. From this time forth the market for this product will change, and the farmers gathering in the harvests will bring in unusually large loads of tubers. It has been estimated by the Department of Agriculture that 120,000 more bushels will be handled this year than in 1912, and the supplies of the last season were accounted somewhat a record. We understand that Thompson McDonald Co. have contracted for a large supply from the east, which will be retailed under one dollar per bag.—Post, Cobourg.

Warning For Lindsay Youths

Brockville, Oct. 13—At ten minutes to one Friday morning, the thing that the town was too dull and needed a stirring up, Neil McCauley and Arthur Dumaw, two young men, accompanied by another whose identity the police have not as yet learned, walked up to box 12 at the corner of Pearl and Dundas streets, and sent in an alarm of fire. The firemen and many citizens responded, as did also Sergt. Burns and constable Ghatier. They became suspicious of McCauley's actions, and placed him under arrest. He gave the name of Dumaw, who was taken from his bed two hours later. Dumaw would not give the name of the third party. The pair were fined $40 each.

This should prove as a warning to local youths who indulge in this practice.

BARRICADE OF CEDAR STUMPS

Beaverton Express: A report in circulation to the effect that certain parties in town attended a meeting in Lindsay last Thursday night in their automobiles, and that one of the parties on the return trip found a barricade of cedar stumps thrown across the road at a point between Oakwood and Manilla. It is further reported that the party in the first automobile is responsible for this serious breach of the law. More will undoubtedly be heard of from the parties who were thus held up, whose lives and limbs were endangered.

Obstructing the public highway, endangering life and limb is an offence for which severe penalties are prescribed.

Fowl Supper At Dunsford

The fowl supper last night at Dunsford was a big success and large numbers from the surrounding district attended and helped swell the financial proceeds for the church of England.

There were all kinds of fowl served in abundance and good just to a nicety. The viands were so appetizing that second helpings were much in demand. The waiters were kept busy supplying the people's wants and did so with courtesy and despatch.

After the supper was over a concert was held and much enjoyed by all.

It is understood that the church realized well from the venture.

Railway Fares Higher

The railway companies evidently have agreed upon has thereof holiday rates heretofore. Return tickets at one fare and a third are advertised for Thanksgiving time, the single fare rate being allowed on Thanksgiving day only. The change is accounted for by the enormous increase in holiday travel, and the difficulty of handling it. One result of the present restriction will no doubt be an increased adoption of a compulsory two-cents-a-mile rate all the year round.—Peterboro Times.

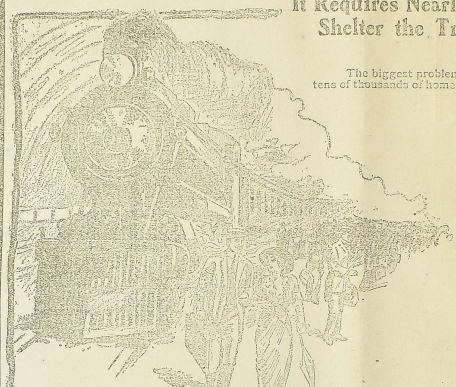
40,000 PEOPLE

Came to Live in Toronto Last Year

It Requires Nearly 10,000 New Homes to Properly Shelter the Tremendous Annual Influx of Population



The biggest problem to-day that Toronto has to face is how to supply its tens of thousands of homeseekers with suitable houses and building property.

Toronto has a population of 22 to the acre, this means that each year it requires from 1400 to 2000 additional acres to provide building sites for the natural increase of population.

A city on the American Continent is considered in healthy condition when it has not more than 5% of vacant houses. According to the report of the Toronto Police census, Toronto has over 90,000 houses—therefore it should have 5,000 vacant houses, but Toronto's increase in population is so tremendous that it is conservatively estimated that there are not more than 250 vacant houses to-day.

Dr. Hastings, the Toronto Medical Health Officer, states that the city is in need at the present time of 20,000 new houses.

With all building activity, they cannot keep up with the demand. A house is hardly half finished before it is sold.

Toronto has reached a period of expansion where small real estate holders are making fortunes. Farm-lands that surrounded Toronto a few years ago are now solidly built-up sections of the present city.

Toronto has a world-wide reputation as a city of homes. As a rule the Toronto man's greatest ambition is to own a house of his own, and his first investment is in a house or homesite property.

It is principally this fact that makes Toronto real estate such a reliable investment.

TORONTO

Will Reach the Half Million Mark by End of Year

Toronto's population is just touching the half million mark. It has doubled in ten years, and it requires no stretch of the imagination to foresee a million population in 1923, if not sooner.

The same influences that have made the United States what it is to-day and built up the mighty cities of New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago are now at work making Canada one of the greatest nations in the world. The 13th Century changed to the United States, the 20th Century is Canada's. Immigration is is getting the cream of them all.

TORONTO REAL ESTATE OFFERS THE SAFEST—SANEST—MOST PROFITABLE INVESTMENT IN CANADA TODAY

Toronto's increase in assessment this past year shows the rapid growth of its land values. One hundred million dollars is to be spent shortly on the development of Greater Toronto. $25,000,000 in making the harbor one of the finest on this continent, $13,000,000 on the Esplanade project, $4,000,000 on the new Union Depot and railway improvements, $4,000,000 on Drainage of North Toronto, $20,000,000 by the C.P.R. and G.T.R. on line extensions and additional shunting facilities.

The time to purchase Toronto real estate is now while these developments are going on, for when they are completed, the land values in the city will have reached the highest point in the history of Toronto and substantial profits can be reaped by those who had the wisdom to invest early.

WE ARE THE LARGEST REAL ESTATE FIRM IN THE DOMINION

The Dovercourt Land, Building and Savings Company, Limited, has its finger on the pulse of Toronto. It has studied the growth of Toronto for years—it has foreseen the time when the city's expansion would cause land values to rise quickly to their normal level.

We have opened up subdivision after subdivision, developed them and built them up. Every foot of land we have sold to our clients has advanced in price, making them handsome profits. We do not abandon our clients after we sell to them. We develop their land—make it more valuable and resell it for them when it has advanced in price. We spend immense sums in improvements—for instance, we are spending $50,000 on the development of our latest subdivision, Strathgowan, making it one of the most beautiful residence properties in Toronto. We are owners—not agents. We are land developers—not speculators. We always buy in the line of growth where the rise in land values is immediate and certain. Our clients who take our advice are never disappointed.

They profit by our knowledge of realty conditions—by our ability to spend large sums of money in purchasing and developing raw land—by our ability to resell at a profit the land they purchase from us.

Our Knowledge of Toronto Real Estate—Our Experience—Our Advice—Are at Your Disposal Now

Our numerous out of town clients are always welcome at our offices when they come to Toronto. We are only too pleased to motor them through our properties, show them the great developments going on, and give them advice on realty matters.

For the benefit of those who are unable to come to Toronto just now when the opportunities for profitable real estate investments are especially attractive we are sending our Mr. H. C. Lapp and Mr. P. L. Clarkson to your city. These gentlemen have expert knowledge of realty conditions in Toronto and are authorized to act for us. Everbody who is interested is entirely welcome to call on them at any time during the day or evening and discuss matters with them, or telephone, or send them a card for an appointment.

to stop for several days at a hotel without arousing the suspicion of those whom he least desires to attract. During his stay he will find out how many calls are made during the day by the salesman in whom he is interested, and also much other informative data.

RINGS UP CUSTOMERS

Sometimes a detective makes a point of ringing up on the telephone certain customers of the firm he represents to inquire whether the regular representative has recently made a call as arranged. If a visit has been paid, well and good, but if not, the matter is immediately reported to headquarters by the detective, who also sends along any other information he may have acquired. Occasionally, however, travellers get an advance tip as to the whereabouts of a detective from a friend at the head office, and it is needless to say that the somewhat unscrupulous commercials are then exceptionally busy.

On receipt of a detective's report, the head of the firm weighs the facts which have been ascertained together with the orders and inquiries which have been sent in by the traveller, and, if the decision is favorable, nothing is said; but, on the other hand, the traveller may be severely reprimanded, and even informed that his services are no longer required. The existence of the secret report, however, is seldom, if ever, disclosed.

ON WRONG TRAIL

Some curious incidents were related to the writer by a drummer recently then detective. One was recently sent to keep an eye on a traveller who was supposed to be doing a certain city on the Lakes. He was furnished with a complete account of the proposed journey, together with a list of the customers. The detective searched most diligently, but cautiously, everywhere, but he never so much as caught sight of his man, although his quarry's appearance was well known to him. After several hasty communications with headquarters, it was found that the suspected traveller had been exhibited to another territory altogether.

A short time ago an unfamiliar face was noted at a well known resort of knights of the bag. The usual advances were made to the stranger, and in due course, with tactful and friendly references to the nature of his business was made. The stranger appeared to give some, the faintest indication of his "line," and his conduct not unnaturally aroused certain suspicions. When he left the conclusion was arrived at that he was a detective, and it was decided that everything should be made as unpleasant for him as possible. Much trouble was taken to do this, and among other things it was arranged that he should not be called at the time asked for. A mean trick was also substituted. Eventually, it was discovered that he was quite a new man, and that he was travelling for himself. He did not quite understand the rovers, and he was also rather bashful.

PROCEEDINGS OF MARIPOSA COUNCIL

The members were all present and the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Mr. Dennis Mack in desired the Council to clean out a part of the Short Drain so as to give him an outlet, but it was shown that Mr. Mackin had signed an agreement with the Engineer to do this work himself, so that the Council could not see their way to interfere in the matter. Mr. John DeGeer was present and informed the council that his portion of the Lowmedowgh drain was completed, or rather cleaned out, and also that there was about eight inches of water in the upper end of the Drain, and about twenty two inches in the lower end of the drain, this being caused by a bar of rock never being taken out on Mr. Thomas Curtis' farm. Mr. Thomas Stewart, Township Solicitor, and Mr. A. G. Cavana, Township Engineer, were present to discuss the Percy Brown Drainage trouble, and it was finally decided that the Engineer should provide simply an outlet for all the waters converging at Lots 14, 15 and 16 in concessions 12 and 13 Mariposa, and that all persons receiving any benefit from this improved outlet should be charged for the outlet purposes. This scheme will enable all persons using the drains or creeks emptying into this outlet, to take up a scheme for enlarging or improving any of these drains or creeks at any time in the future when they are so disposed to do so.

Messrs T. H. Watson of Sagrave, and William Parfeil, of Port Perry, waited on the Council to get their co-operation in petitioning the Dominion Government to take such means as will maintain Lake Scugog at a high water mark level, or at least on an even water level. Mr. Parfeil informed the Council that the Government had reimbursed all persons along the shores of these waters for any lands that may have been drowned or rendered useless by reason of the water being at high water mark. At the present time the body was a fake for a part of the year and a little better than a mud hole for the balance of the year, and being a menace to the health of the inhabitants along the shore, and also preventing the propagation of fish. Many other reasons were given by Messrs Watson and Parfeil. The Trustees of School Section No. 3, Little Britain presented a requisition whereby they derived the Council to raise the sum of $4190.00 by the issue and sale of Debentures for a term of Twenty years, to bear interest at Five per cent for the erection of a new Public School House in said Section.

Motion by Messrs Kevin Rogers and Charles Jenkins—That it is hereby be hereby authorized to sign the agreement of owners, respecting construction of the drain at lots 1 and 2 in concession 2, Fenelon, and lot 29 in concession 2 Ops, and being a continuation of the Rogers-Hancock Drain at lots 31, 32, 33, and 34 in concession 11 of the Township of Mariposa, said agreement bearing date the 9th day of September, 1913, whereby the Council of Mariposa agree to dig, construct, and maintain 20 rods of said Drain, commencing at stake Five and extending up stream to stake 6, and to complete the performance thereof on or before the fifteenth day of November, 1913.—Carried.

Motion by Messrs Neil Ferguson and William Rich—That the Council withdraw their approval of the plans of the Grand Trunk Railway Co. for the renewal of Bridge No. 149, Lot 26 mile post 31.39 in the tenth district of its railway Company, and that a copy thereof be sent to the Township of Mariposa, and that the Clerk write the secretary of the Board of Railway Commissioners setting out and explaining the danger to the public, and asking the commission to send an engineer to examine the premises, and that the clerk also write the Grand Trunk withdrawing our consent and explaining the reasons for so doing.—Carried.

Motion by Messrs Neil Ferguson and William Rich—That the resolution of the Trustees of School Section No. 8 right off the Township of Mariposa to issue Debentures for the sum of $1190.00 for a term of Twenty years and to bear interest at five per cent be received, and that a By-law be prepared for said purpose.—Carried.

Motion by Messrs Neil Ferguson and Edwin Rogers—That whereas the people residing in the neighborhood of Lake Scugog are entitled to the benefit of the navigation system of the Trent Valley Canal. And whereas for many years the water level of Lake Scugog has been allowed to vary, very greatly to the detriment of the interests of all parties residing on the margin thereof, with the result that navigation has been continually impeded, and in a large measure in many places prevented altogether, while at times large areas of land have been exposed to the great danger of the health of the people. And whereas considerable additional interests are involved in the summer tourist traffic, which has greatly fallen off owing to the destruction of the fish, during winter when the level of the lake has been very low. And whereas the great variation of the water level has been caused by the unlawful use of the water at the Lindsay Dam, which has been frequently complained of without results. The Municipal Council of the Township of Mariposa hereby resolves that it be represented to the Government on behalf of the said Township that the interests of the residents thereof, residing upon or near Lake Scugog, require that the dam at Lindsay be taken out of private lands by the purchase thereof, by the Government, to the intent that it may be used in the public interests so that the water of Lake Scugog may be kept at a moderate and even level.—Carried.

Motion by Messrs Edwin Rogers and Charles Jenkins—That By-law No. 723 being a By-law to authorize the Municipal Council of the Township of Mariposa, to raise the sum of $4190.00 for the erection of a new Public School House for school section No. eight of said Township be received and read a first time in duplicate.—Carried.

By-law No. 723 was read a second and third time, passed signed and sealed.

Motion by Messrs Charles Jenkins and William Rich—That the Clerk be instructed to have By-law advertised and registered as provided by the statutes in that behalf.—Carried.

Mr. David Yorex, Commissioner for the south half of the Township, ordered accounts aggregating the sum of $209, and also Mr. Gillies' accounts aggregating $306.00 which were ordered paid. General accounts aggregating the sum of $523.60 were passed including the sum of $186.10 to Mr. Cavana for fees and expenses on the Spray Drain. The Engineer's claim for filing his report of the Percy Brown drainage trouble was extended till the second Monday in February next, after which the council adjourned till the second Monday in November.

J. B. Weldon, Clerk.

FISH WERE ON A SPREE

Marion, Ind., Oct. 10.—Multitudes of intoxicated fish hauled in by the thousands from the shallows of the marsh of beer were turned into the Mississinewa River from an Indiana brewery under the direction of the United States revenue officers. The Mississinewa is the Indian name for "sparkling water."

It became indeed sparkling water after the beer was poured in. A stream of pure champagne could not have caused more of a jamboree. And persons who looked down from the bridge laughed and shrieked like a crowd of roysterers in a grill room on New Year's eve.

Some said afterwards they had experienced a feeling akin to drunkenness as they looked over the railings of the bridges and were moved to mirth while light headed by the antics of the fish. Many thought they really had gone through a sort of sympathetic mental spree.

There came down the river thousands of fish disporting themselves in an extremely unfashionable way, leaping all manner of new fangled somersaults and flopping against each other in frenzied bunches. Carp, catfish, suckers and occasionally a bass curtsy capers as they coursed the current.

"An army of small boys assembled on an island just below one of the bridges, where the fish with "wet noses" were trying to get over a riffle.

Equipped with small bats, clubs, boat oars and other weapons, the boys, and men, too, for that matter, waded into the shallow water and waylaid their quarry. Many caught fish in their hands and any who wished carried home a string or a basketful.

Thousands of pounds were taken out of the river. Some men got away with 100 pounds each. Operations continued all day, but as the afternoon drew along the fish seemed to sober up and regain their usual faculties of evasion.

Some persons experimented by putting drunken fish in fresh water. Soon after this was done the victims recovered and seemed just like normal fish.

Only a part of the fish were in an extreme state of intoxication.

A few, however, died as the result of their innocent carousal, but many others were killed by boys.

Regular fish were scarce in the limelight. Countless crawfish climbed up on the piers of the bridges and it will have been possible for days to have been scooped up by the barrel full. There was an unusually startled expression in the "crawdads" eyes.

WEDDING BELLS

KILLEN—SCOLLARD

O'CONNOR—SCOLLARD

Two very pretty weddings were celebrated at Kenilworth on October 7th, when the two youngest daughters of Mr. James Scollard were united in the holy bonds of matrimony—Miss Rita to Mr. James Killen, and Miss Fanny to Mr. Patrick O'Connor. Both young men are residents of the township.

To the strains of the "Lohengrin" wedding march, played by Miss Agnes Scollard, the brides entered the church on the arms of their father, who gave them away.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Pitzpatrick, parish priest, who immediately afterwards celebrated mass for the happy couples, at which they were given the nuptial blessing and received Holy Communion.

At the signing of the register Miss Irene Doherty, of Toronto, sang very sweetly an O Salutaris.

Both brides were very modestly attired in neat and appropriate costumes. Miss Rita's gown was of a pale blue satin, with over dress of embroidered chiffon, with pale blue hat with blue French ostrich plume, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Fanny wore a pale yellow satin, with over dress of hand embroidered chiffon. She also wore a white plush hat with two shaded yellow French ostrich plumes, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses.

Them two young ladies are among Kenilworth's fair daughters, while their husbands are very highly respected and esteemed by the whole community.

Many friends accompanied them to the church to witness the sacred rite, and pray for their future happiness and prosperity.

All then repaired amidst the congratulations of those present to the home of the bride's father to partake of a sumptious dinner there prepared for them.

O'KEEFE—GREENAN.

A very pretty nuptial event was solemnized at St. Mary's Church this morning when Vicar-General Casey, who also celebrated the nuptial mass, united in matrimony Mr. Michael O'Keefe of Keene, Peterboro County, and Miss Hannah Greenan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Greenan, of South Ops.

The bride who entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. Peter Greenan, to the strains of a wedding march played by Miss Mary Flurey, looked charming in a tailor-made suit of black and the hat to match. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Ethel, who was gowned in Copenhagen blue, and Mr. William Hurley, of Norwood, cousin of the groom, acted as best man.

During the nuptial mass of the register Miss Mary Flurey sang an Ave Maria in splendid voice.

After the ceremony the happy couple proceeded to the residence of the bride's parents, where, together with the immediate relatives, they partook of a wedding breakfast. The dining room was tastefully decorated with smilax and white roses.

Among the valuables present were Mr. and Mrs. O'Keefe, Peterboro, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Welsh, Keene, Mr. Joseph Greenan, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Steinberg, Peterboro.

The popularity of the bride was evidenced by the number of beautiful and useful presents received. The gift of the groom to the bride was a silk set, to the bridesmaid a three pearl ring and to the groomsman a pair of gold cuff links.

The happy couple left this afternoon on the 4.36 C. P. R. train for Toronto, St. Catharines and other points, after which they will take up residence near Keene. Their many friends wish them a happy life of connubial bliss.

THE FALL WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Canadian fall weather is extremely hard on little ones. One day it is warm and bright and the next wet with cold. These sudden changes bring on colds, croupes and colics and unless baby's little stomach is kept right the result may be serious. There is nothing to equal Baby's Own Tablets in keeping the little ones well. They sweeten the stomach, regulate the bowels, break up colds and make baby thrive. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SIMCOE COUNTY'S NEW JUDGE

For months speculation has been rife as to the probable successor to Judge Ardagh in the senior judgeship of the county of Simcoe. This week positive information is available, and the Barrie Advance says: Mr. Geo. M. Vance, K. C., a prominent lawyer of Shelburne, has been appointed Senior Judge of Simcoe, and will remove there shortly. Although the appointment has not been officially gazetted yet, Mr. Vance has been notified, and was in town yesterday, with Mr. John Dent, M. P., of Dufferin, getting acquainted with the officials here. Mr. Vance is a well known lawyer, and the legal profession here speaks highly of him.

The Examiner says George Montgomery Vance, K. C., of Shelburne, recently appointed senior judge of Simcoe, was born in the township of Caledon, County Peel, on October 4th, 1866. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Vance, of Millbrook, were native of Ireland. Mr. M. Vance was educated at Millbrook, law course he spent two years in the office of J. W. Curry, K. C., of Toronto, and finished his course with W. L. Walsh, K. C., of Orangeville, now Mr. Justice Walsh, of Calgary. Mr. Vance was called to the bar in 1893, and since that time has lived at Shelburne, where he has built up an extensive and lucrative practice. He was made a K. C. in 1906. During his residence at Shelburne he was very active in promoting anything calculated to benefit the town and was for several terms councillor and reeve, which positions he filled with credit to himself and the municipality. He was married in 1894 to May B., daughter of the late Peter Johnson, of Camden East. He is a member of the Church of England. The people of Dufferin would have been highly pleased had he been appointed Judge of that county.

Women's Institute of West Ops

The regular monthly meeting of the West Ops W. I. was held on Wednesday, Oct. 8th at the home of Mrs. T. W. Curtis, with over sixty ladies present. The following programme was rendered: Duet, Dwyer, an instrumental solo; Mrs. H. Irvine, a solo, and Mrs. J. A. White, a reading. Prizes were given for the best worked buttonhole, and were presented by Mrs. Geo. Mills, who acted as judge. First to go to John Darke, second to Mrs. Thomas Darke, and the visitors' prize to Mrs. L. McGregor. A recital time was spent over the refreshments, which were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. T. W. Curtis, Mrs. J. Johnson, Mrs. T. J. Hicks, Mrs. K. Ray and Miss E. Darke. The next meeting will be held at the home of the Misses Hicks on Nov. 12th. Topic, Christmas festivities.

BARRIE LAYING CONCRETE ROADS

The Advance says: If there is one road in Barrie that is in the line of roadway known as Bradford-street where the sons of Sunny Italy rub shoulders with Canadian workmen in their daily occupation, that is a smooth and durable one of the leading arteries of communication in the town, which has been in a disgrace and the source of trouble and expense. And the transformation taking place along this street is wonderful. We all have reason to know what kind of a roadway we have had in the past, and the complaints arising from the large majority accorded the by-law that the people wanted a change—a permanent roadway that would be a roadway upon which one could travel in comfort at all seasons. This is what the contractors promise us, and it is easy to picture the opening of this mile of highway, 27 feet wide, akin to our concrete sidewalks, except that the surface is supposed to keep horses from slipping and care from skidding; a road that every rain will wash clean and tend to strengthen, instead of destroy; a road which will be the same in spring and fall, in wet and dry weather, built at a cost which is not excessive considering its permanence, and that will require but little for maintenance—such is the new Bradford-street concrete highway which is rapidly approaching completion. Will it be a success? Possibly the question has been asked several thousand times since the first load of concrete was put down. Stamped on the road you have there is no better way to answer the chorus of queries than to give the dates of construction of existing concrete roadways. Bellefontaine, Ohio, built a street in 1893, just 20 years ago, and it is in good condition today. Chicago has concrete roads leading into the city which were built ten years ago, and although they have been subjected to very heavy traffic, they are in excellent condition. Wayne County has 70 miles of concrete, many of them leading arteries of the city of Detroit, and some built five years ago. The Road Commissioners are well pleased though the appointment has not been officially gazetted yet, Mr. Vance has been notified, and was in town yesterday, with Mr. John Dent, M. P., of Dufferin, getting acquainted with the officials here. Mr. Vance is a well known lawyer, and the legal profession here speaks highly of him.

Bear Hunting And Its Dangers

"There is much consideration for the bear in Pennsylvania now," said Port Gibson, an old-time northeast Pennsylvania hunter and guide, "and the effect of it is going to be that the bear will find himself harried more by the amateur hunters in the future than he ever was in the past.

"The reason for this is that brute is a dangerous customer for the list of noxious wild animals in Pennsylvania and made legitimate game, to be taken only during a prescribed open season. This seems to have attracted the attention of outside sportsmen to the possibilities of the chase of that big, hairy and tricky bear. At one time, never before have woodsmen had so many engagements to take charge of bear hunting parties as they have this year."

"In the days before the bear had the law's protection we chased and killed bears at every opportunity and the chance, more for profit and because we thought we were discharging a duty in shating a nuisance than for the sport that might be in the hunt, but the amateur sportsman who takes up the bear hunt will find that it is not only sport but real man's sport. When a bear finds that a hunter is on his track he at once selects the most tangled and nearest to impassable range of ground at his command. If there is a stretch of laurel, or old and brush grown or a matted laurel patch of unstable bottom, he will spare no pains to include it in his course.

"Over ridges and through valleys where there are trailing brambles and entangling vines, and into dense swamps where only the dogs can follow and make slow and weary headway, while the bear shuffles along with its clumsy gait almost as readily as on an open road, the wily and bad leader and worrier the pack. It followed with unremitting persistence the bear will keep his course, from one retreat to another, often miles at a stretch, before staying a little for a rest, only to resume the hunt again as soon as the sound or scent of the advancing foe reaches him.

"Unless the bear is outgeneralled or circumvented sooner and the hunt does not falter he will continue his flight for days, usually working around to his starting place. If there is snow of considerable depth on the ground a bear chase is a more slow and tedious business, and requires a stouter nerve and a tougher skin in the pursuer than a hunt over bare ground. With a light snowfall and a fresh track, however, the progress of the hunt is enhanced, and it is then that a bear hunt is enjoyable and exciting.

"The amateur sportsman, if capable and game, will find himself going at a good round trot on the trail, so wrapped up will he become in the incidents of the chase. On a snow such as that a party of hunters in Potter county were led an eight-day chase by a bear through the laurel swamps and over the high-hilled hard lands of that wild region. He was chased across eleven townships and into three counties, fetching them back on the evening of the eighth day to within a stamp of a mile of the thicket from which the bear was started, and there at last he was brought to bay and killed.

"It is no difficult matter to kill a bear after the hunter has got within range if the dogs understand their business, for then brain will give all his attention to the dogs as they yelp and faint about him, while the hunter stands off and fills him with lead. The black bear of the frosty vasts woods is a tough customer, and it is not an uncommon thing for a bear to stand up under many a charge of buckshot, or even rifle bullets, before he succumbs.

"No dog that is trained for the bear hunt has had experience on it will venture to pitch into a bear that has turned at bay to defend himself to the last. The bear takes his stand with his back against a tree or rock, so that assault on him must come from the front, and an able-bodied bear can ward off half a dozen dogs as long as he can protect his rear. One fair blow from a bear's paw will place any dog in a condition that will rob the subsequent proceedings of all interest to him.

"There are times, though, when the light of the hunter will rouse a wounded or dog-harassed bear to fury, as if it sensed the fact that the man was responsible for the trouble that had befallen him, and in spite of the dogs he will charge on his foe, determined to have the best of one of one candidate, "No good," and opposite the other's name "O— night mare." Of course the ballot was spoiled, but the elector must have found some satisfaction in expressing his feelings.

USES OF SOUR MILK

Various disorders arise from the action of poisons manufactured within the body—autotoxications" or self-poisonings, as they are called. The most active manufactory of these poisons is the intestine, especially the large intestine. When the food has reached this part of the digestive tract, it has done all it can for the nutrition of the body, and what has not been used up is now waste material—poisonous matter that must be got rid of.

It is here that the microbes of putrefaction are found in abundance. They are believed to cause not only many of the minor ills of life, but also some very serious ones, and to add to the gravity of other diseases. Prof. Metchnikof even attributes to their action the fact that we do not live as long as we ought, for he thinks that these poisons help to produce the hardening of the arteries which cause old age. He proposed to arrest this putrefactive process in the intestine by introducing bacilli that manufacture lactic acid, in the presence of which the other bacteria cannot live, or at least cannot flourish.

He was lead to this thought by the observation that the longest-lived people in Europe, provided they escape death by the knife or the bullet, are the Slavonic races in the Balkan peninsula, who live very largely on bread and sour milk. The souring of their milk is due to the presence of the bacilli which manufacture lactic acid and buttermilk owes its acidity to the same cause.

When Metchnikoff published the theories on this subject people to whom his argument appealed began to drink buttermilk freely and to the improvement of their health.

Wise and Otherwise

If the reader wants to settle in a wide awake community all he has to do is to look at the newspapers. A wide awake, well supported home newspaper is always associated with good schools, churches, active business and intelligent people. It never fails. No business man or pioneer in any community makes any better investment than in the support of a home newspaper.

The Owen Sound Advertiser says that there was one elector in that town at the bye-election that had not much use for either candidate. It says, "When the ballots were counted, one came to light, on which was written, opposite the name of one candidate, "No good," and opposite the other's name "O— night mare." Of course the ballot was spoiled, but the elector must have found some satisfaction in expressing his feelings.

MAKING RUBBER FROM SAWDUST

A large English company has recently commenced the commercially successful production of acetone and fuel oil from sawdust by a simple process of fermentation. From these two products isoprene can be derived, which latter can be changed into rubber, merely by allowing it to lie in contact with a small quantity of the metal sodium. The synthetic rubber vulcanizes readily and compares favourably with the natural product in rubber, durability and price.

Acetone is used in the manufacture of cordite and fuel oil is used in the manufacture of artificial leather cloth. Previously it was chiefly obtained as a by-product in the manufacture of whisky, brandy and vodka but by this new process it can now be extracted much more cheaply, making possible a large profit. It is calculated that these by-products of sawdust are worth almost $400 a ton. As it takes only ten tons of sawdust to yield a ton of these valuable constituents, the resultant profit is obvious.

In Europe, with its densely populated regions contiguous to the forests, the elimination of wood-waste is an economic essentiality, and methods have been evolved which, in some cases, utilize even the leaves and roots of trees. While this is not essential in America at present, it is desirable to reduce the waste which takes place in the different processes of transforming the standing timber into finished product, which amounts to something like fifty per cent. of the total volume of the tree. To this end, the Canadian Government is establishing a fully equipped Wood Products Laboratory at McGill University in charge of Mr. A. G. McIntyre, B. A., Sc., under whose direction experiments will be conducted to discover new uses for common Canadian trees and for the enormous quantities of sawdust and other forms of waste wood which now represent money loss to the country of millions of dollars annually.—Forestry Bulletin No. 111.

CONFER AS TO ROAD MAKING

The provincial highways commission is about to embark upon series of meetings throughout Ontario in an effort to sense the pulse of the good roads movement, and to learn the individual demands of different localities. Six cities have been settled upon as the convention centres of other Ontario, and here it is the desire that the surrounding counties will assemble their delegates for instruction in the proposed program. It is possible that the commission will in this way gain the necessary material to permit of the home talking action when the legislature reopens in the spring.

More Will Follow.

Provincial Highway Engineer McLean outlined last evening the special desires of the commission for these meetings. They are understood to be merely the precursors of others.

The motive of all sessions will be educational, and they will be held both morning and afternoon. The hours are arranged from 9 until 12 in the morning, and 1.30 p. m. to 6 p. m. If necessary, evening sessions will be arranged. It is planned to hold all sessions in the county buildings. Any representative who finds it impossible to attend may stake his position by applying to the commission offices in the parliament buildings.

Toronto, Tuesday, Jan. 13, 1914, at the parliament buildings—Representatives from the Counties of Ontario, Victoria, York, Peel, Simcoe and Halton.

SCAFFOLD FELL AT THRESHING

Mariposa Man Sustained Serious Injuries

A bad accident occurred this morning on the farm of Mr. J. Rutt about a half-mile east of Mariposa station. Threshing operations were in progress, when a scaffold fell bringing three threshers down with it. Two of them escaped unhurt but the other, Mr. Kellington, was seriously injured. Three ribs were broken and the boy bone badly fractured.

The injured man was taken to Mr. Rutt's home and Dr. Rich, of Lindsay, was summoned. Mr. Kellington is suffering considerable pain and will be laid up for some weeks.

Youth Has a Phenomenal Power

St. Catharines, Oct. 13.—(Special.)—Alex Logan, father of Hugh J. Logan, aged 9 years, of Clinton Township, a lad from Beaverdells village, still maintains that his son is possessed of a phenomenal power by which articles that he touches are thrown with great force without any effort by the boy. Mr. Logan states that the alleged phenomenon was first observed on the day following an electric storm, during which he noticed a circle of light about the head of a hammer with which the boy was playing with nails. He further asserts that the influence now seems to be leaving the boy gradually, and that the lad suffers from frequent headaches.

MUST GO TO THE SCRAP HEAP

(The Globe.)

A deputation headed by Mr. Sam Sharpe, M. P., from Uxbridge, Markham, Campbellford, Hastings, Stirling, and other points on the Middland division of the Grand Trunk Railway, scored a point over the company at yesterday's session of the Dominion Railway Board in the City Hall.

Mr. Sharpe declared that abominable conditions characterized this section of the G.T.R. system. The roadbed was dangerous the railway coaches antiquated, there was discrimination of freight rates, late delivery of freight, and a poor railway service.

Mr. Sharpe pointed out that in the matter of coal freight rates the haulage to Uxbridge from Toronto was fifty cents, while to Lindsay, which is the same distance from Uxbridge as Uxbridge is from Toronto, the cost was only five cents. The people objected to the coaches on the ground that they were "coal-oil" which would not be tolerated on other points of the road.

ALMA NOT SERVICEABLE

Superintendent McMillan of Lindsay stated that while the coaches were somewhat "aged" he thought they were still in good shape for service.

Chairman Drayton ordered the company to relegate the coaches to the scrap heap, and instructed Engineer Mountain of the Board to gather information respecting the other complaints of the deputation.

FIRE RANGERS WERE DROWNED

Upset in Waters of Nipigon River

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—The waters of the Nipegon River, in northern Ontario, claimed the lives of two members of the provincial fire ranging force on Saturday afternoon last, details of the tragedy reaching the Department of Lands and Mines yesterday. Walter Scott Burns, a young man from Toronto, and Deputy Chief J. D. Copley were the victims, and although strenuous efforts have been exercised the bodies have not yet been recovered. A large staff of men is now employed under the direction of Chief Bliss, dragging the river.

According to the tale received at the Department, the tragedy occurred while a party of rangers who had completed some telephone work up the river were en route to camp. Their canoe upset in the rapids and Copley and Burns instead of clinging to the craft tried to swim ashore.

They Don't Drip Oil

The neatest woman that ever lived would consider a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator an ornament in her kitchen. That's because Tubulars are neat—have no oil cups, oil holes or oil tubes to drip. You don't need an oil can for Tubulars.

Tubulars Are Neat

To oil the Dairy Tubular simply lifts the gear case lid once a week and pour a spoonful of oil right down among the gears. The oil stays there. The lubrication is perfect and never forgotten. There is no dripping on the floor. Both men and women appreciate that—and the many other exclusive fine points about Tubulars—fine points other separators don't have. Tubulars double dairy profits and cut the work in half. Come in and see the Tubular—Examine it inside and out—next time your in town. Welcome to look at every piece—and the pieces are few because the Tubular is mighty simple.

Old Separators taken in exchange. We sell the Sharples Mechanical Milker.

BOY RESCUED FOUR CHILDREN

ST. THOMAS, Oct. 14.—During the absence of the parents, who were both away from home working yesterday morning, Charlie, the two-year-old son of Albert Ager was burned to death in the house, which was completely destroyed by fire.

Five children, ranging from a five-months' infant, were left in charge of the eldest, a boy of 11. When he discovered fire in a storeroom by the crying of one of the children, he got all the children outside to safety with the exception of Charlie, whom he could not find in the dense smoke. Some neighbors arriving early on the scene also made heroic efforts to find the child, but the fierce flames drove them back. The little charred body was later found in the smouldering debris.

The family came from England to St. Thomas five years ago, and yesterday lost everything they had gathered together since their arrival.

"HOLD UP YOUR HANDS DADDY"

Daughter Kills Father at Wingham

WINGHAM, Oct. 14.—A shooting accident, which resulted in the death of Harvey McDowell, who lived in the Township of Howick, about seven miles from Wingham, occurred Sunday night about seven o'clock.

McDowell with his children had just returned home after spending the afternoon at the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. Charles Campbell, he lived a short distance away.

He had just changed his clothes and as he entered the dining-room his little nine-year-old daughter pointed a revolver at him, saying: "Hold up your hands, Daddy." As she said this the revolver went off and the bullet entered McDowell's left side, just below the heart, killing him instantly.

McDowell had been hunting round on Saturday night, and left the revolver on the sideboard, where the girl found it. He was about 35 years of age, and his wife died about 18 months ago. He leaves three children, the oldest being nine years of age.

Chief Chilton's Making Inquiries

Three hold-up outrages were perpetrated in Toronto Saturday and one of the accused arrested had in his possession a loaded revolver. Chief Chilton is of the opinion that probably the "shooting iron" was the one stolen in Orillia by the gang of lads who visited that town some days ago, and will write the Toronto police. The Toronto News, referring to the arrest says:—

"A man, whom the police think may shed some light on one of the assaults is John Hughson, who lives, who was arrested at 2.30 Sunday morning while asleep in a moving-van in a yard in the rear of Campbell's express building at the corner of Lee Avenue and Queen street. A loaded revolver and a bunch of keys were found in his possession, and in answer to the enquiries of the police he stated that he has been in Toronto for the past three months and that during them he has not done any work. He claims to have once lived in Orillia."

WHITE SLAVERS HAVE PETERBORO GIRL

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Police Chief Cadin, of Syracuse, received in his mail Friday afternoon a pathetic communication from Mrs. H. A. Jobe of 530 Park street, Peterborough, Ont., requesting him and the Syracuse police authorities to use their utmost efforts to locate her daughter, Hazel Jobe, aged 16, who has mysteriously disappeared from her home in Syracuse and who is believed to have been enticed away by white slavers. Chief Cadin is doing his best to secure some clue to the Peterborough girl's whereabouts.

PARTRIDGE WILL BE PLENTIFUL

The partridge season opens on Wednesday, Oct. 15th, and from various reports received, it is evident that the supply of this game is considerably large this Fall. Autoists skimming along the side roads in Smith, Douro and other townships have stated that the birds were out on the road in places and narrowly escaped the car's wheels. You can find partridge within five or six miles of the City if you know the right direction. If you are a lover of the sport, and know the warning "drumming" and whir of partridge wings, you will be out in the woods on the first opportunity.

Our neighbors seem to believe that one good turn deserves ten others.

Mr. Wellington, of Ops, has removed to Mr. Thos. McConnell's farm, in Emily, south.

Mrs. Robert Toole and daughter, Miss Myrtle, have taken up residence in King street, Omemee.

Mr. E. Jones, of the Omemee branch of the Bank of Toronto staff, visited Reaboro friends on Sunday.

The Epworth League convention of the Lindsay district Epworth League was held in the Methodist church on Wednesday, Oct. 8th. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, with house plants, flags, etc. With Rev. W. W. Jones, of Janetville, the president of the district, in the chair, the three sessions, morning, afternoon and evening, were a decided success, and enjoyed by all present. At the afternoon session, Dr. J. N. Thompson, a layman in the Methodist church, Omemee, gave a very interesting address on "The hill difficulty—what is yours?" and on discussion which followed none of the leagues of the district seemed to have any difficulty but what could be overcome by each member doing his or her part. Mr. Frank Riches, of Cambray, the ex-president of the district, received rapt attention during his short talk on "How to make the week night service go." Rev. Mr. Fulewell, field secretary, made his addresses in the afternoon and evening respectively, very clear and interesting by illustrations on the black board. How much more work could be accomplished were it not for those three little words, "But," "if," and "wont?" but if each one of us would substitute these three other words, "can," "should," and "will," the world would be full of sunshine, and our labor would not be in vain. Our call is the home field." was ably taken by Rev. J. W. Whyte, of Minden.

Tea was served in the basement by the ladies of the church, after the afternoon session, and a social hour spent. The meetings were very helpful and interesting, and everybody seemed to be so alert and sociable in welcoming strangers that a gathering of this kind will be looked forward to with much appreciation.

Among those from a distance who attended were Mr. and Mrs. F. Riches, Cambray; Miss Marks and Miss Wright, of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Brenham, Janetville; Misses Bryans and Thornton, of Dunsford; Rev. Mr. MacMillan, of Lindsay; Rev. W. W. Jones, of Janetville; Rev. Mr. Bedford, of Fenelon Falls; Miss Reed, of Reaboro; Mr. Craig, of Lindsay; Misses Bedford and McFarland, of Fenelon Falls; Rev. W. Smyth, of Dunsford; Rev. W. Whyte of Minden; Mr. Fairwell, of Toronto, Misses Carew and Mills, of Bethel.

THE LINDSAY POST

POLICE LOOKING FOR FORGER

Chief of Police Chilton is on the lookout for a young man named Harry Jones, who forged a money order on for the amount of twelve dollars each and passed one on his landlady, Mrs. Wallace of the Oakville house, paying two dollars for his room and receiving ten dollars cash. On entering the store he purchased a $3.50 pair of boots, giving cheque for twelve dollars, and receiving the balance in money.

Bowman came to Oakville, saying that he walked from Toronto, on September 18 and asked for a position in the Oakville News office. He was an expert printer, and executed his work in good style. The name of his employer, Gerald G. Mitchell, editor of the News, was the name forged to the cheque, and the other forged cheque is only natural that Bowman would be receiving twelve dollars for his week's wages on Saturday evening. The cheeks were passed after seven o'clock on Saturday evening and Bowman has not been seen since. The bank officials noticed the signatures when the cheeks were presented at the Toronto Bank on Monday.

He was thirty-three years of age, about five feet eight to nine inches in height, clean shaven, wearing a light brown suit with belt around the coat, rimless spectacles. Would likely be located around printing offices. Chief Constable Sweet is doing everything to locate him.

TRIED TO ENTER LOCAL RESIDENCE

Mr. T. Bannister, who lives at the corner of Victoria avenue and Elgin street, had an exciting time Tuesday night, when burglars attempted to enter his house. He had received a sum of money during the day and had taken it home with him over night. The thieves evidently got word of it, and planned an attempt to get it that night. Mr. Bannister was wakened up by noises at one of the windows. The burglars managed to get in part way by that window and able to stop them. He used a hammer as a means of defence. After giving up the attempt by the window they made a vicious attack on the back door. In the meantime Mr. Bannister telephoned to some of his neighbors for assistance, which soon arrived, and the two miscreants made off. One of them was tall and slim, dressed in dark clothing, while the other was about medium height, in a grey suit.

A number of cases of petty sneak thieving are reported from the north ward. Only small articles left in outhouses have been stolen.

EPWORTH LEAGUE IN CONVENTION

The Epworth League convention held Wednesday at the Omemee Methodist church was a decided success. After song and prayer in the morning, the reports of the individual leagues were received from Camborridge, Janetville, Omemee church, Omemee junior and senior, Bethel, Janetville junior, Mount Horeb, Pleasant Grove, Zion, Eldon, Pension Hills, Methodist Men's Association, Pension Falls League, Bobcaygeon, Minden and Glen circuit at Minden and Canning.

Rev. W. W. Jones, of Janetville, president of the district, gave very interesting address, calling the young people to rally to the absolute need of living around to the immensity of the work. He also spoke of the field there is for junior league work.

Rev. J. E. Chapman of Omemee, gave an interesting talk along the same lines as Rev. Jones, and emphasized the need of prayer particularly to solve the problems of the church.

The League Field Secretary, Mr. Fairwell, of Toronto, was the next speaker, and suggested the appointment of a committee on plans and methods. Following out the suggestions which also acted as a nominating committee: Rev. J. B. McMullen, Lindsay; Rev. W. H. Smith, of Omemee; Miss Bedford, Pension Falls; Miss Mark, Lindsay; F. Richards, Cambray; Rev. W. W. Jones, of Janetville; Rev. J. E. Chapman, Omemee; Fred Johnson, Omemee; Miss Wright, Lindsay, and Field Secretary Fairwell.

At the afternoon session Dr. Thomason, of Omemee, spoke on "The Hill of Difficulty, Which is Yours?" and spoke of the lack of prayer. Prayer, he said would clear the difficulties and make us brave and full of life for our work.

A short discussion followed, in which Revs. Chapman, McMullen and Whyte took part.

A very interesting address was that of Rev. A. Riches, of Cambray, who was the only layman not a doctor on the program. His subject of "How to make a week night service go," was well taken. It was important, said he, to choose the right secretary. Candidates needed character, ability, cheerfulness and last, popularity. To make the meetings a success, they must be advertised through the public and local press. The meetings must be brief, bright and have a spirit of brotherliness throughout.

Rev. J. S. McMullen gave one of the best talks of the session. His subject, which treated of citizenship, was ably dealt with. Politics, temperance, moral reform, sanctation, had need to be elevated and permeated with the spirit of Christ. One good man will influence all concerned, and we should strive to have the best influence.

The singing of the junior leagues of Lindsay was much appreciated.

Rev. Whyte, of Minden, gave an interesting talk on his work in Haliburton. A urged greater attention to missions.

Field Secretary Fairwell was the last speaker, and in dealing with his subject, "Our Call to the Foreign Field," he stated our real call is wherever we are needed, whether at home or abroad, and we should be ready and willing to serve.

The meeting closed with the song "God save the Kings."

Following are the officers elected:—

THIEVES TRAVEL IN AUTOMOBILE

The local police have nothing further to report in connection with the recent burglaries in town and the belief is growing that the thefts were committed by the same parties who entered several stores in Orillia.

This has strengthened the opinion of the Post from the beginning. There seems to have been an organized band of burglars operating in this district, as the robberies reported lately have been quite numerous.

An attempt to go several Hastings stores followed the robbery of Monday night of last week. Lambert's hardware store was broken into by forcing the windows, and a quantity of safety razors, knives and other goods to the value of about $100 stolen. The thieves also entered Bakr or Bros. general store, where they were discovered, but escaped.

Several persons saw the two burglars after they left Baker Bros. store. The men tried to get into Coughlan's drug and jewelry store, but as the policeman on duty was there and a night operator on hand they only succeeded in removing a piece of the putty from the window panes.

It is said the thieves made their escape in an automobile. Word was telephoned to Bobcaygeon about three o'clock in the morning to be on the look out for them. The local chief of police and a number of citizens, who had been out all night looking for an account of the recent burglaries here, were soon on the watch, but nothing came of the Bobcaygeon incident. If they came this way they must have gone through before the message was received.

In connection with the arrest of Kilbinbek and Landry, of Peterboro, there is no evidence forthcoming that would connect them with the local burglaries in Orillia, notwithstanding they will be released tomorrow morning.

This morning Chief Chilton received information from Orillia Police Chief concerning the operations of the burglars in that town. As was announced in the Post last week the thieves entered four places in Orillia—a clothing store, shoe store, the C. P. R. tup town office and grocery store.

Chief Chilton also received the chisel and knife, which was found here, and which was forwarded to Orillia, where they were identified. This proves beyond a doubt that the thieves operating in Lindsay last Friday morning were in Orillia Wednesday night.

ACCUSED GIVEN ANOTHER CHANCE

Out on suspended sentence in order that they might be given a chance to become better citizens, was the judgment of the court this morning in the charges of vagrancy preferred against Herbert Landry and Joseph Kilbinbek, of Peterboro, whom it will be remembered, were arrested at the G. T. R. station on Friday evening, Oct. 3rd. The accused were up for hearing on Saturday, Oct. 4th, and were remanded for a week. It was thought by the police that they knew something about the recent burglaries but there was no evidence to substantiate this belief.

The fathers of the accused appeared in court this morning, and have been very active since their incarceration in looking after their interests. It was naturally a relief to them when the court gave their boys one more chance.

Through their counsel, Mr. G. A. Jordan, the accused pleaded guilty. Mr. Jordan said he had retained to plead on behalf of the prisoners and also their parents. The fathers had been doing all they could to make the boys worthy citizens, but like many other boys, said Mr. Jordan, they did not heed the warnings or take parental advice. They were of an age when they should well consider their position as members of society, and should have shown a deep interest in their case and he hoped they would appreciate this. They were not hardened in crime, but what they could really be. There was no necessity of citating up the case. Mr. Jordan said that if he could do anything to rehabilitate the boys and give them a fresh start, he would willingly contribute his mite. He felt that it was time that the parents interests of society be did not want to see crime go rampant. The accused had committed any too great zeal for work, and although their fathers had come to plead in their behalf at some expense, they would not position one side of a business in their souls if they did not repay them. It was in order that they might be given a chance to show that in the world that he entered a plea of guilty. They have already suffered considerably by spending a week in jail, and he would urge that they be allowed to go on suspended sentence, on condition that they would make good all expenses incurred in the case.

Police Magistrate Jackson said that both the prisoners had records. Kilbinbek, who was only 20 years of age, had a long one, while Landry aged 24 years, was out on parole. That was the trouble. Landry was given parole in order that he might have a chance to redeem his ways. The police must be protected and Landry's position must be considered. Kilbinbek said he was afraid Kilbinbek was a hardened case. He could not look the part. If he could get a means of living easy he would do that way. If they were allowed to go on suspended sentence, it was on account of their parents. It was really terrible to think that the young fellows would turn out as they had done. If this matter was made public, it was impossible that the boy would have to go back to Central Prison to complete his term. In allowing them to go on suspended sentence, the accused would have to get out of Lindsay on the first train to the city that is their home. They would have to send their parents, and they could not do it better than where they were known. That was the place to make their start.

If information reached the Magistrate that accused were not conducting themselves properly, their sentence would be carried into effect in the regular order, and they would be given the fullest limit the law allows.

LINDSAY ON SWINDLERS' MAP

Chief of Police Chilton is in receipt of the following communication. Any information bearing on this matter will be gladly received at police headquarters:

Philadelphia, October 7, 1913.

Chief of Police, Lindsay, Ontario, Canada.

Dear Sir,—I am engaged in an important criminal case against a pair of clever confidence men who defrauded a client of mine by means of a mining swindle. We arrested one of the pair in June, 1910, and among the things found upon him was a pocket map of Ontario with 30 cities marked by means of circles in red pencil. We have already learned of attempts made by the swindlers in a number of these cities, and strong rumors have reached us that your city has been marked after an attempted swindle, in order to be avoided in future. Your city was one of those so marked, and I would therefore request that you kindly inform me whether you have any knowledge of any attempts having been made to swindle any of your citizens.

The pair consists of one swindler, posing as an Arizona miner, inducing victims to make a trip to enable them to purchase a gold mine from his confederate, who poses as a San Francisco mine owner. The two swindlers have been working the same game for over ten years. Our case is still in the courts and I am seeking evidence and information on other operations of the swindlers. If you know of any attempt ever having been made in your city, kindly let me hear from you at once, and I will forward photos for identification.

Awaiting your reply, I am,

Yours respectfully,

JOHN. S. WURTS.

ECK STILL ALIVE NOT MOTOR VICTIM

"Returned from bush today and learned of my sad death. Kindly convey sympathy with all for this disappointment, for I am still alive, and far from feeling dead." — Telegram from James Vincent Eck.

St. Catharines, Oct. 10—After being positively identified as the remains of James Vincent Eck, son of a wealthy resident of Harrow, near London, England, a body was buried in the Roman Catholic cemetery at Peterboro on Wednesday. Today definite proof was established that Eck is still alive, and occupies a position at the Inglinger mine at Timmins, Porcupine.

TATTOO MARK WAS ON ARM

When the tidings came from Peterboro, that a farmer named Bell had identified the body of the man killed at Lakefield by an automobile as his brother, by which means Eck was known in that locality, relatives of two other missing men withdrew their search under the belief that the dead man was one of the fact that Bell asserted that a tattoo mark of a certain design on the arm would prove it was Eck's body, the sister-in-law was trotted out and the mark was there. When word came to St. Catharines that the body was being shipped to the medical college at Toronto, Mr. R. E. Robinson of this city, and his brother-in-law, Sinclair, of Cobalt, met at Toronto, after receiving word from Peterboro to bury the body in this country. They found the corpse at the undertaking rooms in the city of Peterboro, and personally saw that a respectable burial was given.

MISSING FRIEND ROB HIMSELF.

"Returned from bush today and learned of my sad death. Kindly convey sympathy with all for this disappointment, for I am still alive, and far from feeling dead."

To guard against any possible hoax, Mr. Sinclair, who is still visiting Mr. Robinson, sent an inquiring telegram to Sauscer Brothers of the Inglinger mine at Timmins, who replied confirming the fact that Eck is unquestionably alive.

MAY HAVE BEEN WRONG ARM.

Both Messrs. Robinson and Sinclair were dumfounded as well as delighted with the tidings. The remains answered every detail of identification. Mr. Robinson stated today that he was doubtful whether the tattoo mark was on the corresponding arm or not, but the correctness of the design and every other detail was so complete that he came to the conclusion that his memory was not perfect in regard to the arm.

He has notified the Crown Attorney at Peterboro, that the buried body must be that of some other man than Eck.

Mr. Robinson deems it extraordinary that some person in Timmins, where there are many people, be acquainted with Eck, did not inform the authorities that the man was alive, and thus avoid disposition of the body was made.

Study Strain Cause of Insanity

Ottawa, Oct. 10—The Carleton Teachers' Association were addressed by Sir James Grant on the subject of insanity as the outcome of excessive mental strain in the youthful period, the result of the introduction of subjects now placed before the younger generation in the development of education. He also addressed the International Congress of Medicine in London. He said there was evidence that in the death rate an improvement in the general health of the people, and a decided increase in the average duration of life, and yet there was a decided crowing number of insane in our asylums.

Ops Young Lady Tendered Shower

Thursday evening the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Murphy, Sterling Ope, was the scene of a very happy gathering, when a goodly number of the friends of Miss H. Greenan had gathered to tender her a miscellaneous shower, in honor of her approaching marriage.

The reaction came in the nature of a surprise to Miss Greenan, who was the recipient of a large number of presents. During the evening Miss Greenan was tendered the following address:

Lindsay, Oct. 9, 1913.

Miss Hannah Greenan.

Dear Friend—We have gathered together along to tender our small tokens of friendship as an to give evidence of the affection and esteem in which you are held. You are going out from among us to bring sunshine and happiness to one whom you have chosen as your partner through life. We will miss your kindly presence which combined with the many excellent attributes which you possess, have made your association with you a source of intimate pleasure and delight.

May your future be one of unalloyed happiness, may the Giver of all good bless you, endow His richest blessings and may your presence and influence continue to be in the future, as it has been in the past, a benediction to all with whom you mingle.

Tom Lindsay Friends and Cousins. The evening was spent in music and social intercourse, and a dainty lunch was also provided.

Miss Greenan, who is one of the most popular young ladies in the district, is very grateful to her many friends for this practical demonstration of respect and esteem, as well as best wishes expressed for her future happiness.

"Pussy" Creates Some Excitement

Some odor! Well rather. When you get down near that from it, the pleasure of life ended, right there. We happened up street at Mr. Woollard's shop yesterday. With the assistance of W. Lyle Mr. Woollard was raising a hen house on blocks for removal when Lyle who was stooping asked, "Did you see that? It ran between my legs. Where, what is it? asked Woollard. Skunk said Lyle. Me for the house said Woollard. Get out a gun, shouted Lyle, and I'll fix him. The gun was brought out, and Lyle by taking two on the ground got a sight of the varmint under the building. Lyle pulled the trigger and the skunk went off, both charges the gun and the other. The gun was not heard at the Swing bridge but the other was felt out at Isaac Lewis's Funeral parlors on the C. P. R. Bolton St. well you had to put on your rubber coat and wade. That skunk had been feeding on Woollard's eggs all summer and his efficiency in the place of condition. It was something to write home about for your life. Woollard ordered in order for twelve barrels of chloride of lime.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

FIFTY LEAGUE OPTION CONTESTS

Skirmishing is on in the local option fight. There will be fifty contests, so far as is known at present, in January, and the one in Burlington, where the majority on the last polling day was one, is creating much interest. Three times the question has been put to the people of Ontario, and on account of the growing popularity of the town as a residential suburb, the enthusiasm over the question is remarkable.

There are only four places in Norfolk county, besides the town of Simcoe, which have licenses. They are Port Dover, Delhi, Port Rowan and South Walsingham. Campaigning is proceeding in the last-named three places. A petition is being signed for a referendum on the Canada temperance act in Welland.

Pussy Ripe Raspberries

Mr. F. M. Hancock, of Nestleton, while out on his farm the other day discovered a bush laden with fine red raspberries. The fruit was ripe and very luscious. It was probably a second crop for the high this season.

You can get insured against any accident except marriage.

C. P. R. APPLIES FOR DOUBLE TRACK

The intention of the Canadian Pacific to construct a double track on the main line running out of Toronto in the direction of Montreal via Peterboro, is indicated in a number of applications for grade crossings which will be considered by the Board of Railway Commissioners at a hearing to be commenced at City Hall here on Monday morning. Among the applications of importance to Toronto are set for hearing at the board. The revised route of the Canadian Northern Railway across the north part of the city is filed for approval, and the design of the Grand Trunk Railway to install several additional tracks across Bloor Avenue at grade to its new roundhouse will be further discussed.

There will be further discussion of the city's complaint regarding the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk bridges at Stretchan ave., and its request that the structures be rebuilt. The city also is demanding that the Canadian Pacific abate a nuisance arising from its John street roundhouse, said to be detrimental to the condition of the men employed in the water works pumping station. The city will also ask leave to prepare plans for a new Moore Park bridge.

A complaint will be heard from Sam Sharpe, M. P., and the mayor and aldermen of Campbellford, Hastings, Stirling and others regarding the train service of the Grand Trunk Railway between Toronto and Peterboro.

Bear Carries off Verulam Calf

John Richmond on the Lawrence farm, Red Rock, Verulam, lost a nice five month calf last week. It was earlier than one field to another, and as a bear was seen a few days ago, it is supposed to have been the work of a bear. Bears are quite numerous, and it is thought to be occasioned by the bush fires in the north and the scarcity of fruit this season. They have been kept roaming in search of the fruit they most relish, for bears will never attack anything living unless driven to it by want of their natural food.—Independent.

Lorneville Man Has Decamped

There was no session of the County Police Court today to hear the charges preferred against a Lorneville charge preferred against a Lorneville charge preferred against a couple reason that the accused did not show up. It is understood that he has left the country.

Left Shoulder Was Dislocated

Mrs. Franklin, of Seattle, who is the guest of Miss Masnsley, Glenelg st., was the victim of a painful accident on Friday. She was out for a sleigh ride accompanied by Miss Mansley's residence when she tripped and fell. Her left arm was badly cut and her left shoulder dislocated. Mrs. Franklin intended leaving for her home in Seattle today but she was unable to do so owing to the injuries sustained.

HANDLING GASOLINE WITH SAFETY

It should be known by everybody in these days of gasoline lamps and stoves that gasoline will not explode until its fumes have been mixed with at least six parts of atmosphere or air. Gasoline will catch fire so readily as any liquid known, but let it alone, and it will burn out, doing no damage, and is inactive as cold water. Mix it with air in the proportions mentioned, it is far more dangerous than dynamite. But people in the country should ever be left uncalled for to do so is to make the room where it is kept for worse than a powder magazine. The method of safely handling gasoline is very easy, and no one should be ignorant of how it is done.

POP CORN FOR BREAKFAST

Washington, Oct. 8—According to an official bulletin of the Agricultural Department, entitled "Popcorn for the Home," this favorite tid-bit of green crunch and in-between meal things has considerable value as a food, and when properly prepared is preferable to many of the breakfast foods now on the market."

The department experts suggest popcorn as a profitable crop on farms. They expect to raise a crop of 15 worth of 5 cent packages can be grown on a plot of ground 40 by 20 feet, they say.

The bulletin contains several recipes for popcorn confections.

Information on choosing varieties of corn for planting, on the care of the growing crop, on harvesting and shelling popcorn, on hand poppers and on popping and storing are contained in the bulletin. There are many photographs, too, including one of a hand popper and stove. The bulletin can be had on application to the Division of Publications of the Department of Agriculture.

WEDDING BELLS

ROUTLEY—WOOD

On Wednesday, October 1st the marriage took place at St. James church, Norfolk, between Miss Julia, of Mr. Herbert Wellington Routley, of Coboconk, and Miss Henrietta Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wood of Fenelon Falls. After the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. J. A. Ewart, the newly married couple returned to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding supper was served, and was attended by a large number of relatives and friends of the young couple. The bride looked charming in her dress over white silk, trimmed with pale blue silk and roses, buds. She was attended by Miss Mary Frank, of Coboconk, while Edwin Wood, brother of the bride, assisted the groom. The bride received many useful and costly presents. Mr. and Mrs. Routley will reside in Coboconk.—Gazette.

WEDD—VAN NOSTRAND

The church of St. Mary the Virgin was the scene of a pretty wedding at a quarter past three Wednesday afternoon when Miss Grace Van Nostrand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Van Nostrand, was married to Mr. Ernest A. Wedd, second son of Mr. George M. Wedd, of Berlin, Ont. The service was conducted by the Rev. Canon Marsh, of Toronto, assisted by the Rev. Canon and Rev. Anthony Hart, Miss Frank, of Oshawa, playing the wedding music. The church was decked in a lovely with chrysanthemums and Michaelmas daisies. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked a beautiful gowl of Ivory satin and exquisite rose point lace, the lace forming a cut edged with rose point lace. The skirt draped to one side, the long train falling from the waist line. Her tulle veil, which she wore over her hair was arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. Her groom, Miss Ellie Williamson, of Montreal, as bridesmaid, was gowned in pale yellow satin, the bodice being of satin and trimmed with lace and a deep yoke of shadow lace, the skirt a black picture hat, with bows of black shadow lace, and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. There were two flower girls, little Miss Jamaica van Nostrand, the bride's sister, and Miss Clementina Wedd, the groom's little sister. Both wore opalint frocks of yellow satin with a deep yoke of shadow lace edged with swansdown and Dutch caps to match, and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. They received Dutch pendants as gifts from the groom. The groom's brother, Mr. Lawrence Wedd, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Neil Van Nostrans, Mr. George Wedd, Mr. Arthur Boswell, and Mr Basil Wedd. After the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Van Nostrand held a reception of just the bridal families, at their home, "Andercote," in Delaware avenue, and later Mr. and Mrs. Wedd left to spend a few weeks in the States, the bride travelling in a tailored suit of taupe wool poplin, and a hat of pink plush with a turn up brim over which they will reside at 84 Oxford street—Toronto News.

INGRAM—FERGUSON

This residence of Mr. and Mrs John Ferguson, Main street, North Bay, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding Wednesday evening, Sept. 24th, when their daughter, Miss Grace Granville Ferguson, became the wife of Mr. Gordon W. Ingram, of Bailie Mills, formerly of North Bay, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ingram, of Toronto, formerly of Lindsay. The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. D. Derbis, pastor of the North Bay Methodist church, in the presence of only the immediate relatives. Mr. Ingram holds the responsible position of chief electrical inspector of the Lake Superior Power Co. The bride has many friends, was by her charming personality, and the many beautiful gifts attest the esteem in which she is held. Mr. and Mrs. Ingram left on the Grand Trunk Express for a trip to Toronto and American cities, before taking up house in the Soo.

BOY SOLDIERS OF MEXICO

After the Mexican Constitutionalists took Torreon some months ago for the first time the victors did war to lead forth a batch of sixty federal volunteers captured at the battle of Torreon. These were split up into squads of fifteen, lined up one after another against adobe walls, and shot to death with no ceremony whatever.

This cruelty would hardly be worth recalling if it were not that Torreon is somewhere down south of the international line every week revs one side or the other make similar history. Sometimes there are as many as 300 lines up, sometimes only the survivors of a company, block capture some are frequently across the border that nowadays the local newspapers narrate the tragedies in a sentence, except of course, when one or more individuals are known by name or have once resided in the particular place where the newspaper is located. Mex. readers seldom are obituaries, shrug their shoulders, and turn to the rest of the news. It has ceased to mean anything to those who live almost within sound of the rifle shots; it becomes only a sensational thrill to the readers of a newspaper published far away.

The fact that makes the Torreon incident worth recalling is that the sixty prisoners were boys. They were not young men, but boys. The youngest was about 15, but quite, they say. Most of them were 14, 13, 13, 14, 15 and 16, the age of the boys who are in the grammar schools and high schools of the north, still infatuated in tops, just showing themselves in real baseball, and who like to stay outside after the bus house, smack off in swimming quarel with brother and sister, and who need a good parental discipline, and perhaps succumb to their first sweethearts in pigtails and short dresses.

Yet at that age these Mexican boys were marched forth, their hands tied behind their backs, lassoed up in pairs, and lined up against the adobe walls where they stood, and it may be added that these same youngsters in the supreme moment bended it all without flinching. Not even the little of them whimpered or begged for mercy.

They were soldiers and died like soldiers for a heinous offence against the laws of civilized warfare. They were disciplined and accredited to the irregular force of the Mexican Federal army, they had been taught to fire from behind the enemy within easy rifle fire. Then they had poured forth volley after volley into their ranks, killing and wounding many. They had fought desperately in the final assault and after the fall of the town they were the first to pay the penalty of defeat.

Men who have an accurate knowledge of Mexican military strength, declare that there are at least 7,000 boys who are regularly enlisted soldiers at present on active duty in the war, on one side or the other. This means boys under the age of 18 and as young as 11, just old enough to have the strength to carry a rifle. It does not include the boy cadets of the larger cities like Mexico, Vera Cruz, Tampico, Chihuahua and the like, who have expressed their determination to join the colors if the hated gringo comes across. These boys are not fighting, they are now undergoing the lot of the soldier, accepting his chances, reaping his glory, paying the only price in defeat. They are visible in every camp, every town. They are with every camp, Carranistas, Federals, Villistas and their sinuous, like the number of women in the forces, is increasing all the time.

Long local lists Villaran co-chief of staff for Pancho Villa, rebel commander, said the other day that he had two thing he wished for his boy regiment of boys than old men. Donal hinskill is a proved fighter, and his word should carry weight.

"I want two things for what danger is," he explained. "They will go forward against anything, machine guns and artillery, up the sides of mountains, or down a bullet swept street just as cheerfully as they will return to a meal. The only thing against them," and Donal shook his head mournfully, "is they can't shoot. They won't aim and they waste an awful lot of ammunition."

By the time a flirt gets tired of the game there is seldom a man worth bothering that she can get.

Politicians, chauffeurs and surgery are three of the most important things in modern society, and none of them cost anything.

HOW JAMES ROSS GOT THE PONIES

Biographies of the late James Ross are of his association with the Grand Trunk Mackenzie, but they do not tell of when first they met. Mr. Ross, then a poor young Scotch emigrant, was employed by the contractors on the railway station at Omemee. Here they became acquainted. Frank Wanton, now town clerk of Midland, Ont. was then in the lumber business, and sold the timber to William Mackenzie for the staff station. Among the lumberman's possessions was a dapper little pair of ponies, since which the young engineer cast curious eyes. He had been supplied with a horse by the railway to drive over the route of construction on the animal was not of an amiable disposition, and Ross preferred to walk rather than to drive it. He came to the conclusion that it would be to his advantage to buy the ponies, however. He secured possession of the ponies for the strength of his note for one year and a half, and if took some scrathtiles to meet the obligation. This was perhaps, a bigger deal relatively than any of the mammoth transactions this Scotchman became ever put through.—Weekly Star.

WM. McADOO.

Omemee, Oct. 8.—The sad news arrived of the death of Mr. Wm. McAdoo, which took place on 24th September, at his home at Picton. The deceased had been in failing health for some time, resulting from a severe cold contracted while taking out wood and timber from the swamp in his winter. He had lived for seventy years at Bethany and Omemee, where he had charge of the cheese factory. He was a companatively young man, a hard worker and well known throughout Cavan and Emily townships. The funeral took place from his brother's residence at Picton on Wednesday, to the cemetery of that place. Messrs Robert and Joseph Boyd, brothers-in-law, were present at the obsequies. Brandon a surviving wife, he leaves to mourn his early death a young and much loved daughter, Bertha, to whom, with the large circle of other relatives, the sincerest sympathy is extended. The Independent Order of Oddfellows, to which the deceased was a member, attended the funeral.

WAS THE MOTHER TO BLAME

It was the latter part of that shortest hour of the day—the noon hour. All kinds and conditions of men and women, handsome and plain, young and old, were hurrying up the street, a seemingly endless procession, returning to their work. Down an alleyway leading from the one street an old woman moved slowly with her armful of sticks. She tottered and sank to the ground. A young woman passing stopped and turned to go to her assistance, but the old woman had risen to her feet again. The young woman helped her her way, but her thoughts went back to an old farm house, and another gray haired woman, who has been her guide and companion, who had shared her joys and sorrows, whose kindly smile of advice and sympathy she would always remember—her mother. The procession moved on. The old lady returned for another armful of sticks. She reached the same spot again the reeled and sank to the ground. Another young woman passing now and launched. Her companion hesitated. "Oh, come on," she said, "What is it to do with us?"

With loud laughter and talk she passed on. She had no sympathy for the old, she had no thought of a mother, who had toiled late and early that she might get her business course, who had worn the old clothes that she might have the new. A mother who sat in the kitchen least she might shock her daughter's friends in the parlour—a mother who was her slave and was despised.

Was the mother to blame?

ZAM-BUK

MRS. A. SAICH, of Cannington Manor, Sask., writes:—"My brother suffered severely from eczema. The sores were very extensive, and burned like coals into his flesh. Zam-Buk took out all the fire, and quickly gave him ease. Within three weeks of commencing with Zam-Buk treatment, every sore had been cured."

This is but one of the many letters we are constantly receiving from people who have proved the healing powers of Zam-Buk. For eczema, piles, sores, burns, cuts and all skin troubles there is nothing like the wonderful balm. No skin disease should be considered incurable until Zam-Buk has been tried.

FARE BETTER IN ONTARIO

Under the caption of "Farm life in Ontario," a Scotch paper recently published a communication from one of its readers in this country, in which some wholesome advice is given to intending immigrants. The letter says in part:—

Ontario, the garden of Canada, and the premier province, is being neglected by the British immigrant. In this mad rush to the west, the finest parts of Canada are being neglected. Who is to blame for it, you say? Well, that is a hard question to answer. I think the blame rests the emigrant himself is largely to blame. He hears stories of the "Golden West," and the "Promised Land" is being waiting for him. He never waits to hear the exact state of things in the west. He hears it through an agent or some friend who may have been lucky or "made good." He never waits to ask about climate, nor how he be will be situated from a railroad. He must get out west and make his fortune. Now I am not trying to run down the west and praise the Eastern Provinces, but I think if the average emigrant would think a little he might see the folly in this rush out west, when he might be better off in one of the Eastern Provinces and in preference Ontario. It is the farm laborer I chiefly refer to, or the man that wishes to take up farming who go across the pond. Ontario, as everyone knows, is several times larger than the British Isles, and in fact the British Isles could be put into one of the great lakes. The natural resources of Ontario are marvellous. Ontario abounds with all kinds of minerals, has splendid forests with all kinds of valuable timber, but it is a farming province that I wish to say a few words. As a farming country, it would be hard to find a finer province than Ontario. Of course some parts of the province are much better than others, and you find dairy, stock, grain, mixed farms, fruit, poultry, and lastly "truck farms" (by that I mean raising vegetables and small fruits for market.) I think of all these that mixed farming is the most popular and in the majority.

The farmer here owns his own farm. There are very few rented farms in Canada. If a man has a good farm here and works it properly, he can make a very good income. The Canadian farmer has to work for his money, though. There are no "gentlemen" in this country. To see the average Canadian farmer at work, one would think him simply a farm hand. The success of a farmer is largely to account for this. That is why I would like to impress intending emigrants that Ontario is the "going west" to meditate still further, and start their farming in Ontario. If they don't like Ontario, why they can easily go west afterwards, but I would like to advise them to give Ontario a trial.

Ontario has a beautiful climate, perhaps the finest in Canada. It rarely sees an early frost to damage ripening wheat, as they often have out west. Its summer corresponds to a summer in Italy—blue skies every day and bright sunshine. To give an example of the summer we are having at present. This is the 6th of August, and all our grain is cut and safely under cover. Not a single sheaf got as much as a drop of rain. The hay too was got in in splendid order. It "makes" in a few hours, and dries quite green. It is never "coolied" but simply taken up, and hauled into the barn. The farms all have huge barns, and everything is put inside. There is no worry with stacks. Once the hay and grain are in the barn they are safe against anything.

A word about the winter. One would need to experience a Canadian winter to know what a thing winter is. It, there is generally lots of snow and frost—not the mushy slippy snow you get in the old country, but dry powdery snow, which wouldn't wet you even if you rolled in it. The farmer always has plenty of work to do in the winter. Wood has to be got out for fuel, and also logs for the mill. Winter is the social season here. There is no time in the summer for visiting, but in the winter the farmers go about in their sleighs visiting their friends. I could write pages and pages upon a Canadian winter, but I won't take up any more of your space. In closing, I will say what I said before about intending emigrants going west. Think twice about it. Give Ontario a trial. Ontario needs men, and there are finer farms here than there will ever be in Western Canada. The prices, too, are just as high. The Western farmer pays a little higher in the summer, but he generally does without help, or with very little, in the winter. There is very little social life out west. They can't grow fruit, and out on the prairie you never see a tree, only small shrubs. That is what the intending western emigrant will find. Give Ontario or some other eastern Province a trial first.

A SIMPLE MATTER OF SHIRRING IMPARTS DISTINCTION

Indoor frocks of dark silk are effective by reason of the touches of vivid color on girdle and tunic. The yoke too, often suggests an attractive way to shirr the material shade toward the face. These dark silks are being used for street wear also at the moment, almost to the exclusion of the tailored suit. 7940 would make up well in charmeuse, one of the new shades, tete de negre, for instance, with the yoke in a soft shaded matelasse. A narrow strip of the colored material would be smart edging the tunic.

On a simple street dress of Worth's a narrow crocheted belt of variegated wool was a most distinctive detail. This should offer unlimited possibilities to the girl or woman looking for something "different." The copy 7940 in sizes 36 requires 4¾ yards of 36 inch material.

Young girls' afternoon and dancing dresses to be modish, smart and in good taste must be simple. Quite sufficient adornment is given 7926 by the shirrings that form yoke, girdle and flounce. White tulle, not the perishable quality we know, but a material that resembles a very fine Brussels net, used in many of the finest French designs of this sort, would be admirably suited to this model, with ribbon and rosettes of white or a harmonizing tint. This design in size 16 requires 6½ yards of 36 inch material.

Mrs. Mitchell's Painful Injuries

Mrs. W. Mitchell, who resides in Ops township, near the House of Refuge, was the victim of a painful accident, in company with Mrs. Holmes, matron of the House of Refuge, she driving to the residence of Mr. Walter Curtis, to attend a session of the West Ops Women's Institute, when Mr. M. Williams' automobile came along with a party of ladies bound for the meeting. At a narrow stretch of the road the horse shied to one side, and one of the wheels of the buggy dropped to the ditch with such force that Mrs. Mitchell was thrown out. She sustained severe bruises on the head and shoulders besides receiving a bad shaking up. Mrs. Robinson escaped unhurt.

Both Mr. Williams and the occupants of the auto did all in their power for the injured lady. She was removed to her home and is confined to her room as a result of the mishap.

Drunks Took The Wrong Horse

On Saturday evening at 8 o'clock a horse and buggy belonging to Mr. Newton Peel was taken from Mainguy's Hotel yard by two well known characters who were under the influence of liquor. They drove the animal around at a merry pace for about two hours. One of the men thought he had his own horse, which was in the stable at the Benson House, but was so badly "pickled" he did not know which was the opposite side of the street. When the outfitters returned, it was found that the horse was hurt and the buggy damaged somewhat.

Runaway on Saturday Night

Saturday evening a horse belonging to Mr. William Sloan, of Ops, ran away south of the town. Mr. Sloan had left the animal in the Benson House House sheds, and was on his way home when the runaway occurred. The buggy was dumped into the deep ditch between the Riverside cemetery and the Lindsay-st. bridge, and was pretty badly damaged.

Cobourg Woman Attempts Suicide

On Monday a warrant was issued for the arrest of Mrs. Maude Hutton for attempted suicide, and charged by Chief Ruse at the Hospital. Mrs. Hutton and her husband, Norman Hutton, were out walking on Saturday, and had some words, and when at George street and University avenue, Mrs. Hutton had taken from her pocket a bottle of carbolic acid and put it to her mouth, her husband struck it away, but not until her tongue, mouth and chin were badly burned. In trying to save her, his arm was badly burned. Dr. Tully was called to the home of his mother-in-law, where she and her husband have been living, and treated her for the poison and burns, afterwards sending her to the hospital, where she remained until arrested on Monday. At the trial, yesterday before Judge Roger, Mr. Percy Hutton testified to the finding of a note on her dresser, stating that her husband no longer cared for her and was tired of life. Other evidence was introduced to show that she was naturally hysterical. Chief Ruse has received a telegram from the chief of police at Windsor, N. S., with a request from Mrs. Hutton's father to postpone the case until Monday as a letter was on the way. Judge Roger, wishing to see the letter before rendering his decision, postponed the balance of the hearing until Saturday at 10 a. m.

GASOLINE IN GREAT QUANTITY

Private telegrams received by Mr. William Livingston, of Calgary, at the Walker House, Toronto, yesterday would indicate that Canada's oil industry received a remarkable impetus on Saturday, when an unlimited supply of almost pure gasoline was struck by expertant drillers at Black Diamond, just twenty-six miles southwest of Calgary, Alta. The prospects of this discovery had precipitated a rush. Oil magnates from the Californian and Pamlla slope oil fields have been on the scene for weeks, while a large number of financiers from Chicago and New York have been on the scene of the latest Canadian source of wealth.

All the hotels in the district are now filled, and mushroom cities may spring up within the next few weeks, where farmers and ranchers have been with a the past few weeks preoccupiedly raising their crops or tending their cattle.

Not the least interested in the district is the Standard Oil Company, who have had representatives on the scene of operations for a considerable period, it being understood that their ecologists had reported that the locality was in good condition for exploitation. But so far the American oil octopus has been frozen out by Canadian promoters, and the Canadians propose to keep it out.

Mr. William Livingston, a cattle dealer and lumber merchant, of Calgary, who is here on Private business, is largely interested in a partnership with Messrs. J. D. Fee and W. S. Herron, who sensed the potentialities of this oil field, had sufficient confidence and assurance of success to warrant their investments of large sums of money in drilling operations. After months of a depth of 1,650 feet five weeks ago, which brought about the escapement of three or four million feet of natural gas per day, those promoters, so assured were they that the oil would be found at greater depth, offered their drillers a $20,000 bonus should he reach the oil within a reasonable period. He earned this sum on Saturday.

Finding a Pawn Ticket

"While walking through one of the prominent streets the other day," said an innocent looking individual, "I espied an important looking piece of paper on the sidewalk, and picking it up, found it to be a pawn ticket for a diamond scarfpin which some careless person had apparently dropped.

"According to the ticket, the pin had been pledged several weeks before for $15. 'How am I to find the owner?' thought I. 'Shall I take it to the pawnbroker? Perhaps if I do the owner will never see it anyway. The pin must surely be a good one and it is doubtless worth three times the amount for which it was pledged. Why not appropriate it to my own use?'

"The name on the ticket was Brown, and my conscience was relieved when I found several hundred of that name in the directory. I soon made up my mind and started for the broker's office. I asked to see the pin before redeeming it, stating that I had bought the ticket, and upon the payment of 25 cents was allowed to examine it.

"It looked all right to me, although I am not a qualified judge of diamonds, so I paid the principal of $15 and the interest of $1.80 and the pin became mine."

"The next day I showed it to an expert, who desired it to be worth far less than the amount I had paid for it."

"It is trick of some people,' he said, 'to defraud unwary persons like yourself. The scheme consists of issuing tickets for spurious pieces of jewelry for amounts many times in excess of their value and dropping them on the sidewalk in different parts of the town where unsuspecting persons might find them and redeem them, as you did, thus yielding a handsome profit to the perpetrators'"

Verandah Lights 8c a Month

Orillia Water, Light and Power Commission has reduced the rate for porch lights to 8c net per month, provided the light is turned off in the day time.

Since the lights were cut off it has been represented to the Commission that there are still places where verandah lights would be of use in assisting in the lighting of the streets, particularly on some streets where the trees are thick, and that it would be a public convenience to have the lights replaced at these spots, which residents would be ready to do if a low rate were granted. After consideration and investigation of instances quoted, the Commission decided to grant a dollar rate, though in doing so they would not only cut their revenue directly, but indirectly by reducing the number of lights required in the streets. However, this was a case where the public as a whole will be the gainers. The concession was coupled with a proviso that lights must be cut off in the daytime, this being one of the chief objections to them in the past. It is also desirable that lights should be protected by a shade or by being under a roof, as where they are exposed to the rain there is loss of current. It is, of course, also understood that the lights will be placed where they will be of as much service as possible in lighting the street. The new porch-light rate will apply to places where meters are used, if the customers desire.

Tore Cell Open Got at Whisky

Wm. Stevens, who was not long ago fined $20 and costs for drunkenness, was last Friday night arrested again for raising a disturbance in his boarding house. He was locked in a cell next to one where some confiscated liquor was stored, and early Saturday morning William tore his cell open and got to the whiskey. Not content with what he could hold he smashed a window and proceeded to throw it out on the street. As good or bad fortune would have it, the constable came along just then, and gathered it up—also William, who was to have had a hearing that morning. He was remanded until Tuesday, and Magistrate Delamere of Minden, then imposed a sentence of two months hard labor for the second offence of drunkenness, and suspended sentence for the other charge, causing damage to jail property. It is quite probable that when his two months are up he will find some place more agreeable to his idea of a good time.—Minden Echo.

TAR AND FEATHERS FOR WOMAN

Times: For some time past the police have received complaints from residents on Sherbrooke street, near the boundary, about the alleged ill treatment by Mrs. Billington, who had custody of the Ruby Billington, who figured before the police prominently in the Samuel Steele case, of another young child, by name Payne, aged about 10 years, whom she also had under her care. It appears this treatment has been going on for some considerable time, and the anger of the neighbors knew no bounds.

Last night, about 7.30, it was noticed by neighbors, this cruel treatment was again going on, and upon investigation it was asserted, that the named Mrs. Billington had had the child tied to a bed by its wrists and had been beating it with the buckle end of a heavy leather strap. This incited the neighbors and the authorities were telephoned for, and Detective Newhall, accompanied by Mr. Geo. Cochrane, and Mr. Henry from the Children's Shelter went to investigate. A Times reporter heard of the trouble, and also wandered in that vicinity. Upon arrival, a scene which almost gave one the impression of civil war, met his gaze. A crowd of 150 people had gathered round the house, and were calling for vengeance, resenting the treatment they knew was going on. For some minutes the reporter stood there, and noticed the rage in the crowd growing every second. At last it broke, and the cry went up, "Tar and feather her." This act would a minute later have been perpetrated, but the timely arrival of the aforementioned officers prevented the ultimate. This crowd consisted not of a gang of "toffs" who wanted to make mischief, but some of our well known citizens were noticed voicing their consternations in the highest possible degrees. Mr. Henry took charge of the child, and conveyed it to the Children's Shelter, where proper treatment in every respect is assured.

When it comes to the ears of citizens of such fearful perpetrations as this, action needs to be taken, and The Times is doubtless voicing the sentiments of many in saying that no punishment is too great. Mrs. Billington may think herself lucky she did not get the tar and feathers.

Spread Rails Caused Accident

Spread rails caused the G. T. R. flyer due here at 7.55 this morning, to be two hours late. Sunday afternoon on returning to Peterboro after having his engine boiler washed out at the Lindsay shops the engineer discovered a spread rail and this morning a gang of section men were brought out to repair the damage, which turned out to be more extensive than first thought. The first place was about a mile this side of Peterboro and was fixed in a few minutes but about seven miles further along the track was found to have spread for a distance of seven telegraph poles and had to be taken up and relaid. The work took about two hours.

HERBERT PATON LEAVING LINDSAY

Lindsay is about to lose one of its best known and most popular young men, in the person of Mr. Herb Paton, who for the past four or five years has been a valued member of the local post office staff. He has resigned his position, and leaves on Saturday to accept a most important post in the State Bank at Woodriver, Illinois, of which a relative is president.

In the departure of Mr. Paton the town loses a young citizen of probity, sterling worth and unblemished character. He was a general favite in business and social circles, and in the field of sport—especially hockey, none was known better. He was a fast, clean, consistent, heady player, and it was due in a large measure to his brilliant playing that the Olympia seven achieved such an enviable record in the season of 1911.

Mr. Paton's departure from town will be regretted, but his friends will join with the Post in extending best wishes for his future success. He possesses splendid ability, and is bound to bring honor and credit to himself and the old town that claims him as its son.

Most people think it more foolish to give than to receive.

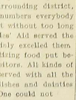
WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cape Wolfe, Canada.—"Last March I was a complete wreck. I had given up all hope of getting better or living any length of time, as I was such a sufferer from female troubles. But I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am in good health and have a pair of twin boys two months old and growing finely. I surprised doctors and neighbors for they all know what a wreck I was.

"Now I am healthy, happy and hearty, and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies. You may publish this letter if you like. I think if more women used your remedies they would have better health."—Mrs. J. T. Cook, Lot No. 7, Cape Wolfe, P.E.I., Canada.

Because your case is a difficult one, and doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.



The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of women —ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

LITTLE BRITAIN FOWL SUPPER

The first fowl supper of the season took place last night at the Methodist Church, Little Britain, and was an unqualified success.

There was a large crowd present from all the surrounding district, but despite the numbers everybody had plenty to eat without too long a wait. The Ladies' Aid served the supper and certainly excelled themselves in the appetizing food put before the hungry visitors. All kinds of roast fowl were served with all the most tantalizing dishes and dainties to accompany it. One could not eating and even dyspeptics come away from the table with a satisfied smile upon their faces.

After the supper was over Rev. H B. Kenny, of Bowmanville, gave a very interesting lecture entitled "The Old and the New Woman." He made many good points and kept his audience's rapt attention throughout.

The soloes of Mrs. H. Thompson, A. T. C. M., of Mitchell, were greatly appreciated and called for many encores as did also the special music rendered by the church choir.

The evening was one of the most successful ever held in Little Britain and it is understood the Ladies' Aid realized a handsome sum of money which will be put to some of the good projects for which the organization is so justly noted.

Among the many Lindsay people present were Mrs. Frank J. Maunder, Mrs. W. H. Thompson, Miss Aldah Switzer, Miss Cornish, Messrs S. McLean, S. Beal, J. Doran, M. Moynes, H. Woods, W. Fanning, F. Scott, I. Connell and A. Pym.

Police Recruits In England

The emissaries of the Chief Commissioner of the London Metropolitan Police have begun a vigorous recruiting campaign, which is to last a fortnight. Cornwall is the scene of operations, and the plans have been prepared with great care. Throughout the "delectable Duchy" the advertising boardings carry the notice headed "Metropolitan Police: Recruits Wanted." The local papers, big and little, contain addertisements of the attractions of the London policeman's life, invariably accompanied by the "editorial" paragraph amplifying the official announcements. Widespread the net is cast — over the fishermen of Looe, Polruan, Mevagissey, Polthleven, Newleven, and St. Ives; the miners of Redruth, Camborne, and Carn Brea; the clayworkers of Mid-Cornwall, who have recently been agitating for a minimum wage of 25s. a week, and the agricultural laborers around Bodmin and Launceston. Every police station and labor exchange in Cornwall is, for the time being, a bureau of information for those too timorous to address their queries to the Recruiting Branch, New Scotland Yard!

Incidentally the young manhood of Cornwall is being let into more of the secrets of the Metropolitan Police than the average London citizen himself is likely to know. Several hundred recruits, so we are told are required. The age limits are 20-27 years; height, 5 ft. 9 in., and naturally, good health, character and education are indispensable. To test the last particularly, the representatives of the Chief Commissioner will conduct examinations in Penzance for the first three days of next week, proceeding thence for a couple of days to Truro. During the second week Bodmin and Launceston will each be visited for two or three days.

The ultimate education of the London policeman is apparently a matter for New Scotland Yard itself, the Commissioner contenting himself with a good standard in reading, writing from dictation, and the first four rules of arithmetic." The quite unmusical Cornish dialect (may Mr. Stephen Reynolds forgive us?) is evidently no disqualification.

among the other attractions dangled before the young Cornishmen are uniform, "allowance," free medical attendance and pay during sickness. To tickle young ambition's palate, it is stated that there are 3,000 posts in the London police force with salaries ranging from 38s. a week to $450 a year. The policeman's pension — always an alluring bait to the young workman—is due after twenty-five years' service, and may be received in full—two-third of salary, £60 to £300 a year — after twenty-six years' service. It will be interesting to learn what success attends the efforts of Sir Edward Henry's recruiting campaign in the Cornish Riviera. No recruit will be required to start till free from his present employment, and arrangements may be made to meet the cost of conveyance to London.

NOSE MADE OF TWO FINGERS

Washington, Oct. 8—Miss Nellie Radigan, a patient at the Washington Asylum Hospital, will have a new nose made from two of her fingers. This unusual surgical operation has just been performed by Washington surgeons, and they say it will be a complete success.

Miss Radigan was afflicted with a cancerous growth which had eaten her nose away. It was decided that the only way to restore it was through a very delicate operation, involving the loss of some of her fingers.

Two of Miss Radigan's fingers were almost entirely removed by the surgeons, and then, after cutting out the cancerous tissue, the fingers were fastened to her face.

The two fingers were pressed down tightly on the cavity, and over all a plaster cast was spread. The cast was fastened to her bosom in order that the hand should be in position until the flesh of the two fingers had been completely engrafted.

According to the surgeons who performed the operation, it will be successful in a few weeks. This much time will be required for the flesh of the two fingers to join to make the ridge of the nose and the under part join to the face.

This procedure is regarded as a new one in surgical history, although strips of a man's back have been used in making a new hand in a similar fashion.

BOILER EXPLODES AT MIDLAND

Two Were Killed and Three Injured

Midland, Oct. 21.—The explosion of a boiler in Manley Chew's sawmill at Dollartown, a suburb, this morning, snuffed out two lives, while three were injured, one perhaps fatally.

The dead: John Sager, fireman, married; George Fraser, aged 16.

The injured: John Brunelle, shoulder broken, and scalded; Peter Hebner, badly burned and head cut, not expected to live; John Leach, cut and bruised and injured around the head. All the injured are young men, unmarried.

It is supposed that low water in the boiler caused the explosion, which occurred shortly before 8 o'clock. The mill had been operating from 7 till 7.30, when there was a temporary shut down and it was during this time it blew up. There were four boilers, and No. 3. exploded.

Sager was just coming from the boiler-room. He was blown 50 feet, and a large section of the boiler crushed his head against a wagon-load of slabs. The boy Fraser was entering the engine-room, and was buried under two tons of bricks from the dividing wall. His body was badly mangled. He worked in the lath mill.

Brunelle was unloading slabs in the yard, and was struck by a falling smokestack. Hebner was in the fire-hole where the boilers were, and was burst, and he was badly scalded. The boiler and engine rooms were pinned down by a beam. A steam pipe demolished, while the whole mill was moved from its foundation. The firemen quickly responded to an alarm, and put out the little fire which followed the explosion.

CRESSWELL.

(Special to The Post.)

Mr. Calford, one of our section men, had a narrow escape when the hand car passed over him when it was going at the rate of about 10 miles an hour. It bruised him up pretty bad but he is able to be out again.

Mr. Bateson, of Toronto, is visiting with his brother, Mr. Thomas Bateson.

Last Thursday afternoon a gloom came over our village when Mrs. C. Thomas parted this life. She had been ill for about a month. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn her loss, besides numerous other friends. They have the sympathy of the whole neighborhood. The remains were taken to East Oakwood Cemetery.

SWINDLERS GO TO THE PEN

Women Members of the Party Set Free

WELLAND, Oct. 22.—The trial of Mrs. Clara Knapp, on a charge of attempting to pass a worthless Union Bank check on the Imperial Bank at Niagara Falls on Sept. 30, and of the "check artists," Martindale, alias Walker and Albert Kindy, alias Allen, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the bank, was held yesterday before Judge Livingstone. Martindale and Kindy both pleaded guilty and were sentenced to three years' imprisonment at Kingston, being convicted on their evidence contained in signed statements to Chief Kimmins of Niagara Falls, in which they confessed their guilt. Mrs. Knapp was allowed to go on suspended sentence and Miss Helen Kelley, alias Mrs. Allen, who had been held as a witness, was also allowed to go.

From the pile of evidence gathered by Chief Kimmins the two men have served time and are wanted in many places. They are wanted in Toronto, for attempting to pass a worthless $350 check on a bank branch at the corner of Queen street and Roncesvalles avenue. Martindale, who comes from Owen Sound, has a wife and child in Toronto. He was arraigned in Sandwich, Ont., Nov. 13, 1912, charged with conspiracy and theft, and sentenced to twelve months in the Central Prison. On March 19, 1913, he was tried in Toronto for a similar offence, but sentence was suspended. He was paroled from the Central Prison August 11, and had two months and twenty-six days to serve.

Kindy was sentenced to twenty-four months in the Central Prison on a charge of forgery in Cayuga, Ont. He was paroled on July 26, 1913. In 1911 he was charged with mutilating documents in the Registry Office at Cayuga and fined $250.

Union Bank checks aggregating $30,000 were found on the two men, six of which were for amounts of five thousand dollars odd. Evidently they had intended to use these.

In Kindy's written confession to the police he states that his home is Selkirk, Ont. He met Martindale at the Prison Farm in Guelph four months ago. He was released in July last, and Martindale two weeks later. They both went to Toronto, and at the Imperial Bank branch on King street presented a worthless check which Martindale drew on under an assumed name, to be deposited in a savings account. The next day Martindale drew on the bank with a false check for an amount which he says was $350.

The two told of visits to Hamilton and St. Catharines. At Hamilton they forged a check, using the name of Wm. J. Aikens of Dunnville, and deposited it at the Union Bank at St. Catharines. Other forgeries and attempted forgeries against the Dominion and other banks were told of in the confession.

The men met the two women in Buffalo. The women up to the time of their arrest, had no knowledge that the checks were forged.

DIAZ RETURNS TO MEXICO

Soldiers Will Check Any Demonstration

(Special to The Post.)

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 22.—Gen. Felix Diaz, candidate for the Mexican Presidency, who is now on his way to Vera Cruz aboard the steamer Corcovado, will be permitted to land to-day, but there must be no demonstration.

A small army of detectives is here from Mexico City and troops are held in quarters. Should the enthusiasm of the Diaz partisans outweigh their judgment, and in the opinion of the authorities, the peace of the city be thereby disturbed, the soldiers and police have orders to shoot.

Col. Vidaurrasaga, secretary to Gen. Blanquet, the Minister of War, is aboard the gunboat Zuragosa. The gunboat has steam up, and unless the orders are changed, will run alongside the Corcovado before she docks. Col. Vidaurrasaga will request Gen. Diaz to counsel his partisans to maintain good order, and in return for this he will assure Gen. Diaz his protection.

The Corcovado should be in Mexican water to-day, but she is not expected to dock before to-night. She is a German boat, and close behind her comes the German gunboat Hertha.

Not a very great number of partisans are expected to greet their chief. Those here are headed by José Luis Requena, candidate for the vice-presidency. Senor Requena believes that the ticket will be withdrawn, but will have a conference with Gen. Diaz to-day on the subject.

The candidacy of Gen. Huerta and Gen. Blanquet was proclaimed in unsigned handbills which were distributed here yesterday. Adherents of Gen. Diaz profess to have information that the state officials throughout that part of the republic controlled by the Government have agreed to favor the Huerta-Blanquet ticket, and consider it probable that Diaz will readily agree with them that under such circumstances competition would be useless.

Gen. Diaz, in a wireless message received last evening, announced his intention of remaining here to-day and proceeding to Mexico City on Thursday.

VERULAM BOY IS CRACK SHOT

Story of His Prowess on Pacific Coast

The Post has been shown a copy of the Grays Harbor (Aberdeen, Washington) Post containing an account of a shooting contest between the rifle team of Co. G. Aberdeen, and the Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles of Vancouver, B. C., in which a former Verulam lad, C. H. S. Hunter, figured prominently. He is only nineteen years of age and is a son of J. D. Hunter, of Dunsford P. O. His brother attends the local Collegiate. The Post says:—

The team representing Co. "G" was composed of Sergeant W. S. Mitchell, Sergeant B. H. Short and Private G. Spoon. The Canadians were armed with the Ross rifle, fitted with special shortshooting sights. The Americans were armed with the new Springfield rifle with the regulation army sight. Captain H. A. Comeau of Co. "G" was in charge of the Company team. Capt. O. R. Austin acted as executive officer, while Captain R. H. Fleet was official scorer.

The day was dark and a cold rain fell steadily throughout the shoot, which began at 10 a. m. and ended at 1.20 p. m. The high score for the Canadian Rifles was made by Rifleman Hunter, with a total of 188 out of a possible 200. The second high score of the shoot was made by Sergeant Mitchell of the American team with a total of 172. Sergeant Crookall was third high rifle with 166; Sergeant Porter, fourth with 165; Sergeant Short, fifth with 155; and Private Spoon, 6th with 131.

The Canadians won the toss and opened the shoot on the 200 yard range, slow fire. Rifleman Hunter had a clean score on this range of ten straight bulls-eyes. This event was taken by the Canadians by a score of 137 to 124. In the second event, 200 yards, rapid fire, the Americans led by 120 to 113. This was the only event in which the Americans showed superiority as the Canadians took the 500 yard event by a total of 139 to 105, and the 600 yard event by a total of 125 to 109. The tabulated score of the shoot was as follows:

The shoot seemed to justify the opinion that the Canadian Rifles had the better sights, while the American rifles were the more serviceable guns. The essence of good sportsmanship marked the shoot, attention being paid by the American officers to every detail that would show the Canadian visitors the fairest opportunity to display their skill.

Rifleman Hunter's Nerve.

Rifleman C. H. S. Hunter, who was high individual gun for the day, is a student of the Columbia University, at New Westminister, B. C., and fired his first charge from a military rifle on Good Friday of this year. His development as an expert rifleman has been unusually rapid and he showed Monday a nerve that would have been creditable to a seasoned veteran. This was the young man's second severe contest, his first being with the B. C. R. A. at Vancouver, when the elimination shoot to select a team for the International meet at Camp Perry was in progress. With 76 entries, the young rifleman came within two points of making the Ottawa team.

In Monday's shoot, on the 600 yard range, Rifleman Hunter had made his third consecutive bulls-eye. He fired his eighth shot and the scorers flashed the flag across the target indicating a miss. The young rifleman neither changed color nor showed any perceptible emotion, though to miss the target under the circumstances, would have been little short of a disgrace. Captain Austin, as executive officer, phoned the target pit and asked the men to carefully re-examine the target. This was done, and again the flag was waved across the face of the target, indicating a clean miss. Young Hunter was as impassive as before and merely prepared his rifle for another shot. Captain Austin, still dissatisfied, again phoned the target men and asked them to look yet once again. They did so, and flashed back the signal of a bulls-eye. The bullet from Hunter's rifle had pierced the target exactly in the small black spot in the center of the red and the men in the target pits

SUCCESSFUL YEAR FOR FALL FAIRS

Clean Exhibit Wins Every Time

That feeling of satisfaction and carefreeness which always accompanies the safe garnering of a splendid crop is this year reflected in the uniformity of success which attended the fall fairs recently held throughout Ontario. One cannot journey from place to place without hearing on all sides glowing reports of the big crowds and the huge gate receipts at "our fair." The hundreds of local papers are filled with lengthy accounts of the festive occasions, and through the whole chorus of felicitous reference there sounds not a discordant note. Why this should be requires some explanation. It is far from being the case that successful show should follow successful show as five follows four or twenty nineteen. Thirty years ago the small fairs in Ontario were better, as fairs pure and simple, than they were five years since. The economic change which has revolutionized our whole rural life affected the small fair and tended, by its very artificiality of nature, to bring success to the gates of those fairs which depended for their crowds upon shady racing calendars and trashy vaudeville stunts. For a time they succeeded, and well. But the past five years' time has witnessed a wholesome change for the better in the desires of those connected with our rural fairs, and today we find that those fairs which struggled through a decade of reverses, depending solely upon their excellence of exhibit for recognition, are drawing large crowds, while their ertswhile flashy competitors are left disconsolate and out of pocket.

A Clean Exhibit Wins.

In a chat with the writer the energetic Superintendent of Fairs, Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, declared his concurrence in the sentiments above expressed. "There is undoubtedly a revival in fair work," said Mr. Wilson. "I have been looking over the records, and I find that since fairs were first held in Ontario, about one hundred and thirty years ago, there has not been a more generally successful year than the one just closing. The small fair with a good honest exhibit and clean attractions has come to its own. Take that local paper on my desk there—it reads as if there never had been such a fair in that town. That is the general story.

Why Not Perpetual Fund?

"Your 'rainy-day' fund will not be so heavily drawn upon?" I ventured.

"Oh, no! There is going to be very little demand upon it. Yet, in a sense that makes little real difference for we are no further ahead with the fund after a fine year than after a string of disasters. What money is not expended is returned to the treasury. It is rather a pity that this year's left-over money, for instance, could not be held as part of a fund to which would be added the amount unclaimed year by year. In that way we would soon build up a reserve upon which we could draw without restriction in case of a very bad season. As it is at present the grant is simply from year to year, and we get no further ahead financially."

The Faker is Not Wanted.

Much of the success of rural fairs this year is probably attributable to the infusion of new blood into the directorates. In the past it has been a matter of policy with rural boarding that the same men be kept in harness year after year, even unto the third and fourth generation. Of late, however, newer and younger men have been added, and they have given that touch of modernity which un many cases has meant success rather than failure. Whether or not it is due to a reformed directorate, one feature of this year's shows is the absence of the faker. Superintendent Wilson has for years been a tireless foe of the confidence men and the gambling fraternity, and no one appreciates their almost complete removal more than he.

MRS. PANKHURST GETS A FROST

New York Meeting Poorly Attended

(Special to The Post)

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, addressing last night in Madison Square Garden her first American mass meeting on her present eventful trip, explained why militant methods for the cause of woman suffrage are carried on in England but not in America, and defended the employment of such methods. She criticized the British Government as the most conservative on earth and held it responsible, through failure to enact legislation desired by women for women resorting to violence to obtain the ballot. Only through dynamic means, she declared, could English women hope to secure laws dealing with white slavery, industrial evils and other conditions affecting women.

Preparations had been made for an overflow meeting at Madison Square Garden, but the big hall, with a seating capacity of some 12,000 persons, was scarcely one-quarter filled. This was attributed by the suffragettes to the uncertainty that existed until almost the eleventh hour as to whether the immigration authorities would allow Mrs. Pankhurst to make her appearance on the public lecture platform in this country.

Some leading suffragettes of the country and a few "hunger strikers" from England sat with Mrs. Pankhurst on a stage draped with a tri-colored flag bearing the inscription, "Resistance to Tyranny is Obedience to God." Wearing small steel prison-bar badges signifying that their militancy had resulted in jail terms, were Miss Elsie McKenzie and Miss Mary Keegan. English girls come here to accept business opportunities and Miss Lucy Burns and Miss Elizabeth Freeman, American girls who went to England to fight for "the cause." Mrs O. H. P. Belmont, Miss Lavinia Dock, Miss Sybil Wilbur, Miss Alberta Hill, Miss Fola La Follette, Miss Ida Craft and other American suffragette leaders sat with them.

Mrs. Pankhurst May Enter.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—W. D. Scott, commissioner of immigration, said yesterday: "If Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst visits Canada as a tourist or as a lecturer, we won't bar her entry, but if she starts to smash things she will be promptly apprehended and deported."

ROSS HOSPITAL RECEIVES CHEQUE

The Ross Memorial Hospital received a check today for $45.00 through Hopkins & Hopkins from Dr. P. J. Maloney, of Cornwall, who recovered an amount from the Town of Lindsay in a suit for damages arising out of his daughter having been placed in the Isolation Hospital when she had scarlet fever. The doctors claim that the building was not in proper state of repair or fit for the reception of the sick was sustained and he was awarded the above amount and costs by the court.

In the opinion of a great many citizens the time has arrived when the town should seriously consider the question of the erection of a suitable building for an isolation hospital.

CONVENTION OF BAPTISTS CLOSED

Appointment of Bilingual Pastors Urged

Peterboro, Oct. 21.—At the concluding business session of the Baptist Convention this afternoon resolutions were reported expressing appreciation of the Children's Aid Society, sympathy with the temperance work, and the hope that the provinces would soon be able to banish the bar and suppress liquor sales in stores, sympathy with the efforts to suppress the white slave traffic and with the British anti-opium societies, also with the Canadian Baptist Society, and favoring the changing of the date of Thanksgiving Day to the last week in Octoqer.

It was left with the incoming executive to decide the next place of meeting.

The names of Revs. H. E. Allen, H. R. Noble, Dr. Graham, Dr. Anderson and G. Grant, D. Moyle and A. R. Minard were added to the Committee on Social Service. A strong plea for bilingual pastors for Eastern Ontario and Quebec was made by Rev. Prof. Trotter. Rev. S. E. Grigg, J. B. Kennedy, M. C. McLean and W. J. McKay were appointed to the Council of the Dominion Alliance. Rev. J. D. Freeman, of Leicester, England, was appointed representative on the Baptist Colonial Society.

The report of the Committee on Non-resident Membership, read by Rev. C. J. Cameron, showed that about one-eighth of the membership of the churches are non-resident. The establishment of a central bureau for non-residents was suggested, so that the pastors might send information in respect to a member and efforts could be made to bring him into relation with the church in his home. Differences of opinion were expressed as to the establishment of such a department. The committee was continued until next convention.

ANOTHER NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH

Review: It was announced in St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday that a new Roman Catholic church would in the near future be erected in East City. Since the Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D. D., has been raised to the Episcopate, this section of the city has been supplied with a separate school and now His Lordship is further satisfying the wants of that portion of his flock by arranging for a new church.

Very Rev. Dean McColl informed the Review this morning that the site has not as yet been selected, but there is a possibility of it being erected on the hospital grounds.

All those now attending St. Peter's and who reside on the east side of the Otonabee river, will attend the new church. The style of edifice has not as yet been decided.

NO FOOD TAX

The Bankstown Phoenix says that a clamour has broken the statement that there is a trust in nearly every food industry in Canada, and the press seems to confirm the statement. There is only one way to fight the trust, and that is to increase the market for supplies. There should be no taxes on food.

WHO PAYS THE DUTY?

In the foolish old days says the Victoria Times, when the N. P. was in flower many a windy advocate of protection argued and proved to his own satisfaction and the confusion of some not very clear thinkers that the exporter paid the duty. That is one fallacy with experience now committedly exploded. No one in Victoria, with his monthly bills before him, may doubt as to who pays the duty—with a not inconsiderable amount thrown in for good or bad measure to the vendor of the duty-laden article.

FIREARMS IN THE HOME

The sad tragedy at Wingham a few days ago, when a nine-year-old daughter accidentally killed her father with a revolver, should serve as a warning to those who make a practice of keeping firearms in their homes and still in reach of their children. There is no reason, in this country at the present time, for keeping revolvers in their possession for protection. It is surprising, however, how many people have these weapons that may be found in the homes. Even in Lindsay the practice is believed to be a great many. A few days ago a little boy attending one of our schools appeared among his playmates on the campus with a revolver which he said was the property of his father. Such carelessness is positively criminal, and so long as the deadly implements are kept in the home, we may always expect to read the details of tragedies similar to the deplorably sad occurrence at Wingham.

THE SAME OLD STORY

"The paradox of this infamous house tax bill will run Ireland," says Mr. William Maguire, of Belfast, to Toronto Saturday. That is what is said of every important Liberal measure. The budget of 1909 was going to drive capital out of England and ruin the country. It hasn't driven out a single duke. England is prospering on the budget, as Ireland will on self-government.—London Advertiser.

It will also be remembered that Mr. Gladstone introduced his bill to disestablish the Irish church, the threat was made "to kick the Queen's crown into the Thames, and kick the bench with either." The bill passed, however, and there was no disturbance.

CURB THE MILITARISTS

Some effort should be made to curb these stubbornly militaristic souls who would have Canada the sentinel of mad militarism. We heartily agree with the remarks of the Ottawa Telegraph, which pulsates this fraternity:

"Canada, throbbing with the impulse of opportunity, has abundant need of soldiers, but the soldiers of peace. Canada does not need thousands of men trained and enthusiastic in militarism, but she does need the energy and enthusiasm of what one writer has called the "soldiers of the moment conquest." The man who labors earnestly for the material development of the country is a soldier in a splendid cause. The man who goes out to war against the evils of intemperance, political corruption, the oppression of the weak, and endeavors to make firm the higher standards of life is a better soldier for Canada than the man who endeavors to fire the spirit of militarism."

NEW LAND POLICY

The published green opinions on the land speech of David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, on Saturday, are strictly partisan in tone.

The Unionist organs denounce it as the most demagogic of the century, while the Liberal press praises it as a most statesmanlike utterance.

The speech, which marked the actual commencement of the campaign for the reform of the land laws of Great Britain, was deliberately designed with the approval of the Cabinet, apparently with a view of securing the votes of the agricultural laborers. The great Unionist landslide during the 1906 general election was largely due to the Liberals carrying the home counties. These they have since lost, and now believe these revolutionary laws will aid them to regain these seats.

The debatable question is whether the Unionist scheme of peasant ownership or a well safeguarded tenancy system is the better vote catcher. Anyhow both parties fully recognize the paramount importance of the votes of the agricultural laborers, in view of the fact that the majority of the owners of farm lands are already Unionist.

CABINET CHANGES

The necessity of strengthening the personnel of the cabinet as at present constituted, is a matter which Premier Borden and proved to his colleagues Borden, and changes in the near future are certain.

The Hon. Louis Coderre, it is understood, will be given a place on the bench. He will probably be succeeded by Mr. L. T. Marchal, K. C., of Montreal. The Hon. Mr. Pelletier will be given a judgeship, and Mr. Albert Benoit, of Dorchester is mentioned as his most likely successor.

The Hon. W. T. Crothers will also be retired. It is understood that it is considered likely that the Hon. Adam Beck, of London, will be brought in as successor to him.

Then it is proposed to create a new Department of Health, over which the Hon. T. Chase Casgrain, Minister of the Interior, will preside. This will afford Mr. Borden the opportunity of bringing Mr. R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, into the Government as Minister of the Interior.

IMPROVING THE SCUGOG

At a session of the town council on Oct 3rd, Mr. Harris, town clerk reported that he had written the members soliciting their co-operation in effecting the Dominion Government with a view to having the waters of the upper Scugog river and lake kept at a moderate and even level.

This matter should engage the serious attention of our council, but only should navigation be improved on the upper stretch of waters, but a proper level should be maintained in order that the water may be of our citizens. Lindsay gets its water supply from Lake Scugog and when the water is low the supply of purity is seriously impaired and the health of our citizens thereby endangered.

During the summer months, owing to the variations in the water level, large areas of mud, etc., have been exposed to the great danger to the health of the people. Should the water of the upper Scugog become contaminated to such an extent as to render its consumption a source of danger, a serious problem would confront this town.

We believe our council, therefore, to cooperate with the other municipalities interested and, and its representatives with the Government at Ottawa to urge upon the Government the necessity of improving conditions on the upper waters.

STANDARDS OF SUCCESS

"Yes not in mortals to command success," but you can be certain that putting our educational methods are "reserve it." It is high time to note that most of our educational methods in this country and the States owed very little to culture." — Montreal Herald.

Yes this the Hamilton Herald adds a very sensible and timely comment, which sets forth very clearly the dangers for the very best of education. Without any intention of being offensive, says the Herald, we might also draw attention to the fact that very few of our successful burglars and safe-crackers have had the advantage of a universal education. "The point is that the qualities and habits of mind that have to do with intellectual culture are distinct from those which have to do with the getting of money. The getting of money does not require intellectual culture such as the student acquires at a university. Indeed, a university training, if anything, weakens instead of enhancing the money-getting faculties.

But money-getting, either by way of safe-cracking or crushing competitors rivals and monopoly in the market, is not the only form of success in life. Wealth should not be regarded as the only measure of success. The value of one's service to humanity is a better criterion, and if intellectual culture gained in a university enhances the value of one's service, it need not be regarded as unworthy of consideration even in connection with the training of those mental and moral faculties which have to do with the accumulation of wealth.

RUBBER BOOTS A VICTORY

The special correspondent of the Toronto Telegram — a Conservative paper capable of independence—was on the ground in Chateauguay, and in his letter to his paper there is more than one interesting revelation of the methods employed in the recent campaign on behalf of the Ministerial candidate. Thus, of the ingenious employment of the rubber boot brigade, Mr. Hugh Robertson, the correspondent in question, writes:

"And then there is the big issue of 'Public Works.' For long years the riding returned Mr. Brown, the late member. He had clean shaves, but he always got in. The Liberal administration never thought it necessary to bribe the electorate of Chateauguay with public works. It was always a practical certainty that the girl candidate would hob up somewhere. Under the Laurier regime, Chateauguay's virtue was its own reward—public money went to the doubtful ridings.

"But that part at present Chateauguay has a bleak sense. Since the glacial period, the river of that name has been overflowing its banks each spring. Every time the vernal sun melts the ice-lock a considerable part of the riding is inundated. Along comes Hon. Robert Rogers, now Minister of Public Works. Hon. Bob will tackle anything, even Dame Nature. He will dam anything, even the Chateauguay River. So the riding which has been neglected for many years is about to take unto itself the 200 cases in rubber boots who at generous pay march up and down the river seeking some way to stop the Chateauguay floods. The Chateauguay basin in Oct. 1912 is as impressive a sight as long a scene of governmental legislatory, as the Chateauguay canal in Sept. 1911. Hy there be yerve yer shall know them,' said the good Book. Hy there be yerve you may expectorate on the present election."

MISGUIDED REFORMERS

The superintendent of a protective association in New York has organized some 500 school girls into an association for good. Their work is to point up and expose "vice, crime, ignorance and disease." The author says in part: "Vice and crime affect not only be of great benefit to the community, but that their publication in the hands of the girls will cause "the pitfalls set for unwary feet."

The newspaper reports do not give us full particulars of this new movement as we would like. But there is enough hint to confirm it. The girls are supposed to report what they deem to be a violation of our dance halls, and such places, and report what they consider to be a violation. Or, they may be a well-intentioned person, but any man who would set young girls to report on questionable places of public resort ought to be locked up rather than be given on with his plans. The best personal influence school girls have of the vice and folly of large cities like New York, the better for them. To send them to places where vice abounds in order to get evidence for the prosecution of offenders is one of the craziest schemes we have heard of for some time.

The idea of having young girls teach social hygiene by their teachers may have something to be said for it. Possibly the London Advertiser, too, to send these little girls into the haunts of vice to gather information is indefensible.

Ambition is the mother-in-law of disappointment.

THEIR TUNE IS CHANGED

While Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Borden was wont to express great discontent that the Liberal Government did not bring on all its by-elections in bunches. It was its habit to indignantly claim that the Government was deliberately stringing out by-elections so as to be able to centralize all its forces on each, and thus defeat the Conservative candidate. The records show that the Liberals never deliberately delayed by-elections and when successful contests were brought off on the same day. For instance, no less than five by-elections were decided on December 17, 1896—and the Liberals won every one of them—while in most other instances by-elections came in groups of two and three.

Since 1911 the contested by-elections have been absolutely aggregated by the Borden majority so as to give him. Mr. Rogers ample opportunity to have full swing with his election winning brigade and "Manitoba methods."

There was no reason in the world why the by-elections in Chateauguay, Kent and Brant should not have been could not have been held simultaneously. Had Mr. Borden any regard for his past consistency and promises the three would have been settled on the same day. Mr. Borden, however, had to subordinate party promises to partisan necessity.

It is known beyond peradventure that immense sums of money and quantities of liquor were used as Tory arguments in Chateauguay. With the same workers and same methods it is likely that the same sort of corruption will be left in East Middlesex and South Bruce.

CHILDREN OUT AT NIGHT

Many resolutions have been passed by benevolent and philanthropic organizations, many sermons delivered, many editorials written by leading newspapers and magazines, many personal suggestions made, that the law dealing with children on the streets and in parks after dark should be more stringent. At the recent session of the Ontario Legislature these numerous suggestions have been met, and the amended law is as follows:

Children's Protection Act.

Rec. 1.—(1) No child (under sixteen) shall loiter in any public place after 9 o'clock in the evening, or be there unless accompanied by his parent or guardian or an adult appointed by the parent or guardian to accompany such child.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT

The Kingston Whig, which of late has been publishing a number of interesting references to the commission form of government, states that Pennsylvania, the most conservative, politically, of all the states, has been interested with the demand for municipal reform. Since 1909 there has been a growing desire for commission government, and it has met with suggestions that the same purpose might be served with a limited council. The smaller cities were the most persistent—what are called the cities of the third class—those with a population of over 10,000, and the legislature has been amending its laws. There is now practically no restriction upon the cities that would experiment with commission.

The main act provides for the election at large of a mayor, who holds office for four years, and four councillors, sitting for two years. The mayor has no vote, and all acts will be passed by a majority of the members. The people will elect the controller for four years, but the city solicitor, city engineer, city treasurer, city assessor, and city clerk will be appointed by the council for two years. In order to render the act constitutional a scale of salaries is provided, according to population, and the third class cities may adopt the city manager plan of government if they so desire. While the initiative and referendum are granted on the basis of twenty per cent. of the voters the result and state service features of the commission government have been withheld. The act comes into effect Dec. 1st.

Government of this kind cannot be had in Canada, because there is no legal provision for them, and no hope of it. But there is a provision under which the cities may pass under a commission, with the people's approval, and representations will be made at once for this vote.

Bell Tel. Co And Rural Lines

Toronto, Oct. 15.—General Manager C. F. Sise, of the Bell Telephone company, is authority for the statement that if the company is forced by the Dominion railway commission to continue an interchange of long-distance calls with certain rural telephone companies the company will gradually be driven out of the rural products. Under existing conditions, and forecasting future conditions, Mr. Sise declared that if the company attempted to spend excessive amounts of money in improving the system and offering bargain rates in the rural districts the competition would eventually cripple it.

Mr. Sise made these statements yesterday before the Dominion railway commissioners in support of the application of the company for the cancellation of an order permitting certain rural telephone companies to use the trunk lines of the Bell company for long-distance connections. The order was made by the late Chairman Mabee in 1911 for the purpose of experimenting. The parties affected by the order were instructed to keep a detailed statement of the business done in each case. The experiment, according to the Bell company, has been a losing venture, while on the other hand the rural telephone company claim it has been productive of good results.

The Bell Telephone interchanges long-distance calls with 21 independent telephone companies in Ontario, and with eight competitive rural telephone companies. The latter serve Ingersoll, Dundas, Markham, Fleshing, Whatley, Brussels, Sombra and Forest. If the board refuses to renew the order the latter and group of towns and villages will be denied the privilege of long-distance connections. Under the present agreement the subscribers making distance calls, in addition to paying the usual toll, are obliged to pay an extra 35 cents as a penalty fixed by the board for the accommodation, and the charges for switching, etc. The penalty clause is the great objection which the competitive companies are strenuously endeavoring to have eliminated in the readjustment of the order. They claim they should be placed on an equal basis with a non-competitive company which is also accorded the long-distance connection under ordinary charges, minus the penalty charge.

Prowler Tried to Enter House

On Monday morning about 1.30 o'clock Chief Chilton received a phone message that someone was trying to enter the residence of Mr. Samuel Cherrie, 71 Melbourne-st between Sussex and Albert-sts. The Chief hurried to the scene, but the prowler had disappeared. It is understood that he tried to gain entrance through the back door.

STURGEON POINT COUNCIL SESSION

A meeting of the Sturgeon Point council held this afternoon in Mr. G. H. Hopkins' office. There were present Reeve Jos. Brown, Councillors Geo. A. B. McIntyre, and J. M. Knowlson.

On motion Mr. I. B. Weldon was heard in regard to the water pending between the village of Sturgeon Point and Mrs. Walker.

On motion of Councillors Knowlson and Hopkins a resolution was passed that the suit be withdrawn. Mrs. Walker is to pay $25 cost, and is required to remove the stone and other material from her property and must have it properly cleaned up by the first of December. She is to release all rights she may hold. Each party is to pay their own costs.

A number of accounts were then read and passed.

A complaint was then spoken of in regard to the sanitary arrangements of one of the cottages. The owner will be requested to conform with the bylaws.

Councillor Ryley stated that he has let the contract for the opening up of a new street as far as Graham's Landing, for the sum of $190. Heavy street will have at least four new cottages on it next year, and perhaps more, as a number of lots have been sold lately by the owners to persons with the immediate intention of building. The contractor, J. R. Graham, will remove all the big stones, trees and brush from the roadway, and will level and grade it ready for use next year.

Clerk Hopkins reported that attempts had been made by parties to obtain water lots on Sturgeon Point from the government. He had heard of it and protested and the government has promised to give the council notice before any action is taken in case of any future applications.

The council then adjourned.

"Yes; it was after Mrs. Dupont had left. Captain Burrell came, and took her away. I was sitting here thinking when two men came into the parlor."

"Who were they? Do you know?"

"One was the soldier who drives you about—Gaston, I think, the other a black bearded, burly fellow called 'Reb.'"

"Mr. Dupont?"

"What? To that Dupont? Lord! No wonder she's gone mad. Why, I thought her husband was a ranchman down south somewhere! This fellow is a tinhorn."

"He did run cattle once, years ago. I think he was quite well off, but drank and gambled it away. Papa told me all about it, but I found out for myself the man by accident. He—is the one I am afraid of."

She stopped, her eyes deserting his face, and stared out into the darkness. He waited, feeling vaguely that he had not heard all she intended to say.

"What more do you know?" he asked. "What was it you expected of me?"

She turned again, aroused by the question.

"Yes, I must tell you as quickly as I can before I am missed. I did not know about Mrs. Dupont and lieutenant Gaston. I realized there was something between them—a—slight flirtation, I scarcely gave that a thought. What brought me here was a much more serious matter, yet this new information helps me to comprehend the other—the motives, I mean. Mrs. Dupont's middle name was Vera Carron?"

"Certainly; I knew her family well."

"She came here, and was received into our family as a daughter of my father's friend. If true, her maiden name would have been Sarah Counts. Papa had no reason to suspect the deceit. He does not now, and I doubt if even your word would convince him, for he is thoroughly under the spell of disguise. There has been such a change in his mind since she came; not all at once, you know, but gradually, until now he scarcely seems like the same man. I do not dislike Lieutenant Gaston; he has been pleasant and attentive, but I do not care for him in any other way. Yet papa thinks he is smitten on him. Lately he has been very morbid about it, and—and I feel sure she is urging him on. What can I do? It is all so unpleasant."

Hamlin shook his head, but without reply.

"You will not tell me? Then I will tell you I shall say not! not! in spite of threat! I shall refuse to be sold. But how does that woman compel my father?" she leaned closer in her earnestness, lowering her voice. "She has not won him by charms; he is afraid of her."

"Afraid! Are you certain of that?"

"Yes. I cannot tell you how I know; perhaps it is a womanly instinct, but I do know that he is terrorized; that he dare not oppose her wish. I have read the truth in his eyes, and I am sure he is harsh to me only because he is driven by some threat. What can it be?"

"You have never spoken to him of your suspicions? Asked him?"

"Yes and no. I tried once, and shall never forget the expression of his face. Then she turned on me in a perfect paroxysm of anger. I never yet dared hint at the matter again."

The Sergeant stared out into the street, not knowing what to say, or how to advise. Almost unconscious of the action he had stole along the rail until it touched hers.

"If the woman has not coerced him by her wicked methods," he said soberly, "and I think myself you are right about that, for I watched them together in the dance hall—I did not comprehend what it meant then, but it seemed to me he was most distinctly in her company—then she has uncovered something in his past of which he is afraid, something unknown to you, which he does not desire you ever to know."

"Yes," softly, "that must be true."

"No; it may not be true; it may all be a lie, concocted for a purpose. A clever woman might so manipulate circumstances as to convince him she held his fate in her hands. We must find out out in this case."

"But how, dear Hamlin? He will not tell me."

"Perhaps she will tell me if I can reach her alone," he said gravely, "no else that husband of hers—Dupont. Hell know the whole story. It would give me pleasure to choke it out of him—with pleasure. Then there's Connors, just the sort of smacking rat if he can be caught with the goods; only it is not likely he knows much. I shall have to think it all out, Miss Molly. Don't be angry, but I'm confidently, 'You see, I am a bit slow figuring out a case, but I generally get there in time. You've told me all you know?"

"Everything. It almost seems silly when I try to explain what I feel to another."

"Not to me. I know enough before to understand. But, perhaps, you had better go—Sush, some one is entering the parlor."

She got to her feet in spite of his restraining hand, startled and unnerved.

"Oh, I must not! he seen here. In there we cannot talk."

"No; be still for a moment; step back down into the shadow, and let me go in alone."

He stepped forward, his mind relieved by the sudden, hoarse whisper, a voice spoke within:

"Yes, that was what I meant; he does not know you—yet. But you must keep away."

CHAPTER XXII.

Molly Disappears.

The speaker was Mrs. Dupont, but Hamlin's only thought was to prevent any discovery of Miss McDonald. Without a word of explanation, he drew aside the curtain, and stepped into the room.

"Pardon me," he said quietly, as the two started back at his rather abrupt appearance, "I did not mean to overhear your conversation. No doubt it was intended to be private."

The woman recovered somewhat in advance of her companion, as though her shield his presence occasioned, instantly mastering her surprise.

"Nothing at all serious, Mr. Sergeant Hamlin," she returned coolly, lightly. "Don't be melodramatic, please; it is not in the mode. I was sorry to come I was merely giving our ranch foreman a few final instructions, as he leaves at daybreak. Are you to overhear your conversation. No doubt it was intended to be private."

The woman spoke somewhat in advance of her companion, as though her shield his presence occasioned, instantly mastering her surprise.

"Nothing at all serious, Mr. Sergeant Hamlin," she returned coolly, lightly. "Don't be melodramatic, please; it is not in the mode. I was sorry to come I was merely giving our ranch foreman a few final instructions, as he leaves at daybreak. Are you to overhear your conversation. No doubt it was intended to be private."

Hamlin Elbowed His Way Into the Street.

"Exactly; and I, not me alone, I am hardly the sort of woman it is safe to play with. It will be worth your while to remember that."

He walked, motionless, until assured that she had passed down the hall as far as the door of the dining room. The sound of shuffling chairs evidenced the ending up of the party preparation to return to the ballroom. If Miss McDonald's absence were to escape observation she must have to slip out now and rejoin the dancers from the hall door. He again turned down the light, and held back the curtain.

"The way is clear now, Miss Molly."

"There was no response, no movement. He stepped outside, thinking the girl must have failed to hear him. The porch was empty. He stepped down and to the other side, making sure she was not crouching in the shadows, and then ran back to grasp the fact of her actual disappearance. Then, then, was why Mrs. Dupont had failed to return, was why she was alone and out. But where could the girl have gone? How gotten away? He had heard no sound behind him; not even the rustle of a skirt to betray movement. In his mind he saw the grounds, five or six feet, perhaps; it would be perfectly safe for one to hover in the shadow of the rail and drop. The wide matted prairie grass under foot would render the act noiseless. He knew that was exactly the way the escape had been accomplished. A woman, he knew, would have, those others, suspecting that the woman within would insist on learning whom Hamlin was conversing to—cool, possibly overbearing enough of her conversation to become fully versed at the final outcome, Miss McDonald, in sudden desperation, had surmounted the rail, and dropped to the ground. The rest would be easy—to hasten around the side of the house, and slip in through the front door.

Assured that this must be the full explanation, the Sergeant's chagrin was returned. The company of officers and guests had already filed out through the hall; he could hear voices laughing and talking in the street, and the band tuning up their instruments across in the dance hall. He would go out and make certain of her presence, then his mind would be at ease. He passed out through the dance hallway, and paused for a moment in the lighted room, where a number of men were gathering up the dishes. Beyond this the bar-room was crowded, a riffraff lined up before the alleyed bar, among these a number in uniform—two attached officers who had loitered behind to quench their thirst. Hamlin drank little, but lingered a moment at least inside the doorway, to observe who was present. Unconsciously was searching for Dupont, half inclined to pick a quarrel deliberately with the fellow or with Connors, determined if he found either the little or alone to frighten whatever knowledge he possessed out of him. But neither appeared. Having assured himself of their absence, Hamlin turned to depart, but found himself facing a little man with long hair, wide, crossed, who occupied the doorway. He looked once, and bright eyes peering forth from a mass of unkrimmed gray whiskers, were familiar.

"You kept the pack shop down by the express office, don't you?"

"Yes," briskly, seeming business in the question. "I'm Kaplan; yet could I do for you—hey?"

"Answer a question if you will, friend. Do you recall selling a haversack to a traveler on the last stage out for Santa Fe in June?"

"Yes, I do; yes, I was be a big fellow! Maybe do you not van killed—hey?"

"Yes; his name was Moylon, postsutler at Harry."

"Maybe dot you it. Why you want to know—hey?"

"No harm to you, Kaplan," the Sergeant explained. "Only I picked it up out there after Moylon was killed, and discovered by some writing on the flap that it originally belonged to a friend of mine. I was curious to learn how it got into your hands."

The trader shrugged his shoulders. "Vud it be worth a drink?" he asked casually.

"Of course, Frank, give Kaplan whatever he wants. Now, fire away."

"Yes," and the fellow filled his glass deliberately, "it was sold me six months before by a fellow vut had a black beard—"

"Dupont?"

"Dat vos do name ov de feller, yes. Now I know it. I saw him here again soon. You know him?"

"By sight only. I do not the original owner, nor the man I am trying to trace. You have no idea of where he got the bag, I presume?"

"I know nothing more as I tell you already," replied the trader, adding as he realized that one drink was all he was going to receive.

Hamlin elbowed his way out to the street. He had learned something, but not much that was of value. Undoubtedly the haversack had come into Dupont's possession through his wife, but this knowledge yielded no information as to the present whereabouts of Le Fever. When the latter had separated from the woman, the old scrap boy was left behind, and, needing money, Dupont had disposed of it, along with other truck, scenting fly of little value.

The Sergeant reached this conclusion quickly, satisfied that any further investigation among the dive would be worthless, reverted to his earlier purpose—the duty of Mrs. Dupont. Directly to satisfy himself of her presence he crossed the street, and glanced in at the ballroom door. There were few loiterers at the doorway and he noted Connors standing by the guard, where he was able to survey the room. Mrs. Dupont was upon the floor, and evidently was not without filling her eyes in recognition, Hamlin was quite certain. He was presented, could he discover Miss Molly. Hamlin searched, but failing her presence, Hamlin searched anxiously for the sergeant, could he secure the clue to the fort as early as this? If so, he could lengthen their guest was still present, happily enjoying himself, of course she might be there under cover of the dance, but Hamlin, very firmly, doubtfully. He would ask the infantryman.

"Have you seen Miss McDonald since supper?"

The officer hesitated an instant, as though endeavoring to remember.

"No, I am, now you speak of it, Sergeant, I have not seen her since she came back alone. Don't believe she danced any since. The Major was here, though, I remember, and I made a note a few minutes ago, and he got him to find some partner."

Hamlin drew a breath of relief. "Well must have cover for him to take her home," he said, "I'm looking for me to turn in—good-night, old fellow."

He tramped along the brightly illuminated street, and out upon the dark road leading up the hillside to the cottage, his mind occupied with the events of the evening, and those other incidents leading up to them. He could not but doubt that Miss McDonald and her father had gone to Santa Fe, that, for what could he do to assist her? The boy knowledge of the trader had unfortunately appealed to him, that she had come to him secretly with her trouble, brought strange hopes and fancies into his former acquaintance with Mrs. Dupont gave to the matter a new aspect. Yet how was he going to unravel the tangle, discover the motive, find out the various connections, if there were, they really after? Money probably, but possibly revenge. What did he know, on know which enabled her to yield such ascendency over McDonald? What was the trap they had succeeded in? The Sergeant felt that he could solve these problems if given an opportunity, but he was handicapped by his position; he could not leave his troop, could not meet or talk with Mrs. Dupont, expected parties; was tied, hand and foot, by orders. Perhaps he could find even absent himself from the post without gaining special permission. He swore to himself over the hopelessness of the situation, as he turned through the blockhouse toward the quarters, and, as he passed the officer of the day, he had paused and stepped out of the guard-house door.

"Good evening, Sergeant," the latter said gaily. "Just in time for you to expect they are having some dance down at the Montier."

"Yes, sir," hesitatingly, and then venturing the inquiry: "May I ask if Major McDonald has returned from the post?"

"McDonald? No," he glanced at his watch. "He had orders to go east to Tipton on the stage. That was due out about an hour ago."

"To Tipton? By stage?" the Sergeant repeated the words, dazed.

"Why—why, what has become of Miss McDonald?"

The officer smiled, shaking his head. "I'm sure I don't know, my man, he returned carelessly. "Come back with Barrett and his hubbyy, likely. Why? Anybody inquired for her? Anything to her father's face. "What's happened? Is there anything wrong?"

CHAPTER XXII.

A Deepening Mystery.

Startled and dismayed at Hamlin Was by this sudden revealment, he at once comprehended the embarrassment of his own position. He could not confess all he knew, certainly not the fact that the girl had met him secretly and had vanished while he was endeavoring to turn aside Mrs. Dupont. He must protect her at all hazards. To gain time, and self-control, he recalled with a question:

"Did not Connors drive them down sir?"

"Yes, the four of them."

"And Major McDonald knew that that was ordered Kaye?"

"Yes, the order came to me later. Accordingly was sent down in his window. But, see here Sergeant, am no Bureau of Information, have anything to report, make brief."

Hamlin glanced at the face of the officer. He knew the man, knew, except that he had the reputation of being a capable officer.

"I will, sir," he responded quickly "you may never have heard of the affair, but I was with Miss McDonald during a little Indian trouble out on the trail a few months ago."

The officer nodded.

"I heard about that; Geddies brought her in."

"Well, ever since she has seemed grateful and friendly. You know how women women are, sir, when that is kind. Tonight she came to me, he continued, she didn't seem to know whom else to go to, and told me of some trouble she was having. I realize, Captain Kane, that it may seem a bit strange to me, a young lady like Miss McDonald, an officer's daughter, would turn for help to an enlisted man, but I am telling you only the truth, sir. You see, she got it into her head because that I was square, and—and well, that I cared enough to help her."

"Wait a minute, Sergeant," broke in Kane, kindly, realizing the man's embarrassment, and resting one hand on his sleeve. "You do not need to apologize for Miss McDonald. I know something of what is going on at this post, although, darn me if I've ever got to the straight facts. You mean that Dupont—"

"Yes, she's concerned in the matter, but there are others also."

"Why, confess! the girl tell her father?"

FENELON FALLS

(Special to The Post)

The anniversary services of St Andrew's church on Sunday and Monday, October 19th and 20th, were among the most successful in the annals of the church. Large congregations were present at both services. On Sunday, when Rev. Dr. Ramsay of Knox church, Ottawa, was the special visitor Dr. Ramsey is an earnest, forceful speaker, and his sermons were justly appreciated by the large gatherings present. The choir rendered special music, the solo parts being well taken by Miss K. McIntosh and Messrs. Thos. Guy and J. Gordon. The floral decorations were beautiful and much admired. On Monday evening a fowl supper was served by the ladies of the church in the lecture room, and was attended by hundreds. Needless to state, the Ladies maintained their reputation on this occasion as on all others as expert cooks, and deft waitresses. After supper a splendid programme was given, addresses being delivered by Rev. Mr. Steele, of Glenarm, Rev. C. S. Lord, pastor of St. Andrew's, and Rev. W. H. A. French, rector of St. James church. Anthems were given by the choir: in which the solos were by Mrs. McArthur, Miss K. McIntosh, Messrs. T. Guy, H. Copp and J. Gordon. A quartette was given by Mrs. McArthur, Miss V. McKendry, and Messrs J. J. Lee, and J. Gordon. The Fenelon Falls orchestra rendered several selections during the evening.

A motion was passed that two delegates be sent on condition that each representative defray her own expenses, excepting railfond fare. Mrs. W. B. Jordan, and the secretary, Mrs M. B. Clubb were nominated and elected to represent this branch at the annual convention. An excellent paper was read by Mrs. A. Minthorne on "Busy Methods of Housekeeping," which was followed by a discussion. Among the many good points brought out on this subject by Mrs. Minthorne was the importance of beginning the morning with a supply of baking on hand sufficient to last through the ordeal. The same in regard to good humor, which was necessary to carry the housewife through with comfort to herself and household. The roll call was most interesting, as many of the members gave recipes for hot supper dishes, which are in demand for the winter months. A reading was given by Mrs. Dr Gould, entitled "Thanksgiving," which was appropriate to the season. Miss Tilly Patten gave a very well rendered piano solo, which was enjoyed. A reading by Mrs. Lamb was appreciated by the members. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. D. Jewell, when the subject, will be "Practical suggestions for Christmas gifts." Presentation At Balsover

The Superintendents, officers and teachers of Balsover Presbyterian Sunday School met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Mathison, after their recent marriage and made the following presentation, the address being read by Supt. James Nicholson:

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Mathison.

We, the Superintendents and Teachers of our Sabbath School, deem it a duty as well as a pleasure to meet at your home tonight to acknowledge our appreciation of the services rendered by you as Secretary and Treasurer in our school and the kindly efforts you put forth in any doings connected there with. We ask that you accept this little with prayers, that you may in the future as in the past continue in your master's service. We also ask that Mrs. Mathison accept this lamp as a small token of our respects with the hope that you both may be spared many years to labor among us and in years to come when you view this precious volume you will have some pleasant recollections of the past. When some of us may have heard the voice say it is enough, come up higher, Rith the with for you both a long and happy wedded life together.

Signed by the Superintendents and Teachers of Balsover Sabbath School.

Mr. Mathison made a suitable reply, in which he stated he was not expecting any reward to this world and deemed he had only done his duty. He was glad to know his services were appreciated and he accepted the presents in the same spirit in which they were given.

Ae District Superintendent Mr. Burgess pointed out that Mr. and Mrs. Mathison had secured two lights—the lamp as a light in this world, and the Bible a light to the world above.

A pleasant evening closed by singing "God Be With Us Till We Meet Again", after which the meeting ended by visiting Mr. and Mrs. Mathison many years of sincere happiness.

did not discover it until the third search, not expecting such an unusual shot at that range.

When the signal of a bulls-eye was given, the young rifleman, without change of countenance, or uttering a syllable, turned slightly on his side and prepared for his next shot, his shot at the 600 yard range, which also was a bulls-eye.

Pleased With Reception.

Lieutenant W. B. Hunter, is command of the Canadian team, is himself an expert rifleman. In the last International match held two weeks ago last Saturday on the Richmond rifle range at Vancouver, B. Speaking to the Post, regarding Monday's shoot, Lieut. Hunter said, "We certainly are pleased with the treatment we have received in Aberdeen, and will try to shoot hard enough to be on the team that comes back here a year from next fall." On being told that it was the American idea to fraternize with Canadians in a joint defense, Lieut. Hunter said, "If we are to keep this continent a white man's continent, it may be necessary for the two countries to stand shoulder to shoulder, and that is the general feeling on our side of the line."

INSTALLING THE MAGNETITE LIGHTS

His Worship Mayor Beal and Ald. Adams, who were appointed by the council to act in conjunction with the Light, Heat & Power Co in selecting the most suitable locations for the magnetite lights on Kent-st., have completed their labors.

The eighteen magnetite lights will all be placed on the main thoroughfare between Lindsay-st and Cambridge-st. Two will be installed at the corner of Lindsay and Kent-sts four at William and Kent-sts and two at Cambridge and Kent-sts. The remainder of the lights will alternate or "stagger on either side of the thoroughfare.

The committee felt that in order to have a first class job—in order to make Kent-st the best lighted business street in Canada, that the eighteen lights should be placed on the street. The illumination of William-st north will be dealt with separately.

The lights will be about 90 feet apart, and will effectively light up the business section.

It was felt by the committee that a light should be installed in front of the post office and the Dominion Government will be memorialised to place a suitable light at this point.

UNVEILING OF TWO MONUMENTS

On Monday afternoon Riverside Cemetery was the scene of a very impressive and solemn ceremony when the local Camp Woodmen of the World assisted by a large deputation from Peterboro Camp, unveiled two monuments to two deceased members Sovereign Thomas Graham, of Sherwood Forest No. 16 Peterboro, and Sovereign Samuel Pogue, of Lindsay Camp.

The Peterboro brethren arrived in town on the 3.15 train and marched to the hall of the local Camp.

In the afternoon the brethren of both Camps assembled and marched to the cemetery.

In spite of the unfavorable weather, the turn-out of the brethren and citizens was a large one.

The Woodmen of the World have adopted the admirable practice of placing a monument over the graves of their deceased members, and this was the first time a ceremony of this kind took place in Lindsay. It was beautifully impressive to witness and was not without its touch of sadness

The local officers who took part in the ceremonies were: Counsel Commander Battle, Advisory Lecturer Bellamy and Banker W. E. Kicher.

Head Counsel Dr. Harrison, of Toronto, delivered the oration of the day and his effort was a master piece of oratory.

Extended Wool Buying Trip

...On Monday Mr. A. Horn, of the Hora Bros. Woollen Co. and Mr. A. Birchard started on an extended wool buying trip, intending to visit Owen Sound, Wiarton, Dundalk and a number of other towns situated in the district where wool is grown extensively. The quantity of wool required to keep the local mill supplied is so great that it is necessary to secure it from all parts of the Dominion in addition to large shipments received from Australia and other foreign countries. The trip will be made in the company's automobile, and in this way they will be able to reach a large number of places in a short time.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS.

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They are absolutely safe, being guaranteed by a government analyst to contain neither opiates, narcotics or other harmful drugs. They are good for all children from the newborn babe to the growing child. They cure constipation, indigestion, expel worms, break up colds and make teething easy. In fact they are a cure for all the minor ills of little ones, and a box should always be kept in the house as a safeguard against sudden attacks of stomach or bowel troubles. Mrs. J. P. Richard, St. Norbert, N. B., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets all that is claimed for them. My baby suffered from his stomach and bowels and the Tablets certainly did him good." They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25c. a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

REABORO MAN IN THE WEST

The following communication received by the Post from John Calvert, of Reaboro, who is visiting in the west will be read with interest:

I am now on a visit to Lashbourne Sask., and I thought you would like some news from this part of the Dominion. The land here is rolling, and the soil is a brown clay loam, very rich. The crops here this year have been extra good on land that has been worked properly and sowed early. Wheat yields from 30 to 35 per acre, and weighs from 60 to 66 lbs. per measured bushel. Oats yield from 50 to 110 bus. per acre and weigh 40 to 46 per bus. Barley is also a good sample No. 1. The roads are fine here, no stone or gravel. Plenty of good water, cattle and horses look well and fat. It is a great country for cattle. They do not need housing after the first year, except milk cows. Some of our Reaboro people who come here years ago are doing well. Walter Greer has now one section, (640 acres) worth $25 an acre. He had on this farm this year 17,000 bus. of wheat, oats and barley, also 9 milk cows and a lot of young cattle and 50 hogs. Harry Burke works this farm on shares. Harry has a homestead also and two sons. Arthur has three-quarter section worth $1,200, and Leonard a half section Worth $7,000. James Greer has a quarter section worth $2,400, and a nice house in town. Walter Greer runs a blacksmith and furniture store, with stock worth $7,000. There are three elevators here.

The threshing is about all done. It has been a fine fall for the work. They have started fall ploughing. Everyone has three chickens. English, a gift from J. M. Bruce, Presbyterian and Methodist; also one hotel, a hospital costing $15,000, a gift from J. M. Bruce, two general stores, two hardware stores, one drug store, one bank (Scotiabank) two lumber yards, and a school with two teachers. One is James Moore from Reaboro. The C. N. railway also touches this point. Much land uncultivated is held by C.P.R. Company.

ELECTRIC ENGINES FOR THE C.P.R.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 20.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, before departing today for Winnipeg, announced that the Canadian Pacific's experiments in the Rockies with electrification are only preliminary to an extent soon to be extension operated exclusively by electric locomotives for handling freight as well as passenger traffic.

If the experimental work proves a success, he declared, the entire system will be electrified as rapidly as new motive power can be installed. He said, in explaining this subject, that the operation of terminals with electricity, as is done in New York, was the least important possibility of electrical railroad operation. Cheaper train service, the use of fewer men, and a saving in fuel were only a few of the economic changes to be effected under the new power.

Stock Men Elect Officers

The annual meeting of the Victoria Pure Bred Stock Association was held in the office of the Department of Agriculture on Saturday afternoon, October 18th. The officers elected were as follows:—

President—Wm. Cullis.

Vice-president—Jas. Casey.

Sec.-treas.—A. A. Knight.

Directors—Messrs. G. H. Mark, A. E. Smith, Chas. Jenkins, H. W. Greenaway, Frank Graham, Thos. Carscadden, W. M. Graham, J. Cayley, J. J. Warde, R. H. Reid, John Spence, R. E. Thurston, John Forman and Robert Hewie.

The next sale will be held on Tuesday, January 27th. Those intending to contribute should hand their entries in to the secretary before December 15th. The number of entries will be limited to thirty-five. Young bulls of the best breeds throughout the province are already getting scarce, and the Association is looking forward to holding the most successful sale of its history next winter.

Have you tried Schoenhofer's rolled oats and bread crumbs and fried in boiling fat. They are delicious when served with lettuce leaves and Virginia ham.

NEW SYSTEM OF PAYING MEN

The pay car on the Grand Trunk is now a thing of the past—that is so far as employes between terminal points and agents along the road are concerned.

Hereafter the car will only stop at terminal points to pay trainmen, engineers, and employes attached to the terminal. Employes out on the road at various station will receive their pay check from the station agent. The checks will be forwarded from the treasurer in Montreal direct to the agents at points on the system and given to heads of the departments for distribution. To each check will be attached a receipt which must be signed by the employe, also by a witness, and returned to Montreal.

So the work of the five pay cars will be greatly diminished. The pay car has been a big expense to go touring all over the system along the main and branch lines, said a Grand Trunk official. "The expense has not been justified, and the company has decided to pay only at terminal points. The other employes will get their money by check. The Grand Trunk have five pay cars in operation, that are kept up at considerable cost to the company. Under the new system three of the cars will be cancelled and the employes will get their money just the same.

LINDSAY WOMEN'S INSTITUTE SESSION

The regular meeting of the Lindsay Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. C. Taylor, Oct. 17th, was opened by singing "Maple Leaf Forever." The assisting hostesses were Mrs. G. Hall, Mrs. S. Henderson, Mrs. F. Crandell, Mrs. H. McMullen, Mrs. S. McGill, Mrs. T. Winram, Mrs. W. Hingsford, each giving short and interesting papers on topics, "Laundry Work," and "How to make our Institute a success."

In regard to making our Institute a success, there were different objects spoken of, which we might take up and thereby centre our combined interests in one direction for the benefit of ourselves and others. The subject of demonstration classes was next discussed, a great number being in favor of having them during the coming winter. A committee was then appointed to secure members and also find out when lessons could be given, home nursing, sewing or cooking.

The appointing of delegates to the convention of the Women's Institute in Toronto on Nov. 20th and 21st was quickly gone through and the three two appointed, Mrs. Milne and Mrs. W. C. McGregor.

On account of the convention the date of the next Lindsay meeting was changed from Nov. 21st to Nov. 20th, and will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Webster, William-st.

The entertaining part of the programme was well received. A vocal duet by Miss B. Spratt was followed by a reading entitled "Woman's Power over Man," by Mrs. Geo. Mills. An instrumental duet by Mrs T. D. Carroll and Miss Carroll; a reading entitled "Caleb's Courtship," by Miss E. Twamley, an instrumental by Miss H. Workman. After the singing of God Save the King, a social half hour was spent, and light refreshments served by the hostess.

Circus Hand Goes to Work

The prisoner McGee alias McLaughlin, who was severely handled at the Bells-Pizzo Circus, has secured employment at Carew's mills and started to work today at noon. When the mill closes, it is understood that he will be given employment in one of the lumber camps.

Light Houses In Darkness

Boating parties down the river Thanksgiving Day had a sad time of it coming up after sun down.

The clouds and rain made the darkness very sudden and black and to cap the climax they state that four light houses just below Lindsay were not light. Several launches got into trouble with the channel and found their way to town only with the greatest difficulty.

Annual Dinner at Sturgeon Pt.

The Flo Mac had a jolly party on board Thanksgiving day bound for Sturgeon Point to visit their Thanksgiving dinner at the lake. There were twenty of them, and they were all the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John McCrea for the ride down.

Every year for the last five seasons this happy party has made their annual Thanksgiving day trip to Sturgeon Point, where they always spend the day, rain or shine, snow or sleet. One year the party went down through a snow storm. This year pouring rain and gusts of wind could not keep them home, and early in the morning the party was made up over the telephone.

At Mr. McCrea's cottage at the Point everybody brought forward their chicken, goose or turkey and a bee was made and a fine meal served up in no time.

Afterward the time was spent in pleasant pursuits till the return trip was made, arriving in town at half past five. All the party look forward toward continuing the pleasant outing every Thanksgiving for many years.

OBITUARY

ESTHER BURNETT

The death took place in Ops on Sunday of Esther Burnett, wife of John Burnett, aged 34 years.

W. W. PEEL

The death of W. W. Peel, only son of Dr. H. Peel, printer, 237 Ashbone avenue, Winnipeg, occurred at Vancouver, B. C., on Tuesday from pneumonia. For the last 4 years the late Mr. Peel was connected with the railway mail service and at the time of his death he was located in Vancouver. He entered the railway mail service in 1907 and ran between Medicine Hat and Kootenay Landing. While on this run he was injured in an accident between Medicine Hat and the junction a few years ago, to which several persons lost their lives. He never fully recovered from the injuries sustained and was transferred to Vancouver some time ago.

Mr. Peel came to Winnipeg with his parents when he was 2 years of age from Victoria county, Ont., where he was born. He received his education in Winnipeg and Holland, Man. For several years previous to entering the mail service he was editor of the Boissevain Recorder and later he bought the Holland Observer of which he was editor and manager until he sold out and entered the railway mail service. His father and mother, and one sister, Mrs. P. C. Wilkinson, of Estevan, Sask., survive him. The funeral will be held in Vancouver today under the direction of the Masonic fraternity. The deceased was 35 years of age and was a member of the Holland Lodge No. 49 A. F. and A. M.

WEDDING BELLS

WINN—GILTENAN

A very quiet autumn wedding was celebrated this morning at St. Mary's church, when Miss Katherine Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Giltenan was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Robert James Winn, son of Mr. George Winn of Downeyville.

Nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Cote.

The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her brother Jack, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Miss Mary Finney.

The bride wore her travelling suit of blue shot cloth, with hat of black velour and white ostrich mount, with corsage bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Ella Giltenan, of Toronto, attended her sister as bridesmaid, in Navy Bedford cord, with hat of Wedgewood blue, trimmed with ermine. She also wore a corsage bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The groom was ably supported by his brother Daniel. After the ceremony the party drove to the bride's home, No. 20 Queen-st., where a dainty wedding breakfast was partaken of. Later Mr. and Mrs Winn left for Toronto and Buffalo on an extended trip.

SHEA—HUTTON

A pretty wedding was solemnized at eight o'clock this morning in St. Mary's church, when Miss Annie Hutton, daughter of Mrs. Thos. Hutton, Sumcoe-st., was united in marriage to Mr. Nicholas Shea, of Ops, Vicar-General Cassey officiating.

The bride, who wore a navy blue tailor made suit with hat to match, was attended by Miss Lizzie Flynn, in a grey tailor made suit, and hat to match. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Francis Hutton. The wedding march was beautifully played by Miss Mary Finney.

The groom's gift to the bride was an amethyst pin, to the bridesmaid a gold bar pin, and to the groomsman, his brother, Michael Shea, gold cuff links.

Among the out of town guests were Miss A. Hutton and Miss Stella McCrae, Beaverton, Miss Maggie Shea, and Miss May Cleary, of Buffalo.

POSSIBILITY OF UNIVERSAL STARVATION

Pessimistic papers read at the recent meeting of the British Association have led to a considerable discussion on the possibility of the human race being annihilated by starvation. One savant in England predicted that within the century humanity will be face to face with starvation, because at the present rate of increase the people would rapidly outgrow all reserves of food supply. A calm and practical examination of the subject discloses little basis for such alarmist predictions.

Taking the world as one big farm, we find two billion acres of land in cultivation, representing one-fifth of the earth's surface. Of this amount there are apparently 750,000,000 acres on the Western Hemisphere in cultivation. This estimate, of course, does not include grazing lands, forests, etc., where large quantities of meat are produced. The world's annual crop approximates 15,000,000,000 bushels of cereals, 13,000,000,000 pounds of fibre, and 45,000,000,000 tons of meat. The world shows an average increase in cereals of 13 per cent during the past half decade, compared with the previous five years, while the world's population shows an increase of only three per cent.

Thus, despite the trend toward the city of large masses of the population, thanks to the increasing aid of machinery, the world's gain in production far exceeds the increase in population, and it is safe to estimate that the farmer can easily increase production 25 per cent if a remunerative market can be found for the products. In textile fibres the world shows an increase during the past half decade in production of 15 per cent., against a population increase of three per cent.

We have now no more reason to fear famine than ever we had; indeed, there is less reason. Famine is the result not of a fundamental shortness of supply, but of defective distribution. The rapidly increasing cost of living in Canada is due first to the artificial barriers we have erected against equitable distribution of food supply and secondly, to limitations of transportation facilities. An American Commission, which has been studying conditions in Europe, has found the problem of distribution far more effectively dealt with there than on this continent. For instance, in the German markets, the farmers receive from 25 to 40 per cent more for many of their products than the average on this continent, and the consumer pays less than in markets where American methods prevail. On this basis of distribution, advanced methods of distribution would add 500,000,000 in value to the crops of the United States, as well as reduce the cost to the consumer. The economic distribution of the world's farm products is one of the world's greatest problems, as it certainly is one of Canada's. High cost of living has forced the United States to remove some of the barriers to economic distribution. High cost of living may compel a similar course in Canada.—Montreal Telegraph.

FOWL SUPPER AT CAMBRAY

In spite of the rain and bad roads there was a big attendance Thanksgiving evening at the fowl supper in the Methodist church at Cambray. People from all the surrounding district with their visitors and friends were present, and many were there even from Lindsay. It is estimated the number in attendance was between three and four hundred. Supper was served in the basement of the church, where tables were set the whole length of the room. Fowl, pastry, cakes and so forth that go to make up such a good meal, were delicious, and there was plenty of them. The waiters were all very attentive and looked to it that everybody had their wants satisfied.

After the supper a choice program was given in the body of the church, which was filled with people.

The Cambray thanksgiving fowl supper was enjoyable throughout and one of the best that has ever been held there.

Freight Engines In a Head-on

The C.P.R. 7.55 train was over two hours late Saturday evening, owing to a bad wreck on the main line during the day.

Two engines collided head-on near Lessard Junction, resulting in two members of the engine crews being injured and several freight cars being badly damaged. The wreckage blocked the Canadian Pacific Railway line to the east for some time.

The accident occurred about 5.30 o'clock. When the engine crew, William William, a fireman, was thrown through an engine window, sustaining internal injuries and had lacerations about the legs. Engineer Manse was cut about the head. One of the engines was thrown from the rails and toppled on to its side. The cars behind buckled and were spread over the tracks. Both trains were hauling freight.

BAPTISTS CONVENE AT PETERBORO

Peterboro, Oct. 17—At the morning session of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, with Rev. John MacNeill, Vice-President, in the chair, after devotions led by Rev. O. C. Elliot of St. Thomas, Rev. J. H. Farmer, B. A., L.L.D., professor of New Testament exegesis in McMaster University, opened the discussion on the New Testament in Protestant doctrine of salvation. Taking up Romans iii, 21-26, regarded as the keystone of Protestant doctrine, the speaker said that the essence of St. Paul's teaching was that God through Christ's death had conditioned himself to righteously forgive man on the ground of faith. The resources of the risen Christ help the child of God to complete the new life by the help of the Holy Spirit. The whole Pauline thought was that sin was imputed to Christ through the shedding of His blood. The Protestant doctrine emphasized justification by faith, not by works. The Gospels all emphasize the death of Christ rather than the example of Jesus. The baptism of Jesus made it clear that Christ in that act consecrated that he had taken the sins of men voluntarily. The ordinance of baptism and the Lord's supper refer to His death. The gospels agreed with Paul in making the death of Christ propitiatory and expiatory; the song of the redeemed and the sum of religion. The address was eclectic and tender.

WESTERN MISSIONS PROSPERING

Dr. W. D. Tuby, B. A., read the fifth annual report of the Western Mission Board, the collecting agency of the Baptist Convention of Western Canada. In Manitoba there are 13,000 Baptists in Saskatchewan, 18,000 in Alberta, 19,000 and in British Columbia, 17,000. Neo-Baptist church es were successfully maintained among Germans, Scandinavians, Russians, Hungarians and Hungarians. Colleges are located at Brandon, Calgary, and Summerland, B. C. The churches of Western Canada gave liberally this year, $12,500 to India and Bolivia, $1,000 to Grand Ligne and $18,400 to non-Baptist work at home, a total of $31,900 for foreign missions at home and abroad. The Treasurer's report showed receipts of $23,323.33, of which $19,007.36 was from churches and the balance from Sunday schools. Disbursements were $23,312.97, leaving a balance of $23.36.

Injured Youth Is Recovering

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Burke, Lindsay-st., will be pleased to learn that their little son Earl, who was accidentally shot on Sunday morning, is progressing nicely, and is able to be around.

The bullet entered his left cheek, and although it has not been located, no serious results are anticipated.

SPEND $300,000 TO KEEP BAR

(The Globe.)

Activity in the Dominion Alliance office last at present is at its height, and the dates represent the prevailed be-hive. The fight for local option this year presents some interesting features, and there are some keen contests in sight. The Alliance office, the centre of the Province's campaign, has a greatly augmented staff dealing with the printed matter going out, and the big mail bags bulged with their contents.

Rev. Ben H. Spence, the Secretary of the Alliance, speaking with regard to the cost of the elections, stated that the liquor interests are spending their money freely, and the elections would cost them between three and four hundred thousand dollars. "We do not spend one dollar where they spend four," said the Secretary.

One of the interesting fights will be that of Adjala township, which is looked upon as a sort of strategic point. Upon the map in the Alliance office the licensed parts are shown in black and the non-licensed in white. Adjala township looks like a splash of ink upon a white ball, and there is only one license in the township at that.

Speaking of convictions the Secretary stated that there had been more convictions for "blind pigs" in Acton since local option had been repealed than in the three years previous.

There are fifty-three contests to fight, and there may be more before election time.

Cigar Traveller Died Suddenly

Mr. Matt Gould, a well known cigar traveller of London and well known in Lindsay, died suddenly of a heart failure Sunday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Louis McCarthy, 462 Hatfield street, London. He had just returned from a trip to Port Arthur, and, although complaining of a slight indisposition, his death was altogether unexpected. He is survived by two sisters and one brother.

LIFE'S SUNSHINE

Gladdens Those Who Regain New Health and Strength

When the glow of health comes back to sallow cheeks; when languid weakness gives place to vigor; when you notice some pale, exhausted, anaemic individual restored to active health—inquire. More than likely you will find the cure to have been yet another of the thousands already wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Headaches, nervousness, St. Vitus dance and twitching of the limbs, indigestion and rheumatism, eczema, and disturbing eruptions, are the ailments of growing girls and women all disappear when the veins are filled with the new, rich, red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. Here is one instance among thousands: Mr. F. Ashford, Hallowbury, Ont., says: "For years I was employed in lengthy term of service in India, the last three years being spent in the beautiful but treacherous Peshawar Valley. Ague and dengue fever were rife, and although I was fortunate enough to escape a severe attack of either, on my return home it soon became apparent that the enervating climate tended to undermine and impair vigour on my constitution. In short the reaction had set in, and incurable nature was exacting a severe toll from years of strenuous labor. My first warning of the impending breakdown were severe pains in the back of my head, and eyes insomnia, irritability, general anaemic condition and an indefinable nervousness. Late hour had to rest, work became impossible, and companionship intolerable. It really seemed that I was passing to that stage where nervousness ends and insanity begins, when by chance I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I confess I was skeptical of them doing what doctors had failed to do, but concluded that the cost was small, and perhaps the chance was in their favor, and so decided to try them. To my joy there was soon an improvement, and a continuance of the treatment effected a complete cure. I was now as fit and as healthy as any man and am overgratefull that the lucky perusal of an advertisement brought to my notice the wonderful curative properties of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FIELD DAY OF LOCAL COLLEGIATE

The Athletic Association of the Collegiate Institute held its annual field day Friday afternoon at the Agricultural grounds. Every student was present to see the fun, as well as the teaching staff, and a number of citizens.

The events were run off very methodically and in fairly fast order, so that the program was completed before six o'clock. The Association was unfortunate in having threatening skies overhead, but happily no rain came to mar the sports until they were practically finished. More parents and Lindsay citizens generally should make it a point to attend these annual games not only to encourage the students by their interest in them, but on account of the good sport furnished and highly interesting events that are run off every year. The committee in charge of the events are to be congratulated on their success. Mr. A. G. Hooper, Mr. E. W. Jennings, Mr. G. A. Lucas, and Mr. L. L.C.I. Girls Defeat Port Perry

Undaunted by defeat at the hands of the Port Perry High School Girls' Basketball team a couple of weeks ago at Port Perry, the girls of the L. C. I. won the return game after an exciting struggle by 13—12, in the local collegiate gymnasium.

It was no easy victory, for the young ladies from the lakeside town have combined play down to such perfection that once the ball was obtained a score was almost certain. This very advantage won the first game two weeks past, but Captain Bessie Hopkins had skilfully trained her team to meet combination work and the result was a victory.

Though the score stood at 6—9 in favor of the L. C. I. and finally 13—12, which created intense excitement and the keenest good spirited rivalry, there were few fouls or infractions of rules.

Quite a few young ladies witnessed the game, a small entrance fee being charged to cover expenses.

Afterwards the teams went to the fair grounds to see the field day programme of sport, the visitors being the guests of the L. C. I. girls until the morning's 8.15 train.

A few of those who made exceptional plays for Port Perry were Kathleen McCaw, Beatrice Vickery, Veronica Cassidy, and for L. C. I. Mary Anderson, Isabel Ryley, Margaret Murtha.

The line-up was:—

Port Perry 12.

Kathleen McCaw, Clemie McTaggart—Forwards.

Beatrice Vickery, Eva Henry—Centres.

Veronica Cassidy, Pearl Ewen—Defence.

Gertrude Munroe, Lexi Munroe—Linesmen.

Spare—Gertrude Henry.

Mary Watson—Umpire.

L. C. I. 13.

Mary Anderson, Jean McCulloch—Forwards.

Isabel Ryley, Doris Clark, Bessie Sutcliffe—Centres.

Margaret Murtha, Bessie Hopkins—Defence.

Edith Cinnamon, Ruby Wallace—Linesmen.

Vivian Nugent—Umpire.

Miss Gibson—Referee.

They Don't Drip Oil

The neatest woman that ever lived would consider a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator an ornament in her kitchen. That's because Tubulars are neat—have no oil cups, oil holes or oil tubes to drip. You don't need an oil can for Tubulars.

Tubulars Are Neat

To oil the Dairy Tubular simply lift the gear case lid once a week and pour a spoonful of oil right down among the gears. The oil stays there. The lubrication is perfect and never forgotten. There is no dripping on the floor. Both men and women appreciate that—and the many other exclusive fine points about Tubulars—fine points other separators don't have. Tubulars double dairy profits and cut the work in half. Come in and see the Tubular—examine it inside and out—next time your in town. Welcome to look at every piece—and the pieces are few because the Tubular is mighty simple.

Old Separators taken in exchange. We sell the Sharples Mechanical Milker.

WEDDING BELLS

CLEARY—PRIMEAU

Review: A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterboro, yesterday morning at six o'clock, when Rev. Father Phelan united in the holy bonds of matrimony, Mr. Leo. J. Cleary, of Toronto and Miss Gertrude B. Primeau, daughter of Mr. Joseph Primeau, of East City. The bride was assisted by her sister, Ethel, while the groom's brother, J. F. Cleary, acted as groomsman.

The happy couple left via C.P.R. for a short wedding trip, after which they will reside in Toronto.

WRIGHT—THURSTON

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at four o'clock today by Rev. Dr. Shores in the Cambridge-st. Methodist church when Miss Jean Thurston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thurston, 147 William street north, was married in marriage to Mr. Charles E. Wright, of Fort William, son of Mrs. Robt. Wright, of Bobcaygeon.

Only the immediate relatives were present. The couple were unattended. The bride was given away by her father. She wore a suit of blue satine with Bulgarian trimming and a black velvet hat with white osprey. The waist was of cream chateau lace. A beautiful corsage bouquet of lily of the valle completed the effect.

The groom's gift to the bride was a set of black fox furs.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding repast was served at the family residence, William-st. north. Mr and Mrs. Wright left on the 6.15 train for Port William, where they will reside.

OPPORTUNITIES IN THE WEST

Since the beginning of time, adventurous persons have headed for the West, and the same glamour which was cast over early pioneers is still unstirred the modern girl, who makes up her mind to break away from old associates and surroundings and to cut the sewer, tuller life of the western cities.

There is room out there for women of every trade and profession not indulged in by women in other parts of the world. There is room, plenty, and to those who grasp it, success and reward, and there must be no looking back, no "cold feet," and no false pride.

The West is a land crying out for people, but it cries only for the best. It makes room for failures, but they must be failures who have turned their backs on failure, and who dream only of success, their miracles cast to the task of "making good" in a country willing to help them toward the realization of their dreams. For the others, the topical, critical persons, who "never had to work at all at home, don't know how," it has no use, breaking them utterly, till whimpering, they run home to their mothers, or else, get their eyes in time to arrive at an understanding of their folly and overcome it, embracing the country of their adoption, and making the most their hope, and its width and freedom part of their lives. To the others, the "idlers, careless, careless goods," it is cruel, for its winters and conditions are severe, and a man must be well physically, mentally and bodybly to cope on its soil. It is necessary to have the eyes of a seer, and to behold, not rolling prairie and thick, unimpressionable earth, but the site of future cities, and the homes of millions of happy men and women.

That is the spirit in which to take the country, and the spirit in which to take oneself is much the same. At home you may have been noted for failings, don't mention them out there and you start fresh, for there you and your feelings are unknown. Back in the home town you may have won certain praises for this or that, remember again that you start fresh, with a new reputation to be making. In business life it is the same. You will not be asked who you are, where you come from, or who sent you. You will simply be told to state what you can do, and also to prove it. Your home may not be over two sentences of decent English but he will know his own business and what part he expects you to take in it. There, however, you will not be kept to one department. If you are the right kind, you will master all the business of the work and will become more and more valuable to your employer. There is little one asking for a scale of salaries, for there more than anywhere a girl gets just what she is worth. But one thing might be said. She is paid a living wage to start with, and if she shows that she will never make good in that special line she is fired, which is the kindest thing for the boss, and also for the girl, since it does not keep her at a small wage always, afraid to give up the job, yet unhappy in being inefficient. When she is fired she sets about finding some other line of business and ten to one succeeds in the change. Nor need she feel strange in a new line for the West is full of men and women who are doing things they never did before or are doing under totally new conditions.

A titled lady may be assisting in a city, a prominent society belle in a cafe kitchen, and a newspaper girl serving tea cream to lougers and loafers who never knew their "betters" and understand Greek roots as well as waterfront slang. No one thinks twice about it, and no one for having rough it, sensible people knowing that in such ways girls receive worldly knowledge and a broader sympathy and understanding of their fellows than could be obtained in any other way. Also they are taught to believe in themselves, and all the or the West may be found girls who had they stayed in the East would have drifted along and on to dollars a week in a store or an office, never daring to try their wings in some higher sphere.

Western people are often criticized for this belief in their own powers and for saying when they are asked what they are doing, "Making good," what the man and who who asked it he could play the violin — "I don't know, I never tried," only the Westerner invariably adds, "I guess I had better begin trying right now"

LIVING COSTS NO HIGHER

A great deal is said in the East here about the high living in this country, and these quarters of such tomes, as "manual, frugal, and cheaper there than here, and in many cases greater comfort is to be obtained for an equal sum. Meals are much the same also, with the exception that really nice meals may be had there in white cafes with the white help, at the rates charged here by Greeks and Chinamen. For a 50 or 75 cent meal the best service can be obtained, with flowers, outside, and decent china and linen thrown in.

Wearing apparel may be a little more expensive, and perhaps the truth would be found in the statements that in the west, only the best class of goods are wanted.

To buy a first class article in Montreal or Toronto and compare with a similar article bought in Calgary or Vancouver, very likely no difference would be found in the prices. Amusements and sports cost the same, and so, taking it all around, the girl in the west is infinitely better off than the girl in the east, in finance, in opportunity, in climate, and in her outlook on life. Difficult as it is to draw any hard and fast rules for living and spending, it is now averaged in the West that a girl can live comfortably on five or eight per week, and the average salaries paid are: School teachers, per year, $750 to $1,100; stenographers, per week, 12c to $15; clerks, per week, $15 to $40; stenographers, per week $15 to $25; salesmen per week, $7 to $15; waitresses, per week, $7 to $16, (with two or more meals), domestics, per week, $4 to $8; housekeepers, per month $30 to $50; dressmakers, per day, $2 to $3; reporters, per week, $18 to $30; clerks, per week, $10 to $18; cashiers per week, $12 to $20.

This of course says nothing of the many other professions open to women, such as real estate salesmanship, commercial travellers, market gardners, chicken farmers, hotel managers, rooming house owner, girls raising in motties, linseed, and so on. These practically command their own salaries, and it is a fact that in the West if a woman does her work as well as a man could do it, she is paid an equal wage.

While it is true also that women should not go west with the idea that sweethearts grow on every bush, and that their lonesome may also turn into their future husbands, it is also true that men do marry sooner in the West because their financial condition warrant it, and because being no far from their own women folks, their thoughts turn more readily to building homes of their own.

Love may be blind, but a smart man will not smile at another fellow's girl when the fellow is with her.

ATTACKED SALE OF NOXIOUS DRUGS

Toronto, Oct. 21—At the opening session of the seventh annual convention of the Canadian Historical Association, held last night at the new chiste hall of the Toronto General Hospital, Dr. W. A. Young made a vigorous attack upon the sale of noxious drugs by druggists. The speaker was seconding the vote of thanks proposed by J. Ross Robertson to the president of his address.

"The sale of these drugs is increasing rapidly," said Dr. Young. "Young girls can go into drug stores and purchase them, and the result is not infrequently death. The criminal code should be amended to deal with the question.

At present the druggist sells without the counter without any restriction. There should be an appeal to Ottawa to see that these drugs could not be sold without the drugs being labeled. Unless the druggist knows that there is no abortion to be procured, such sale should be rendered illegal. A record should be kept of all the sales of these drugs.

That the meeting was in hearty accord with the doctor's remarks was evidenced by the applause which followed his statements. J. Ross Robertson said that the Toronto newspapers in many cases had refused patent medicine advertisements.

CATTLE DROVERS BEING SUED

A peculiar case has come to light among the cattle drovers of the north part of the county through the financial difficulties of an old established commission firm of West Toronto Junction. It seems three well known drovers of Haliburton, and Kimmount bought a large number of cattle for the Toronto firm before the trouble arose and had them shipped to Toronto. They were given checks for the money. At a branch bank near the stock yards they exchanged the firm's checks for the special drovers' checks issued by the bank and which are as good as the money. These latter were cashed for currency at banks in Victoria County. In the meantime the commission house got into deep water financially, and when the Toronto bank presented the firm's check at the firm's own bank there were no funds to pay it, and they were returned.

The drovers had been given the regular food drovers certificate by it and had received their money therefrom.

The bank that issued the drover's certificate is suing them for the return of the money as that bank will be the loser for guaranteeing the amount between banking certain, and daily balance of the brokers, who heretofore have had good financial standing. One Kimmount man is being sued for the return of over $1600, and two other drovers of Kimmount and Haliburton for $1100.

The Baggage of the Duke

The advance guard of Duke of Connaught arrives by the "Virginian" this week in the shape of two barrels and seventy-five pieces of baggage, all of which according to accident tradition, is passed without a smirch by the customs officers as "settlers' effects" without as much as a lock being disturbed on a rope or a seal. Of these pieces, one hundred, consisting of the heavier pieces, containing household equipment and utensils, will travel by freight, but only hundred and twenty-five of the lighter cases will be transferred from the wharf at Montreal by motor truck to Rideau Street Station, and will be shipped in a specially guarded C. P. R. baggage car on a passenger train to Ottawa. One piece of baggage will, however, have the honor of travelling all by itself. This is the Duke's automobile, a magnificent equipage, which will be driven up a gangway into the back end of a Dominion Express wagon—the type that is usually reserved for racehorses and prize animals—so carefully constructed that there is the very minimum of vibration to Vice-Pt.

The first arrival of the Duke of Connaught in Canada caused considerable perturbation in the breasts of the baggage men. They were instructed to take particular care of the two cases containing the Duke's medals and the Duchess' jewels, both beautiful in value and over two million dollars. A soldier was detailed with a loaded gun to sit on the two cases, and deep was the breath of relief when the cases were safely delivered at Rideau Hall.

On this occasion, however, there is no such concern, for the jewels and medals have already been delivered at Ottawa, and are securely shut in the strong room of one of the safes pending the arrival of the Royal Party.

PRESENTATION TO OPS RESIDENTS

Mr. and Mrs. James Greenan, of South Ops, who are about to take up residence on Glenelg st., Lindsay, were tendered a surprise party on Friday and address last evening from their neighbors in that portion of the township.

About 35 guests had assembled at their residence to participate in a farewell supper tendered by Mr. and Mrs. Greenan, and the occasion was taken advantage of by those assembled to give expression to the esteem in which they were held and also to express regret at their removal.

During the evening the following address and silver tea service was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Greenan by Mr. J. J. Chaney:—

Lindsay, Oct 16th, 1913.

Mr. and Mrs. James Greenan.

Dear Friends,—We, a few of your friends and neighbors have thus assembled to spend a social evening with you and while we are much pleased to, under such a pleasing manner, nevertheless our minds are much overshadowed with sorrow at the remembrance that this is the last opportunity we will have to enjoy your association, while residing in the township and we desire to express in a slight degree regret that the eve of your departure is so close at hand, and we take this occasion to the high esteem in which you are held by the residents of this community.

Your residence among us for so many years has endeared you to us all. You have proven a good neighbor and your kindness and generosity and other christian attributes which you possess to such an eminent degree have made your sojourn among us a happy and blessed one, in your daily lives, in your intercourse with those around you, there has been typified the noblest traits—a worthy record for others to emulate. As time rolls on, and brings its change, and as the best of friends must part, we trust that this change will be of especial benefit to yourselves and that the autumn of your lives will be a joyous and happy one.

It is not, we assure you, by any mere formality of vain words of flattery we this address you, it is, we know well aware, the sincere expression of every individual not only in this locality, but in the country around about where ever you are known.

You must have, we are sure, some gratification upon leaving to know that you can reflect with pleasure upon the many enjoyable associations you formed while residing among us. While we regret exceedingly your departure from this locality, there is great consolation for us in the good wishes we carry with us the nature of a farewell. We will meet often and will always welcome the glad handshake and the cheery smile with which you greeted us in the past.

You will please accept these articles as but a slight token of our esteem for you and may the kind Providence bless you and may the shadow of happiness ever hover in your home and the sunshine of joy ever light up your path.

The presentation was suitably acknowledged, after which the evening was most enjoyably spent in music, games and dancing.

POSTMASTER OF BOW CITY

The following from the Bow City, Alberta Star, will be of local interest:—

A pioneer of pioneers is William Taylor Palmer Eyers, the genial postmaster of Bow City and first settler in this district. He has spent almost his entire life on the frontier and is as yet young in spirit and appearance. The father of eleven children, he appears more like an elder brother. Life in Dakota in the early days, as a two years' experience in the Klondike when the rush of '98 made history, and finally settling down amid the loneliness of an infant prairie town of years ago, makes very briefly the life story of Mr. Eyers.

The subject of this sketch was born near Peterboro, Ontario, and from there moved to Mariposa township in old Victoria county, near Lindsay, Ontario. In those days every ambitious young Canadian made a hike for the United States, and young Eyers was right in the swim, and went to Dakota, near Fargo, where for eleven years he raised wheat. Then came the Klondike swung into the world's game, and, sending his family east, Mr. Eyers made the trip of '98. For a year he prospected around Dawson City, without success, and then he got employed and his luck came in the next year. Twelve years ago he decided to try Alberta, and he votes Jimmy Prince the king pin of "on all Bow City's postmaster he believes the town in which he dwells is the best little city in the best province in the best best west, which means in the world.

"Mr. Eyers was married twice, his first wedding in 1897, their first born later he married Miss Elizabeth Moore. His children are Charles C. Eyers, Calgary, a civil engineer, with the C.P.R., Edgar, a telegraph operator in Calgary, Burke, in Peterboro, Ont., Lorne, assistant Sundial, Mrs. C. R. Richardson, in Calgary, and Carrie, in Calgary. The children by his second wife are Roger S. Jean, John and the baby, Eyers ranched for a while around Eyemore, and now owns a tract of land one half a mile from the townsite.

STEELE SENT TO CENTRAL PRISON

He was charged with being drunk and causing a disturbance on Tuesday night. He was then he got drunk again and this morning had a charge of vagrancy added to his misdemeanors. He begged to be given another chance, but the Magistrate could not see it, and he was handed the same Mr. Steele a six months' sentence in Central Prison.

CATTLE KILLED AT FRANKLIN

Mr. Wm. Twiggy, of Franklin, lost two cattle by getting into a fall and eating too much clover, and Mr. Arthur Black had five head of young cattle killed on Friday evening by the C. P. R. passenger train, they were two three years old. They got out of the pasture field on to the road and went on the track off the concession line in some way. Mr. Black has the sympathy of his neighbors in his misfortune. Mr. Black has had for the past two weeks from a severe hurt, and is under the care of a doctor every day.

LINDSAY MAN SEVERELY BURNED

(From Saturday's Post)

Edward McInnis, of Lindsay, night engineer for Joseph Gibson, paving contractor, whose portable asphalt plant is at present located in Peterboro, was severely burned Thursday evening as the result of falling into a tank of heated paving material. He was immediately rescued by the timekeeper, and after restorations had been applied, was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital in the Dan Spencer ambulance.

The accident occurred about eight o'clock Thursday evening. McInnis was walking along the top of the machine for the purpose of adjusting the air distributor, when his foot slipped and he was precipitated in the tank. Enquiries at the hospital this afternoon elicited the information that the injured man was resting easily. He was severely burned about the head and feet.

OFFICER WELLER WAS ASSAULTED

Peterboro Examiner: A fistic encounter between Special Officer Weller of the C.P.R., and William Wright, which was staged in the C.P.R. station last evening, culminated in a police court case this morning. Wright, who hails from Queensboro, Ontario, will have to answer to a charge of disturbing the peace on the county court for the next thirty days. He was charged with assaulting Constable Weller when the latter declined to allow Wright the privilege of sleeping in the station. The prisoner, it was alleged, was drunk at the time, and administered a severe beating to the officer. The latter succeeded in arresting his man single handed.

"The officers of the law must be protected. We won't let every blackguard who chooses assault Magistrate Doughie in passing sentence.

TRENTON MAN IN TROUBLE

Belleville, Oct. 15—A sensation was sprung in the town of Trenton last evening when a young lad Hendrickson, aged eighteen years, on a charge of attack. A Provincial detective has been working on the case and the arrest followed as a result of his investigations.

The prisoner was arraigned before Magistrate O'Rourke this afternoon in Trenton, when the case was given a preliminary hearing. Mr. A. A. Ashley appeared for young Henderson. This information had been signed by A. W. Hawley, a shareholder of the Trenton Canning Factory, and it was alleged to have been made by Henderson that he was negligent in throwing matches and cigarettes around four places where fires had subsequently occurred, was produced, but was not admitted in evidence on Mr. Abbott's contention that it had been obtained under intimidation.

The accused is a popular young resident of the town, and is quiet and inoffensive, and much sympathy was expressed for his relatives and himself.

A number of serious fires destroyed many thousand dollars worth of property have within the last few months visited Trenton, and every effort has been made to learn their cause.

MILBROOK MAN TOTALLY BLIND

Millbrook Reporter.—Our readers will regret to hear that Mr. Isaac Larmer who lost one eye by a fall in the result of an accident while visiting Toronto, to have the other eye removed last week so painful had it become. This is the greatest affliction to befall one, and general sympathy will be extended to Mr. Larmer in his hours of darkness. It is hoped that better health may be assured him and many happy years in spite of his affliction.

OUR POPULATION IS NOW 7,400

From information received at the Town Clerk's office it has been learned that Lindsay's population is now 7,400, an increase of 200 over last year. This is a very healthy increase, taking everything into consideration, and the prospects are that during the coming year a still greater increase will be recorded.

There will be a strenuous fight at Sault Ste Marie over the local option question, and already the petition which requires twenty-five per cent of the voters as signatures, has passed that percentage. Maddened Bovine Treed Seven Men

On Tuesday morning when Mr. G. Pogue and his son, George, of Bettit's Settlement, were driving cattle to Fenelon, one of the animals went mad, and although he was hard hunted, they were unable to capture him. They had to leave it in the woods, and the hot-hearted men of Bettit's Settlement turned out on Wednesday for the big hunt. All told, the steer put seven of them up trees after lassoing him twice times Mr. Pogue was successful in capturing the animal. This is not the first time this same steer has become enraged. Last fall Mr. Walter Johnson had a narrow escape, and had it not been for his ability in gymnastics he would have been killed. We hope nothing serious will happen as the animal is still in the settlement. It would be a happy deliverance if he were canned.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

Attempted Suicide At Peterboro

Yesterday afternoon a man, formerly employed by a Water street plumber, tried to solve death's mystery. The reason, or reasons, are not to be gathered by the context, the foolishly impelled attempted suicide's name is omitted. He has been drinking heavily for some weeks, and it is thought, burnt to see purple elephants clad in green pantaloons. Anyway, he wandered out to the Otonabee River, and with one deep gazing glance at the Otonabee hills, jumped in. An eye witness claims that he found the water too cold and frogged it to the gates. Here a number of men who saw his leap for death hauled him out with the business end of a pike pole. The police were telephoned and took the unfortunate to the station. Here he was supplied with dry cloths and other things. He will appear in the police court this morning.

Deer Hunter's

Wednesday saw the first of the deer hunters from outside, a considerable number of them from Toronto going to Redstone Lake, with cabins, dogs, etc. It seems rather early for this sort of thing, and an example might well be made of some who are so anxious to get in ahead of the crowd.—Minden Echo.

STEAMBOATS ON LAKE SCUGOG

The following appears in this week's Port Perry Star:—

The first steamboat to do business on Lake Scugog was the "Woodman," built by Hugh Chisholm at Port Perry for Rowe & Cotton, of Whitby, in 1850. Its first trip was made to Lindsay in 1851, Mr. Chisholm being Captain. This boat was seriously damaged by fire at the dock, and was purchased by George Crandell who repaired it.

The "Ogemah" came next; built at Fenelon Falls by a man named Wallace, it was run through to Port Perry.

The "Commodore" came to Port Perry occasionally. It was built in Lindsay by George Crandell, and had a route including Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, and Fenelon Falls. Its chief business in Port Perry was in the excursion line.

The "Anglo-Saxon" was built by Rogers in Lindsay, and was sold to Sutton. The engine of this boat was built by a man named Gibson in the Port Perry Foundry, which was at that time owned by Paxton & Digelow.

The "Stranger" was built by George Crandell and was operated on Lake Scugog and Lake Carnegie by Milling Co, when it was destroyed by fire while down at Cassarea.

Capt. Bowerman built the "Cora" which is still in commission.

There were two other boats which did more or less business on Lake Scugog—"Ranger", and the "Champion."

PORT HOPE POLICE FOUND "BLIND PIG"

Port Hope, Oct. 15—Chief of Police Cummerson and Constable Royce carded a house near the foot of John street and found a "blind pig" in full operation. The proprietor is a Russian, and in the police court this morning told the magistrate through an interpreter that his wife sold the beer and that a quantity of it had been given away and used to celebrate a Russian holiday.

The magistrate said it made no difference who sold the liquor as long as it was sold on the premises, and fined the Russian, whose name is Wasyl Hryhyorch, $100 and costs, of three months in jail. The fine was paid.

HUGHES DECISION

(Scottish American.)

This is the story of Hughie McGeraghty of Belfast as it was narrated in the Scottish Liberal Club, Edinburgh, recently. McGeraghty's mother was asked why her son had emigrated. Her explanation was as follows:—

"Poor Hughie worked on the Islan' and when he was go-an till his work he fell down and rolled on t' them Papishes, an' Hughie, that wiz always a good religious boy, knocked him down and then he kicked him. After that he pulleeaway along and people Hughie was tuck up, an' wud ye leave it—he got a month. So when he cum out, 'Mother,' says he to me, 'am go an away,' says he, 'a-cut t' this place altogether,' says he. 'Am blowed,' says he, 'if A cud stop any longer in a country where a boy tilt suffer for my religion.'"

RURAL POSTMASTERS GET MORE MONEY

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—The Postmaster-General, Hon. L. P. Pelletier, with the approval of the Government, has decided to increase the minimum salaries of rural postmasters from $35 to $50 per year. The necessary legislative action to give effect to the decision will be taken at the coming session of Parliament.

The last increase to rural postmasters was granted in 1909, when the salary was increased from $25 to $35. Since then there has been a constant agitation for a further increase to $50, as was advocated by Mr. Borden when in Opposition. The increase will affect several thousand rural postmasters in all parts of Canada. The increase in salary for the present year will be much more than sufficient to meet the additional charges on revenue.

HEAVILY FINED IN COUNTY COURT

At this morning's session of the County Police Court Abe Warren, of Lorneville, came up for sentence on three charges to which he pleaded guilty Thursday—supplying liquor to a minor, being drunk in a local option territory and committing an indecent offence on a Lornesville youth. For the first offence he was fined $10.00 and costs or a month in jail; the second offence $20.00 and costs or two months in jail and for the third $25.00 and costs or three months in jail.

The prisoner was defended by Mr. I. E. Weldon who pleaded for a lenient sentence on the ground that the accused was intoxicated and that he had been doing much better than he had in the past.

County Police Magistrate Moore said drunkenness was no excuse. It was in his opinion only an aggravation.

In connection with the third charge Col. F. Holmes Hopkins, counsel for the plaintiff, referred to the heinous offence in scathing terms. It was a degrading, disgusting offence, and if some one nearly the age of the prisoner had given him a severe thrashing for the offence, the Court he believed would have commended their action. The morals of the community must be protected, said Mr. Hopkins, and he felt sure Lindsay and district were anxious to see what action the court would take in this matter. Such a disturbing crime deserved the severest punishment.

Mr. I. E. Weldon said that the victim of the indecent assault committed Mr. Warren while he was intoxicated and he had been warned that if he did not cease he would do something he would be sorry for. He believed that the case were rival temperance hotelkeepers, he said, and as was often the case, in connection with such certain rivalry existed. Mr. Warren was intoxicated at the time, and this should be taken into consideration by the court.

The little boy was called by Magistrate Moore, and he claimed he never had "shot" to Mr. Warren, but caught hold of him twice, striking him once and urinating on him the second time.

The Magistrate said the offence was a disgusting, dastardly one, and one that could not be tolerated in any civilized community. It was the first offence of the kind that had ever come before him and he hoped it would be the last. The community must be protected against such outrages, and he was determined to do his utmost to stamp them out.

Col. Hopkins said he would like to have the prisoner bound over to keep the peace as he made no threat.

Magistrate Moore said he would first have to lay an information.

The fines and costs in the three cases amounted to $48.50.

The late Rev. John Smith, was the first of these, and was followed by Rev. W. A. McKenzie, now of Westport, Ont., and Rev. C. S. Lord, now of Fenelon Falls. Macaulay of Westport, the second pastor, who is also to give a missionary address on Sunday evening. Verneuville is connected with Grafton appointment.

LOCAL HORSE GOT FIRST MONEY

Mr. W. A. Fanning's horse "Picket Boy," won first money in the free-for-all at Norwood fair Wednesday. The Express says:—

"The free-for-all was a fine race between W. A. Fanning's "Picket Boy," and Dr. Johnston's "Susie Hal." The "Picket Boy" won the first two heats after a hard fight, but "Picket Boy" came on and won the next three, taking the big end of the purse."

OBITUARY

MR. WM. PIGGOTT.

Peterboro Examiner—The death occurred yesterday (Wednesday) morning in Belleville, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Dr. Coughlin, of Mr. William Piggott, formerly of this City. WEDDING BELLS

McKEE—BOWEN

Surprised

A Scotchman landed in Canada not long ago. The very first morning he walked about he met a coal-shed owner. It happened that the wiper was born on the Highland district of Scotland and had spent the greater part of his life there. Naturally he had a burr on his tongue.

"Hey, canaan," said the Highlander, "can ye not tell me where I'll find the kirk?"

The dealer took him by the arm and led him to the corner "Go right up to you wee house and turn to the left, and gang up the hill," said he.

The fresh importation from Scotland looked up at him in horror. "And are ye from Scotland, man?" he asked.

"Right ye are," said the dealer. "And how long have ye been here?" "About twa year," said the Highlander.

"Well mayve us and keep us," said the new arrival. "Whaur can I get the boat for Edinboro ?"—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Consumption Takes Hundreds of People

Every day and the surprising truth is that most cases are preventable with timely, intelligent treatment.

These appalling facts should warn us that after sickness, colds, overwork or any other drains upon strength, Scott's Emulsion should be promptly and regularly used because tubercular germs thrive only in a weakened system.

The tested and proven value of Scott's Emulsion is recognized by the greatest specialists in Europe and America. It nourishes quickly to build healthy tissue, aids in the development of active, life-sustaining blood corpuscles; strengthens the lungs and builds physical force without reaction.

Scott's Emulsion is used in tuberculosis camps because of its rare body-building, blood-making properties and because it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.

Be sure insist on Scott's.

CONCRETE SPIRIT OF G.T. PACIFIC

Without its Use Work Would be Delayed

(Montreal Telegraph.)

A picturesque and intensely interesting account of some of the difficulties encountered in the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway was given last night at the meeting of the Canadian Railway Club by Mr. R. P. Umsche, bridge engineer of this line.

Mr. Umsche said earlier misconceptions views accompanied the lecture, and the pictures told plainly and unmistakably a tale of hardship and perilous toil, of ever growing skill and miracle-working ingenuity. One saw the Grand Trunk Pacific engines and mail over frozen lakes and through snowy forests to the engineers' residences deep in the primeval woods. This was the most primitive form of land transport; while at the other extreme immense hills—although mountains is more correct—had to be cut by construction trains running on temporary trestles. For the winter there were well-manned alligator boats, sixty-foot scows with both paddle wheels and hoisting engine to pull the pontoons through over portages ;" means of a cable, wheels being put under her for the purpose. On the other hand, there is now being built in England an immense car ferry capable of carrying an entire train of freight and passenger cars, which will arrive in Montreal for the Quebec bridge until the completion of that structure.

Even the better immense undertaking the speaker did not touch, but without counting that he did mention a small matter of two hundred bridges and culverts in the 1300 miles between Moncton and Winnipeg, which, if put end to end would measure eleven miles, which weigh in all 61,000 tons, and which will have cost six millions of sollars.

At the outset of the lecture a 20-ft. concrete arch was shown. Coherent said Mr. Umsche, might be called the spirit of the Transcontinental. Without concrete, depending solely upon the effective of stone masons, it was very doubtful if the line could have been completed in a quarter of a century, while with the exception of the work made by the St. Lawrence, the rails are now connected from Moncton to Winnipeg.

"To economize in timber would rob us of the spice of life," said Mr. Umsche, as a slide appeared showing a structure of that had sunk and moved badly sideway, because the soft deeply underlying yellow clay had gone through the weight, and squeezed out. Others concrete structures which had sunk on drumlins at one corner.

The difficulties in the way of a car ferry service at Quebec crowd upon it more unfavourable. There is a tide of 18 feet, while the ice floes which wage is tremendous in the river. Due to the tide, the face of a landing would be alternately under water and exposed to the tide, causing an accumulating mass of ice to gather.

The solution of this problem has been intimated to Mr. P. M. Cowie, chief engineer of the Mechanical Harbor Board. A ferry boat was designed with a "tidal deck," which twenty immense parts can raise or lower at the rate of a foot a minute, so that even in the time required for a trip across the river it could easily be adjusted as required. On this deck run the railway tracks. And to connect these with the pier presented several difficulties, which were met by the design of a so-called flexible apron, or, to the layman, gangway, in case a slight difference of load makes the cars of the three slightly higher than the other, there is sufficient play in the huge "apron" made up of three separate sections, girders on which the rails are laid, to make sure the shoreward end will be perfectly level upon the wharf. The Bogie construction had to be used to this country for help in building this apron, as it was completely new to them. The ferry will cost $1,000,000, and should be here in June, 1914.

AR NORY READY Y CHRISTMAS

Contractor Bogie informed a Post representative this morning that the armory would be finished by Christmas. The structure is now closed up, and the men were now working on the interior.

Mrs. J. H. Thompson, of Bobcaygeon, spent Friday in town.

Life Sketch of Cecil Rhodes

Sidelights on the strange career of that great man of the Empire, Cecil Rhodes, who died over eleven years ago, are thrown by the publication of "Cecil Rhodes: the Man and His Work," by Messrs. John Murray, of London, England. The author is Mr. Gordon le Sueur, one of the private and confidential secretaries of Cecil Rhodes, who makes the statement, in an over eleven years since Cecil Rhodes died, with the words 'do his duty, do as much to do,' upon his lips, but the public still awaits a full and authentic life of the man, owing to his trustees thinking 'the time is too recent for the completed story.'

Mr. le Sueur prepared a biography of his late master, but the trustees decided that the time that the work be abandoned, and purchased his notes and material. He therefore set out to convey an impression of Cecil Rhodes and his achievements, "from what I know of him, and from the anecdotes I retain."

The life of Cæsar and Napoleon was a feature of the great man; he imagined he resembled the Hadrian, the emperor, and sought to find a place the act of stroking his nose in front of a portrait of the famous Roman ruler being known among a certain class of people as "The Emperor," caused him endless pleasure.

EVER PRESENT CAESAR CULT

"The Caesar idea was ever present in his mind." He carried with him a marked copy of the Emperor Marcus Aurelius." Gibbon was his favorite author, while Plutarch's "Lives" never failed to please him. His library at Groote Schuur, the splendid Cape Town home of Cecil Rhodes contains the finest edition of the "Private Histories of the Roman Emperors" Suetonius," while his enthusiasm led him to commission Hatchards of Piccadilly, to search for him in unabridged foreign translations of the authorities quoted by Gibbon in his "Decline and Fall." Gibbon's books were "interwritten and were bound in red.

The dramatic tastes of Cecil Rhodes were directly affected by his love of things Roman. He rarely went to the theatre, and when he did, he usually spent all people near him by his incessant yawning. But "Julius Caesar," produced in London in 1898, was one play that greatly pleased him. Anything superlative was bound to be agreeable—as agreeable as characters of the Dickens' type were distasteful for he declared "she was not interested in the class of people Dickens wrote about."

EGOTISM DEEPENED SOUTH AFRICA

If Cecil Rhodes had not held to his ecotism that produced at the same time his splendid vision that South Africa would probably have a different tale to tell today.

His faith in Jameson was resilient. When the famous raid took place, he hoped that the show of force would force Kruger's hand and bring about the necessary reform. He never thought Jameson would run down Pretoria to Johannesburg, and when the surrounder came he shut himself up for three days "ma a nervous breakdown."

Rhodes liked the Dutch South Africans, whom he called "Nature's peasants," but in a judgment of them was wholly at fault when the South African war broke out. He thought Boers would not be a short fired, or as he telegrapher said "he deliberately misled the people at home."

A MESSAGE FROM A WOMAN TO WOMEN

"Every Woman Should Take "Fruit-a-tives"

LACHUTE, ONT., MAY 12th, 1911

"Kindly publish my testimonial, for if you think it will benefit other women who might be afflicted with the diseases I have had in the past, but now now, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives", completely cured. I firmly believe that every woman should take "Fruit-a-tives" if she wants to keep herself in good health.

Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I was constantly troubled with what is commonly known as "Nerves" or severe Nervousness. This Nervousness brought on the most violent attacks of Sick Headache, for which I was constantly taking Bromide of Potash, which was very permanent relief. Constipation was also a constant source of trouble to me and for which the Doctors said "I would have to take medicine all my life". But "Fruit-a-tives" banished all these troubles and now I am a well woman.

RHODES AT HOME.

So much for Cecil Rhodes, the empire builder; as to Cecil Rhodes, the man, Mr. Le Sueur says, "he was a hard, 'almost a gross feeder'; he liked to get a joint in front of him and cut off the choicest morsels. Champagne he took in a tumbler, while after meals he would toss off five or six glasses of his favorite Hermitage." Breakfast was eleven o'clock he usually took a flagon of champagne, and stout or light beer. His library at Groote Schuur, the house which he had nothing until dinner time, except perhaps a gin and soda, or whisky and soda, which drinks he generally sat in his dining room, smoking innumerable cigarettes, and talking.

Rhodes knew his heart would kill him, but he thought his death would be painless. Actually he suffered great agony during his last illness and was unable to lie down. Enlargement of the heart necessitated his sitting up and he was found dead by a footman sitting on the edge of the bed, his hands under his thighs, partly supporting his head stretched the length of the bed.

Just before his death Rhodes had a great desire to see his mother, Mary and to his greatest friend, Dr. Jameson, tell the tale of telling him that he would never reach home alive. Nevertheless he was disappointed when he said on the "Saxon," on March 26, 1902, but on that day he was passing through the Bechuanaland the Matopas, in the grave he had chosen six years before.

CONDITIONS IN TOKIO

Like many other great cities, the number of unemployed is ever on the increase in Tokio, where men gather in the hope of finding work, or fortunes. Unfortunately, however, high places are few and talent apparently very abundant, and consequently even men with good qualifications are roaming about vainly seeking employment. Some of them come to the free lodging house of Hoshi, Tokio, tired out, soul-sick even and on the brink of starvation.

This summer the small lodging house is taxed to the utmost capacity. The director of the house tells a pitiful story of the mighty lodgers. "Men in the prime of life," he says, "come here every day starving, having had nothing to eat for three or four days. Of the young men who come to me for help, the majority are from the country. They have left their way to the city with high hopes, and write home exaggerated or imaginary stories of their success. A few years later they come back to their homes on borrowed money and dressed up in rural style to impress their family and friends with their success, not yet realized. When they return to the city their situation is even worse than it was before. Now they are then saddled with the debts they incurred to create false impressions at home. These young men begin generally as hard workers or ambitious students, they become cheap laborers or coolies, and finally end as loafers, sheltered in the poorhouse."

Japan is dealing with the problem of the unemployed on scientific grounds, and is being swept by the greater experience of America and Europe.

WORK ON UPPER TRENT CANAL SECTION

(Midland Argus.)

Active operations in connection with the construction of the Upper Severn section of the Trent Canal may be said to have commenced. Last week a considerable quantity of lumber and other material was taken from here to the Severn to be used for connection with the building of construction camps and the like, and these are to be built in such a manner as to afford accommodation for a large staff of men that will be engaged there during the winter. With the scarcity of labor that prevails at present and will become more so until the beginning of the year, this work comes along at a very opportune time and there is every reason to expect a large number of men from here who would otherwise be idle will be able to secure jobs upon this work at decent wages. They will be close enough to reach home at least every Saturday night, which will render the position a fairly agreeable one. It will be a good thing for the town also in being able to supply a great deal of the goods that will be required in connection with these different camps. The Stinson contract and the work will be proceeded with as far as possible during the winter.

Grand Trunk's Palatrial Hotels

"The Soft Carry," Winnipeg's new magnificent hotel, built by the Grand Trunk Railway, is rapidly nearing completion and it is expected that it will be opened on or about December 1st next. The power plant of the hotel has been started and the work of furnishing is being carried on night and day.

A feature of this hotel is the Green House in the roof of 14 storeys above the ordinary, which is now providing special flowers, which will grace the dining room tables at the opening of the hotel as well as supply the dining room regularly with fresh cut flowers.

"The Macdonald" at Edmonton, another of the chain of Grand Trunk hotels is progressing favorably, the steel work on this building being up to the roof while the dome rises to up 7 floors and it is anticipated by the contractors that the building will be ready for the fall of 1914 as expected however, that the hotel will be open until the Fall of 1914.

"The Qu'Appelle" at Regina, is also under way and the entire work will be completed by this hotel has excavated and the foundation is now being put in. It is expected that work can be commenced this Fall.

"The Prince Rupert" at Prince Rupert, B. C., another of the Grand Trunk Pacific hotels is also under way and the ground is being cleared for the excavation of what will be the finest hotel on the Pacific Coast.

The high standard time surrounds the "Chateau Laurier" at Ottawa, the first of the Grand Trunk chain of hotels will be followed throughout in the complete chain that is now being built across the Continent.

Galt Collegiate Is De-Graded

Galt, Oct. 17.—Word has been received from the department of education, acquainting the board of trustees that, since the people of Galt had not voted money for a new gymnasium, the collegiate institute was not up to the standard set for collegiate institutes, and asking that the board apply for a reduction from collegiate institute to high school. There is some uncertainty as to what is meant by asking the board to apply for a reduction. Opinion prevails among the trustees that Galt is no worse off under present department orders than several other cities, and it is felt that, under all circumstances, the action decided on at educational headquarters is unduly harsh and unreasonable. The institute athletics and physical culture work is admitted, laudatory and for absence of a large and costly gymnasium. A deputation will wait the government to plead Galt's case.

CUPID AND THE BEE

By A. L. Richards.

Deep in rosy petals hiding
Slept a honey bee,
Cupid never saw him hiding,
Stung, the rogue was he.

Tiny finger fiery glowing
Crying with the pain,
Early came mother kiss throwing,
Home he ran amain.

Straight to lovely Venus flying,
Sobbing out the scream,
"Mother, dear, I'm killed! I'm dying
With some awful pest!"

"Oh, it's bees and bit me, mother!
Only look and see!
'Twas that little winged serpent
Farmers call the bee."

"Love," she answered, tender-heartedly
"If the bee-sting smarts,
Think of all the pain you've started
With your flying darts."

NOGEY'S CREEK

(Special to The Post.)

We, as well as other places, have had a long drought and, in consequence, water is very scarce, farmers having to drive their cattle a long way for drink or draw water in barrels for home use. I was in the north country last week, and was very much surprised to find that though hay had been a failure, and straw was short, the grain was a fair average crop. I had thought the severe frost and long drought would have almost ruined the farmers of that part. It was a very pleasant surprise to find that prospects were good for the winter and farmers in the best of spirits.

The camps are beginning to go in, though the weather is so warm.

"The Cedars" gave their annual dance to the neighbourhood of the neighborhood on Wednesday night, though they still have their boarding house in Peterborough. It was, as usual, a success, and one and all enjoyed themselves until about two o'clock.

We are very pleased to hear that our old neighbor, Mrs. Quinton Moore, is recovering from a very long illness.

The neighborhood is almost entirely free from illness.

TOWN TREASURER GETS INCREASE

Town Treasurer, Miss F. M. Currie, request for an increase in salary came up before the Finance Committee of the council last night, and present she is paid $535.00 by the town and $125 by the Board of Water Commissioners.

It was moved by Reeve Kelle and Dep-Reeve McWatters that she be given $150.00 of an increase dating from July 1st, 1913. The committee paid a good tribute to Miss Currie's efficiency as Town Treasurer.

An Accomplishment

Swearing was at one time regarded as an indispensable accomplishment in a gentleman. Evelyn Ashley once told Sir Algernon West that on his father becoming Lord Shaftesbury Lady Caroline Neeld, his sister, said to him in all seriousness, "Now that you have come into the title you must learn to swear. Your father always did, and gained great respect by it in the country." Those were the days when the Archbishop of Canterbury, calling upon Lord Melbourne to discuss some business, said, "Now, my lord, it will save time if before we begin we assume that everybody and everything is damned."

Eat Fish and Reduce Living Cost

Would the popularizing of fish and oysters as a food, to any material extent relieve the high cost of living?

The above question was put to a local retail butcher of considerable influence and more money recently, and his answer was quite satisfactory, so satisfactory, in fact, that the old, familiar phrase "high cost of living," lost some of its sternness.

"Fish," he said, "is a good wholesome food that is being used more every day, but which would be twice as popular as it is at the present time if the Government would make an effort to help the industry along a little. A few years ago this country and the United States looked as if they were, and would remain, the chief source of food, clothing, lumber, fuel and minerals for a large portion of the world. We opened our doors so wide to the people of the other lands, however, that already the consumption has increased far beyond the production, and by wasteful methods, luxurious living, and other causes, we are brought face to face with this problem.

GOVERNMENT AID.

"Now, the main item in the high cost of living is the demand for food, and most of the foods of today are too expensive for constant or frequent use. There is one, however, that is expensive, not because of the lack of it, but because the Government will not help the industry. Take the conditions at present. If you want to get fish in Ontario today from the Maritime Provinces, you will have to pay a freight rate of three cents per pound, while even that brought in car lots is hampered with a one and a half cent per pound rate. If the Government would get behind the industry that rate would soon come down.

FISHING GROUNDS

"And then look at our own fishing grounds—the Great Lakes. The United States has depleted the fish in its own lakes, so it comes to ours for its supply. Nothing is done to stop them. There is not even an export duty put on the consignments leaving the country to go over the line. That could easily be remedied, and the remedy lies with the Government. Of course, prices in this country will never come down to the level they were at a few years ago, because geographically we are situated rather unfortunately. Those big cities will always be south of us, they will always want more or less fish, and they will always be willing to pay for it.

PRICE MODERATE

"The price of fish," the butcher went on, "is not so very high at the present time; and therein lies the trouble. We would have to educate the people to like it. Not their palates, you know; they are fond enough of the taste of it, but their ideas. It's like this. Over in the Old Country food is higher than it is here, and yet the people live quite as well, usually. But over there they are not incessantly struggling and fighting for tender sirloins and other portions of the front quarters of beef. They are quite satisfied with stews, and broths and soups made from the hind quarters—just as good food, and quite as nutritious, but not nearly as expensive. Immediately they come to this country, however, they refuse to use what they are pleased to call "second-class" meat. They become just like all the rest of us. They want nothing but the best, and they are bound to have it, irrespective of the price. And that is the primary cause of the high cost of living as far as food is concerned.

OTHER DELUSIONS

"Meat and fish are not the only foods the people of this country entertain delusions about, however. Take cornmeal. Everybody can remember how, when they were children, their mothers used to make cornmeal the big item on the breakfast menu. They don't any more. Nowadays they are satisfied with nothing less than grape fruit and ham and eggs, stuff that costs three times as much as cornmeal and which is no more nutritious or delectable."

The reporter lived in a boarding-house, and as a result was not very conversant with the prices of meat or fish; but the arguments of the butcher sounded fairly convincing. So he asked him about oysters—did he think they would ever come into general use?"

"No; I don't think they ever will" was the response. "They're a luxury now, and I think they always will be. While other foods have greatly increased in price, oysterd can still be furnished for about the same price as was in vogue years ago. That is a little too high, however."—News.

THE SMART TAILORED SUIT HAS A FIRST PLACE IN THE WARDROBE

Smart, simple, of good lines, there is nothing more becoming to the American woman than the tailored suit. This has always been true, and, despite its change this season from strictly tailored to semi-tailored lines, the suit continues to be indespensable to the smart wardrobe.

Many of the skirts are draped, many show the double or triple skirt, others again are perfectly plain. The coats are sashed and vested, and often there is a novel collar or attractive cuffs that add to the effect.

Materials are most attractive—velours de laine, plain or self figured; duvetyn, which is as supple and rich as velvet, and numerous novelty stuffs that are exceedingly smart.

Tweeds in almost invisible mixtures are modish for morning wear.

A smart suggestion for 7998-7994 is navy blue velours de laine striped in nattier blue with white collar and vest.

To copy 7998 in size 36 it requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material. In size 24 7994 requires 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

Reading Character By the Tongue

The latest "scientific" whim, a substitute for palmistry, hailing from Germany, is the pastime of reading character and telling fortunes by the tongues.

A sensitive, quivering tongue denotes the artistic temperament. A tongue of a brilliant carmine hue denotes long life; a pale, pink tongue, delicacy and weakness of character.

The man with a short tongue usually is of a secretive nature, and likely to succeed in life, either as a lawyer or a detective; but although he may acquire money by economy and cunning, he has not the largeness of mind necessary to the amassing of a great fortune.

Long tongues suggest generosity and open-handedness. But the man with a long, broad tongue is apt to be a dangerous gossip; just as the man with a short, broad tongue is addicted to craft, and even deceptiveness.

Returned the Teeth

Dr. Onvike, a Calgary dentist, recently had some teeth stolen from his office. A few mornings afterwar he found them in front of his door. The note which accompanied them explained the reason for their return, and, as Dr. Quirk says, the thief is a humorist. The following is what he wrote:

"Dear Doc:—Enclosed you will find your teeth. It is a shame for you to place temptation in the way of one like that, especially when they are not gold, like they look like. We ar keeping the elephant's tooth, because you admit it is worth $25 or so. If you hadn't hollered we would have tried to melt the gold down. Thanks for the tip."

Black Bass Deposit In Lake Scugog

On Monday last 50,000 small mouth black bass (fingerlings) were deposited in Lake Scugog between Port Perry and Washburn Island, they were from the Provincial Hatchery situated at Mount Pleasant, Brant County. They arrived on the 5.55 train and were in charge of Mr. J. T. Edwards, of Mohawk, Ont., being addressed to Mr. C. L. Vickery. The worthy and popular M.P.P. for West Durham, J. H. Devitt, Esq., is to be congratulated on his success on obtaining so large a quantity of young fish that are so suitable to propagate the fish interests of the waters of the Scugog. This stocking of the Scugog with choice fish should and doubtless will, result in again making its waters preeminent as a fishing resort, for the Scugog once possessed grounds which for abundance of choice fish had no equal in inland waters. In 1906 and again in 1903 Messrs Chas. Calder and J. H. Devitt were instigators in stocking the Scugog with two cars of parent fish, but we will not venture an opinion as to what became of them.—Port Perry Observer.

CHIEF LOCATES GUILTY PARTIES

Chief Chilton has located the parties who rang in the false alarm from the fire alarm box at Horn's mill at the corner of Bond and William streets. He has taken a great deal of trouble to look into the case thoroughly and has got the evidence al. in line so that an arrest can be made and the case gone ahead with at once.

READING AND ITS PLEASURE

(By F. M. Dela Fosse in Peterboro (Examiner.)

At present the chief interest of patrons of all libraries centres in fiction. Presumably this will always be the case, but whilst there is small hope that this department will ever be relegated to the background in favor of other branches of literature, there is great satisfaction to be found in the fact that there is an appreciable decrease in the patronage extended to it and a noticeable increase in that extended to others. During the present year it has been very patent to observation in the Peterboro library, and it is gratifying that it should be so for there is much of the highest value and interest to be found on the shelves if the people will only take the trouble to look for it.

It is very far from the aim of the writer, however, to attempt to belittle the value of fiction. It is and always will be an abiding necessity in the lives of most of us to have something to turn to that will tend to ease our tired brains and cast our thoughts into channels far removed from the stress and strain of daily toil. But there is reason in all things and there is no more necessity for a continued diet of fiction for the mind than there is for a continued diet of pork and beans for the body. It has been stated on good authority that there is at the present time in stock in the storehouse of a well known New York publishing firm no less than 350,000 copies of the popular novel, "The Winning of Barbara Worth," and it seems to me that there is something inexpressibly saddening in the fact that a work like this, excellent as it undoubtedly is, should sell in such tens of thousands, while the stupendous labors of philosophers, poets, essayists, and others sell by tens. Today I was examining the books in the Biographical section of our library, and was astonished at the number that had evidently never been taken out for reading purposes. Some of these, in fact most of them had been purchased some years ago, and afforded mute but eloquent testimony to the fact that the taste of the purchasers had been very far in advance of the taste of those to whom they were catering. Take for instance that encyclopaedic work, "The Lives of the Lord Chancellors" (10 vols) and "The Lives of the Chief Justices of England," (6 vols) Whenever I look at these works, they seem to me to assume quite an aggressive and sinister individuality, holding up their heads in high and mighty manner among their more gaudily bedecked brethren of a younger generation, as if insistently demanding as their right a fair measure of recognition from the public.

Now, it is far enough from my thoughts that everybody should make it a point of necessity to read either of these ponderous works. They are neither of them of a character to appeal to the general public, but nevertheless, they are distinctly of a type to appeal to a far larger public than is at present aware of their existence. "The Lives of the Lord Chancellors" gives a short account of everyone who has held that office from its inception to the time of Lord Brougham. It furnishes us with a knowledge of the origin, functions and jurisdiction of the office. But, apart from all this, there is very much in the volume that should prove entertaining reading for those whose tastes do not lie exactly in the line of constitutional law or politics, for biography is more interesting than history to the average individual and even though the story of the holders of the Great Seal is in reality the story of the British constitution as well as of British jurisprudence, there is enough of the personal element in it to enchain the mind of the reader.

I confess that until I took up the introductory volume I was in blissful ignorance of the fact that St. Swithin had once held that high office. He was the second Lord Chancellor of England, so that he has claims to renown beyond the pluvious reputation that clings to his name, or the fact that he was one of the tutors of Alfred the Great, and the introducer of the payment of "Peter's Pence" in England.

"The Lives of the Chief Justices of England" deals with quite as eminent a body of men as the Lord Chancellors, and is just as interesting and instructive. It comprises the period between the time of the institution of the office by William the Conqueror to the year 1854, which marked the death of Lord Denman.

In the same category as regards lack of patronage may be mentioned "Captains of Industry," (2 vols); "Inddstrial Biography," by Smiles, and "Lives of Eminent European and American Mechanics." These three works have to all appearance never been taken out of the library. In the light of this fact it is amusing to read in the preface of one of the volumes that "thanks to the more general diffusion of knowledge and the light of Christianity, mankind are beginning to appreciate the labors of those to whom we are indebted for our present unparallelled state of intellectual and social advancement." These books are intensely interesting and grown ups and juveniles alike will find in them food for both thought and recreation, a combination that is somewhat difficult to find in much of our present day literature.

Two very nice medals arrived today from Ryrie's, Toronto, for the winners in swine and sheep at Lindsay Central Exhibition.

A. A. Colwell, of Newcastle, who exhibited some fine swine got a solid silver medal with his name engraved on the back, while A. Ayr, of Bowmanville, a larger exhibitor of sheep, got a valuable bronze medal also having his name and award engraved on the reverse side. Secretary Jas. Keith has them in his office and is sending them at once to the winners.

FULFILMENT

By Robert Chalmers.

There is a sea—a quiet sea,
Beyond the farthest line,
Where all my ships went astray,
Where all my dreams of yesterday,
And all the things that were to be—
Is done!

There is a land—a quiet land,
Beyond the setting sun,
Where every task in which I quailed,
And all wherein my courage failed,
Where all the good my spirit planned
Are mine!

There is a hope—a quiet hope,
Within my heart instilled,
That if, undaunted, on I sail,
This guiding star shall never pale,
But shine within my labor's scope,
Fulfilled!

And there's a tide—a quiet tide,
Flowing toward a goal—
That swept by every humble shore
And at its fullest ebbs no more;
And on that final swell shall ride—
My soul!

INSPECTING BEER AND ICE CREAM

Beer, soft drinks, flour, ice cream, oysters, ginger, mustard, tea spices and vinegars. These are a few of the household commodities which Inspector H. J. Dager received orders from Ottawa to collect in Toronto, Hamilton, Barrie, Orillia, Whitby, and a few other places a few days ago. They have been purchased in the ordinary way and sent down to Ottawa for analysis.

Just what these commodities will show in the way of adulteration is a matter for conjecture, but officials will be disappointed if the beer, soft drinks, ice cream and spices do not contain wholesale adulteration.

There has been a disposition on the part of Chief Analyst McGill and other officials to take a lenient view of many of these offences against the Pure Food Act, but as abuses are creeping in after malicious considerations as to the best way of benefiting the department, there is a determination to prosecute offenders for the manufacture and the sale of these adulterated articles.

SEIZE THIN OYSTERS.

The department has decided to seize and confiscate every pail of oysters in which ice or an unwarranted amount of water is found. As the oyster season is here again the officials are getting busy looking for the ice in the pails.

The adulterations in spices are in some cases practically different to those used, and sometimes this means sand for pepper.

Water plays an important part in the liquids, but where the articles are not up to the standards of the department it is frequently found the result that the age of the sample tested. Drugs and prepared compounds very frequently lose their strength, and are classed as below the standards

NOT MAPLE SUGAR.

In a recent analysis the department has detected a determined effort on the part of some men to adulterate maple sugar with water and other materials, and case after case has been found to ... be sold in cakes as maple sugar.

It will be some weeks yet before the analysis on the beer and soft drinks is made, but the officials look for some interesting statements when the bulletin appears with the result of these tests.

A tablespoonful of water or milk should be allowed for each egg in making an omelet.

NEW TOWER AND POST OFFICE CLOCK

Some months ago the Post announced that important alterations would be made to the local post office. Blue prints of the proposed alterations had been ready since last April, and at the time of the Post's announcement a brief reference was made to the alterations decided on. Tenders are now called for the proposed work, which will also include a new tower in which a clock will be installed. Tenders will be accepted by the Public Works Dept., Ottawa up until Wednesday, Nov. 5th.

The morning Postmaster Palen received the plans of the improvements, and alterations in full, and very kindly gave a Post representative an opportunity of looking over the plans. The interior of the post office will be completely transformed. The boxes on the east side of the general delivery will be eliminated, and the lobby will extend around the eastern and to the second large window looking out on the laneway. East of general delivery the sloping counter, money order, registered letter and savings bank departments will be placed, facing north.

The lobby will also extend southwesterly to where the money order and registered letter dept. now stands, and letter boxes will also be installed. The door at present leading to the vault will be filled in and a new entrance made from the south.

The south wall of the post office will also be removed and an extension added to the building. This will give additional room for the receipt and sorting of the mail and will greatly relieve the present congestion.

Important alterations and improvements will also be made in the basement.

One of the most important improvements, however, will be the erection of the tower and an installation of a clock. The Post has been agitating for this improvement for some time, in fact long before any action was taken towards memorializing the government, and now it looks as if we are to get the clock at last.

According to the plans in the Postmaster's hands, a portion of the present tower will be removed, and the extension will be quite imposing in appearance. The clock dials will be so placed that they will be seen to advantage from all points.

The cost of the improvements and alterations will total in the neighborhood of $25,000 or $30,000.

Fowl Supper Splendid Success

From Friday's Post.

Oakwood fowl suppers are always very popular with Lindsay people and in fact with the whole countryside. Last night's affair, however, eclipsed everything ever held there with the possible exception of the fowl supper held at the opening of the church a year ago. Hundreds returned or came from out from here late yesterday afternoon in order to be on hand when the tickets were first given out. Each ticket was numbered and given out in the order in which the people arrived. The results were then given seats in the body of the church and waited until their number was called to go down to the basement for supper. One hundred people could be seated at one time at the long tables, which were laden with good things. There were many attentive waiters to see that the wants of all were fully supplied, and they performed their duties well. The fowl was delicious, and the other food was equally so. Almost six hundred people took in the supper.

Afterwards a choice programme was given upstairs, where every seat was filled.

SEPTEMBER SESSION OF PRESBYTERY

The September meeting of Lindsay Presbytery was well attended by elders while the usual high average attendance of ministers was not maintained, some of the brethren not having finished holidaying, and others being detained by various causes. This was unfortunate as the docket was ample and more than ordinarily interesting.

The routine business was disposed of with promptitude, neatness and dispatch to make way for weightier matters.

Presbytery enjoyed the visit of Rev. D. O. MacGregor, who appeared at the opening of the committee's report on systematic giving, and after introducing the subject of the budget for 1913, invited discussion, which a number of the members took part, and finally after appreciation of Mr. MacGregor's address had been warmly expressed, the matter was left with the Presbytery's capable committee on systematic giving who will arrange the details of the method of its presentation to the congregations.

Commissioners to the last General Assembly reported fulfilment of duties assigned, with interesting references to Reform of the last two great gatherings in Toronto last June.

A suitable resolution was ordered to be embodied in the minutes assent the resignation by Mrs H. N. Konkle, of his charge at St. Andrew's, Sonya.—Presbyterian.

Burning of Indian Village

The entire Indian village on the site of Prince George, the new Grand Trunk Pacific town, will be turned down within a few days to make way for the new town. The torch will be applied ruthlessly and the ancestral homes of the tribe will be swept away to the last building. Even the churches of the natives will not be spared.

The Indians are moving their property to two new villages built for them on the reserve in the Cooper country, 15 miles up the Fraser, and on Duck Lake, 12 miles up the Nechaco river. When the railway company purchased the Indian reserve which is the site of Prince George, it was agreed through the Dominion Government that new villages should be built for the tribe.

These new Indian towns are now being completed and they have been inspected by representatives of the Dominion authorities. They are said to be a credit to the Indian Department, as well as to the contractors who built them. The Cooper village is probably the most remarkable Indian villages ever built in respect to being essentially modern.

The town to be burned down is one of the chief Indian settlements known in British Columbia. It has been an Indian village from time immemorial. They write as known as the coverers from the fact that early discoverers found it. Marked charred bones of their ancestors, constantly with them. They are also known as the Western Denes.

Mission Board Reports Deficit

Peterboro, Oct. 16—Considerable discussion was brought about this afternoon at the Baptist convention when the Foreign Mission Board, of the Canadian Baptist Foreign Mission Board, showing a deficit for the year of nearly $30,000 was submitted. Several delegates wanted a detailed statement of the expenditure as the cost of administration appeared to them to be rather high. Rev. Dr. Brown, in reply, said that the Mission Board's expenditure for the year was $119,077.01. The receipts from all sources fell $26,000 below the budget.

King Manuel's Throneless Queen

There has been a considerable amount of discussion as to what the status of ex-King Manuel of Portugal, and his consort, Princess Augustine of Hohenollern, would be after their marriage. For hundreds of years it has been a matter of usage among the rulers of Europe that if any of them were deprived of their throne they should continue to retain for the remainder of their lives the sovereign titles, as well as the honors and prerogatives accorded to foreign monarchs.

King Manuel's bride will therefore be styled Queen Augustine, and will be accorded the same prefix of majesty as her husband. King Manuel will, after his marriage, continue to make his home in England. He has leased a large mansion in Kensington Palace Gardens, near Kensington Palace, where he will reside with his bride. It was his wish to live quietly, without any fuss or festivities, but sorely against his will, his royal relatives, both in England and on the Continent, have insisted that he should maintain a royal household, with the necessary complement of gentlemen and ladies in waiting.

It is not for the sake of economy that King Manuel desired to dispense with their attendance. For, despite the seizure of his private property of every kind, even of his personal jewellery, by the republican government of Portugal, he has the text of their being needed to repay money alleged to have been lent by the national treasury to his father, the murdered King Carlos, Manuel will be very comfortably off.

His mother is very rich, having received a large dower from her father, the Comte de Paris, at the time of her marriage, and having, moreover, inherited a big share of her fortune at his death. Moreover, King Manuel's bride is rich in her own right, having built from the profits of a very considerable dowry, but the assurance of another big fortune on the death of her father, Prince William of Hohenollern.

The Hohenzollerns of Sigmaringen are very rich. The family fortunes have greatly augmented by the successful railway investments and speculations of Prince Charles Anthony of Hohenzollern, great-grandfather of Dom Manuel's bride. King Manuel's bride is related closely to nine-tenths of the sovereign houses of Europe. Empress Eugenie, who is completely overshadows the members of his house, by the importance of the place which he occupies as the ruler of one of the mightiest of the great powers of the world, that one is apt to forget that he is one of the Hohenzollerns, and that, strictly speaking, the line to which he belongs is the younger branch of the dynasty. It needs such an event as the marriage of King Manuel to Princess Augustine to recall the fact that the Sigmaringen Hohenzollerns are the senior branch, although its members have for more than 200 years past been willing to recognize the supremacy of the ruler of Prussia by reason of his importance among the monarchs of Europe.

The Castle of Sigmaringen, where the wedding took place, was granted to the senior branch of the Hohenzollerns by Charles V. in 1534, and has been their home ever since. Previously it had belonged to the famous of the Montfort, one of Werdenberg, both of which long ago became extinct.

The castle is grouped about a tower of Roman construction, dating from the beginning of the Christian era, and in every century the successive owners have done their utmost to render it impregnable as a stronghold and luxurious as a residence. Consequently, it partakes of a double character, being half castle, half palace.

BLACK HAND ENSIGN

In the spring of 1912 a reporter for a local paper died. The day after the funeral a visitor to the office found the editor and his staff talking about their late associate.

"It has been a sad loss, friends," the visitor said, "a sad loss, indeed. He sighed, and looked about the room. "Ah, I am pleased to see," he went on, "that you commemorate the melancholy event by hanging up crape."

"Over there," said the visitor, pointing.

"Crape be darned," said the city editor. "That isn't crape. That's the office towel."

Wanted to Get in Right

A travelling salesman died suddenly and was taken to his home in the west. His relatives telephoned the nearest florist, some miles away, to make a wreath—the ribbon should be extra wide, with the inscription, "Rest in Peace," on both sides, and, if there was room, "We shall meet in Heaven."

The florist was away, and his new assistant handled the job. It was a startling floral piece which turned up at the funeral. The ribbon was extra wide, and bore the inscription: "Rest in peace on both sides, and if there is room, we shall meet in Heaven."

Bondholders Seek Way to Realize on Assets

The following appeared in today's Globe:

Montreal, Oct. 28—At a meeting of the bondholders of the Canadian Cereal & Flour Mills, Limited, held in the offices of the Investment Trust Company at noon today, a committee of three was appointed to inquire into the affairs of the company and report back to another meeting of the bondholders, which will be held on November 19.

The committee appointed was composed of Kenneth W. Blackwell, A. F. Riddell and S. A. Heward. No official statement was forthcoming at the conclusion of the meeting, which lasted almost two hours, but it was learned from those present that the meeting dealt with the question of how to dispose of the different mills belonging to the company.

Mr. John T. Black, President of the company, stated this morning that the company was now in the hands of a receiver, and it had been proposed to turn the mills back to their original owners.

SMALL MILLS UNSUITABLE

This was discussed at the meeting today, and a majority of the bondholders seemed to be in favor of this course, as it was pointed out that while some of the mills could be operated as small country mills, they did not fit well into the scheme which was proposed originally.

The company now, it is understood contemplate the operation of two or possibly three of the largest mills. The company at present have eleven scattered throughout Ontario. The outstanding bonds of the company amount to $625,000 and have a fairly wide distribution, largely in Canada.

In this case at least the English holders are said to be comparatively small. Against the $625,000 bonds the statement of the company a year ago showed total assets of $1,272,231, of which $1,023,847 was in plant, etc., and the balance in surplus of liquid assets over all liabilities.

It is understood that the company will continue to operate as such for a time, as there are a number of contracts which must be filled.

FORMER PUPILS ON PROGRAMME

Toronto Mail: The Toronto College of Music can be congratulated on its time programme and large audience last night. Sir John Gibson and party occupied seats in the auditorium. Beethoven's Concerto in C Minor was fittingly expressed by Miss Mary Lowrgan, of Peterboro. Mathieu Meehan, Port Arthur, (graduates of St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay) and Grace Porter, Woodbridge, drew forth applause for their rendering of Hiller's Concerto, "Allegro quasi Fantasia," the fantasia of musical effect being thoroughly rendered. Mrs. C. Grainger and Miss Grace McNeil, of Toronto (graduate of St. Joseph's Academy, Lindsay) the latter in Chopin's Polonaise in E. Flat, were well appreciated.

A pleasing ceremony took place at the conclusion of Miss Olive Lloyd Casey's recital, the "Il strano" of Verdi. Coming to the front of the orchestra stage, the Lieutenant-Governor commended her art, and tendered pleasure in presenting her with the college's gold medal. Miss Casey had, he said, studied in Europe, and the finished result had been heard in Massey Hall that night. The medal was heralded on one side, and on the other bore the inscription, "The Toronto College of Music, 1913." With large presentation bouquets in her hands, the gifted lady bowed her acknowledgements. Miss Ethel Adamson, Miss Evelyn Hall, Miss Dorothy McGuire, Miss Dora Stachbury, all of Toronto, and Lindsay, gave the finish to a pleasing programme.

COLONEL SAM BOUGHT A TAG

Saved Daughter's Dog From Catcher

Welland, Oct., Oct. 28.—Hon. Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, yesterday afternoon rescued a pet dog owned by his daughter, Mrs. Byron M. Green, Dorothy street, from the hands of the civic dog catcher.

The Minister of Militia was taking a walk up town and was followed by the little spaniel. He had not proceeded far when the zealous catcher noticed it was without a tag. He gathered it under his arm and hurried to the pound.

"Here, that is my dog," said Col. Sam, hurrying up out of breath, and taking the little pet out of the arms of its captor, after which he started to leave the building.

STOPPED BY THE CHIEF.

"Hold on there," came the stentorian voice of Chief of Police Lang, who was coming out of his office. "Where are you going with that dog?"

"The dog is mine," returned the Minister.

"And what is your name?" Asked the Chief.

"Hughes", came the terse rejoinder. But then, there are many people in the world by that name.

"Well, you had better come in here and get a tag for the dog," continued the Chief, leading the way, the Colonel following with the dog in his arms.

"Now, what did you say your name was?" asked the Chief again, as the book sergeant pulled out the license book, and waited with pen poised.

COMMENDS DUTY WELL DONE

"Hughes, Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia," was the exasperated answer. The chief quickly explained that he wasn't aware of the fact that he had been dealing with a Cabinet minister.

"That's all right," assured Col. Sam, "always enforce the law, irrespective of persons. Better give me a tag."

RUMOR HAS NO FOUNDATION

KNIFE WENT THROUGH HAND

Painful Accident to East Ward Lady

From Wednesday's Post.

This afternoon Mrs. William Jackson, St. Patrick street, was the victim of a very severe accident. She was engaged cutting bread with a knife, when it slipped, cutting clean through the palm of her right hand, the point coming out at the back. The wound bled profusely until the arrival of Dr. Rich. The wound is a very serious one.

FLIRTED WITH CONSTABLE'S WIFE

St. Catharines Journal—"Those are beautiful fixtures," said John Dickenson, a commercial traveller, who had just arrived in the city and was surveying the windows at the Martin Electric store. As he said so he coughed. Much efforts were made to the hearing of a "good-looking young lady." He later said good morning in the same party, who was gone other than the wife of police Constable Howitt, who stated in Police Court this morning that the man followed her. In spite of Dickenson's claims, as to having an uncontrollable cough and that he was talking to himself, Magistrate Counsell was satisfied that he had a "lady killer" before him, and that he was endeavoring to carry on a flirtation, a process that has become a nuisance to many St. Catharines young ladies.

The Magistrate assessed the man $5.00.

DEER HUNTERS LEAVE THIS WEEK

Two Local Parties go North Thursday

The call of the wild is beginning to manifest itself among the local deer-hunters, the result of which will be patent to the northern deer in the course of a few days. A number of licenses have already been taken out at two and five dollars, respectively. The former entitles the owner to shoot the sight deer and the latter concedes the right to put the lumbering moose. As yet there are no applications from non-residents of Canada. Such a license would cost $50.

The season does not open until Saturday next and the dealers state that the greater demand comes during the last few days. Another thing makes it impossible to know locally just how many licenses are issued, owing to the Department of Fish and Game have recently adopted the system of allowing guides and northern settlers to issue their own certificates and make their small profit of twenty five or fifty cents each. Many hunters make it a practice to allow their guides to get this little perquisite.

Local hardware dealers report fairly brisk sales of hunters' supplies, which include ammunition and camping outfits. The season will last for ten days, commencing Saturday.

This morning a Gravenhurst party of three secured licenses from Fishery Overseer Gunter, of Bradshaw. A Lindsay party consisting of Messrs. Neil Gray, Harry Jackson and J. J. Turner have also secured their licenses, and will leave tomorrow, it is understood, for game haunts on the I. B. & O. Railway.

That veteran hunter, William Needham, with a party of three from Millbrook, will also leave on Thursday. Their destination is a favorite game haunt on the I. B. & O.

Another hunting party of eight from Highland Creek, near Toronto, secured licenses from Fishery Overseer Bradshaw informed the Post today that he had supplied twenty-five licenses to date.

LOOKING FOR JAMES WARREN

Montreal, Oct. 27—Considerable anxiety is felt by numerous business men of this city and members of the banking fraternity as to the whereabouts of a man giving his name as James Warren, who arrived here about a month ago from England, for the purpose, he stated, of establishing a branch of the Peerless Motor Company, of England, of which he represented himself as managing director.

After opening an office and a sales warehouse here and engaging a staff of employes, Warren disappeared suddenly from the city on Thursday night last, supposedly bound for Toronto, leaving behind him a trail of unpaid bills and several checks for various amounts, which the banks have declined to accept.

Warren, who is said to have come from Birmingham, brought here with with him, and since his arrival in Montreal had been living like a man of great wealth. He will be returned to England on October 17.

PLEASANT POINT

(Special to The Post)

In spite of the rather disagreeable weather on Tuesday afternoon, a large crowd of men gathered to buy the property of Mr. Geo. McGahey, who was selling his farm stock and implements. The stock was in fine shape and demanded good prices. Mr. and Mrs. McGahey and family intend returning to town where they moved some two or three years ago.

Miss Elizabeth G. Brim, of Riverview, called on friends at Cameron recently.

The farmers are busy taking in their root crop at present. The dry summer did not injure this end of the harvest very much.

A number took in the fowl supper at Millersmith, Emily, on Monday evening and seem to have enjoyed themselves.

But the more foolish notes a man makes the less likely is he to become a howling success.

VICAR-GENERAL CASEY AT CONSECRATION

Ottawa, Oct. 28—At the Basilica here this morning the Rev. Father P. X. Prunet was raised to the dignity of a bishop of the Roman Catholic church, the first incumbent of the recently created diocese of Mont. Laurier, in Northern Quebec. Archbishop Gauthier, of Ottawa, acted as consecrator, assisted by Auxiliary Bishop Ryan, of Pembroke, and Bishop Latulipe, of Temiskaming, in the presence of a score of bishops and about 200 clergy from all parts of Canada, as well as a great attendance of the laity from all parts of Ottawa and Quebec. Bishop O'Connor, of Peterboro, preached the sermon in English, and Bishop Forbes, of Joliette, in French.

Bishop Brunet was born in St. Andrew's, Argenteuil, Que., Nov. 26, 1868. He has occupied many important parishes in Ontario and Quebec. His new diocese, which was formerly part of Ottawa diocese, extends from the dioceses of Pembroke and Temiskaming on the west and north to that of Montreal, on the east.

The new bishop was presented with a purse of $2,900 by the clergy and other friends today.

Among the clergy present was Vicar-General Casey of Lindsay.

ACCIDENTLY SHOT AT BOBCAYGEON

Robert L. Clark Had Narrow Escape Monday

Robert L. Clarke, electrician employed at the power house, Bobcaygeon, was the victim of a shooting accident on Tuesday which might have been attended with more serious results.

In company with his brother-in-law Mr. Clarke was enjoying a shoot with a double barrelled gun at the Little Bob. He had discharged one barrel at a snipe, and had laid the gun down, when his brother-in-law picked it up. In some unaccountable manner it was discharged, the contents lacerating two of Mr. Clarke's fingers badly, and also inflicting an ugly wound on the right side of his body, just above the hip. The attending physician says that the injured man will be laid up for some weeks.

The bridegroom is Mr. John Parry aged 68, who has lived now for some years in the village south of Ottawa. Mrs. Martin has lived in Bridge village all her life.

The happy pair received many congratulations. By her first marriage, Mrs. Martin became Mrs. Sabourin, and had a number of children, one of whom reside in Ottawa, and at Billings' bridge. ZERO WEATHER IN PARTS OF WEST

Winnipeg, Oct. 28—Zero weather visited some parts of the Canadian prairie west for the first time this winter, Swift Current reporting two degrees below and other Saskatchewan points a few degrees above zero. Has a good deal of snow in Alberta. A cold snap hit the city last night, accompanied by a driving rain which changed to sleet in the afternoon, rain and sleet, and turned to snow with a bitter north wind. October, however, has been a mild one, so far has managed to elude the vigilance of the sheriff and a posse.

EAST MIDDLESEX

The Conservative press refers to the result in East Middlesex as a magnificent victory for the Borden Government. An analysis of the vote however, proves that there was very little in the result to prove comforting to the Tories. A reduction of one-third in a bye-election where everything favours the Government candidate, shows a trend of public opinion that may, under the wider opportunities of a general election, release the riding from its thraldom. Ever since 1903, when the riding was rearranged in its present form, Mr. Peter Elson, (Conservative), has carried it by growing majorities—from 219 in 1904, to 661 in 1911. The reduction of the Conservative majority to 368 in yesterday's voting, is significant. The appeals of an invading host of Conservative ministers and members, cooperated with the press cry "make it a thousand," with the result that the Conservative majority was almost cut in half. The significant part is that the former vote contributed most to the reduction, showing that Mr. Borden's dependence and hold upon rural Ontario is weakening.

The people are getting their eyes open.

BORDEN'S WEAKNESS

A Toronto correspondent of the New York Tribune in discussing the rumors re Bob Rogers as premier, sizes up the situation in this manner:—

"Every once in a while there are rumors that there is an insurrection smouldering in the Conservative ranks, and that when it breaks out Premier Borden will be deposed and the Hon. Bob Rogers will succeed. A revolution did develop, and was barely crushed, just previous to the general election which launched Mr. Borden in the Premiership. Many persons, however, will find it difficult to think of Rogers as Premier. Meanwhile critics of the Premier declare that he is not developing, as might be expected of a man holding his position. They admit his eminent respectability, his gentlemanliness, his ability and honesty of the downright sort. But they say he lacks decisiveness; that he doesn't know his own mind; that he follows the line of least resistance. In proof, they ask what he has accomplished during his two years of power. To excuses they will not listen. Results count, and what have been the results of two years of Borden rule? they ask"

WOMEN'S INFLUENCE

Voting women in the historic town of San Gabriel, Cal., threw the direct influence of their ballots against the selling of liquor at the recent election and won. There was a majority of 113 votes for the "drys". The Los Angeles Examiner says:

The total vote cast against the licensing of cafes was 249, with 108 for the proposition. The vote cast was within a hundred of the entire registration of the town, and practically every woman elector cast her ballot.

The campaign against the granting of a restaurant liquor license was one of the most exciting ever witnessed in the romance-tinted mission city.

On one side was the church, with Bishop Conaty taking a special interest, the Mission Play management and many home owners. Upon the other were those who have secured leases about the Old Mission with a view of opening cafes there if liquor licenses were granted, and these were supported by the liberal element in the town.

Nearly every automobile in San Gabriel was pressed into service yesterday, and the large yard in front of the schoolhouse, where the polling place was established, was at times solidly packed with machines. Women were especially active on the side of the "drys." They had a large committee in the field and while some of them drove machines or went out to gather up the voters, others took charge of the polling lists and checked off the voters as they arrived.

REIL'S FIRST REBELLION

Forty years ago Tuesday (Oct. 21st 1869) Louis Reil's first rebellion took place. Aroused to enthusiasm by the wild eloquence of their leader, a small army of half-breeds, armed with rifles, took possession of the road leading from the international boundary to Fort Garry. It had been announced that on the following December 1st the territory would be transferred to Canada, and in the meantime William McDougall was appointed provisional governor. He was despatched to take over the administration from the agents of the Hudson's Bay Company and to arrange the constitutional system. When he reached the border he was met by Riel's men, who had taken possession of the highway over which he must pass, and was warned that he must not cross the frontier. In spite of Riel's threats the new governor tried to reach Fort Garry, but was intercepted by the rebels, and was forced to retire to Pembina, Dakota, where he awaited the arrival of a military force to quell the insurrection.

VANCOUVER'S TAX PROBLEM

The Montreal Telegraph in referring to the controversy now being waged in Vancouver upon the merits or demerits of its system of taxation, states that the city has never locked opponents to the system of putting the taxes upon land and not upon improvements. One of these has now come forward in the person of Alderman S. J. Crowe, who declares the system a failure, and says that in order to raise sufficient revenue, the city will be bound to revert to the ancient and almost universal practice of taxing improvements.

It would be a sad blow to the cause of tax reform if this were to prove the case. The advocates of taxation of land, as against taxation of improvements, claim that this system has given British Columbia by far the most modern city of Canada. They say that as a direct result of this system there are three times as many modern buildings on Granville street, Vancouver as there are on Yonge street, Toronto, while the population of Vancouver is only 150,000, against Toronto's 450,000. Vancouver is only 27 years of age and Toronto is about 100. Toronto is in the richest and most fertile province of the Dominion, which has a population of 2,500,000, while Vancouver has had to fight for a place amid stern and forbidding Rocky Mountains, with a provincial population of only 400,000.

They further claim that the land tax is logically correct, since all advantages of improved social utilities are reflected in the increased value of the land. The value of the land a man desires exclusive possession of, they say, is the true measure of what society does for the individual unit, and all of it should be paid over to society. Any part of that public value, that is allowed to go into private pockets, constitutes a robbery of society, and any private value that is taken by taxation for public use, is a robbery of the citizen.

When we come to think of it, it is the true land value which is the public value, and improvement value which is the private one. To tax land value is to take for society, social property. To tax improvement value is to take private property for public use. However, it is the practical working out of theory which proves or disproves its value. More than a little interest will therefore be taken in the solution of Vancouver's problem. At present that city's lands are assessed at 60 per cent. of their value, and the tax rate is 22 mills. Will Vancouver adopt the apparently simple, though no doubt obnoxious expedient of raising the assessment value if need be to 100 per cent., and the tax rate to whatever may be necessary, or will it revert to taxation of improvements?

THE MASTER STATESMAN

George Harvey, the editor of the North American Review, writes under this title of the British Premier in the current number of that journal. He places Mr. Asquith in the very forefront of British statesmen. He says: "He will undoubtedly live in history as the conductor of a profound constitutional revolution to a successful issue, and probably, as we have already suggested, as the true conservator of an empire's very existence in the time of gravest peril. As a man we should say that to the minds of many he, like Sir Robert Peel, appears and is likely to continue to appear as one who would have been the greatest of all British Premiers if his personality had equalled his performances, while to the few brought into closest contact he bears out to perfection the impression of Charles Fox expressed by Gibbon when he "admired the powers of a superior man blended with the softness and simplicity of a child —a human being perfectly exempt from the taint of malevolence, vanity or falsehood."

The weakness he finds in his personality is that he makes the mistake of doing things, or appearing to do them, too easily; one gets almost a sense of monotony from a survey of his unvarying triumphs. He has himself always in hand, knows to a nicety just what he is going to say and how he is going to say it, and he never for a moment is in any danger of being carried out of himself. The immenseness of his achievements is lost in what looks almost like the operation of a natural law. He has never been known to make a bad speech, or to be at a loss for an effective retort or unable to bring all his guns into action at a moment's notice. Regarding his speeches Colonel Harvey says: "In every department—whether he is answering a supplementary question, or unfolding a bill, or winding up a debate—there is nobody in the House of Commons who approaches his level of sustained excellence. However, damaging the attack upon the government, there is a cheer of perfect confidence when Asquith gets up to answer it. There is no appeal to passion in what he says, no loose generalities, no attempt at rhetoric, nothing over-subtle or bewildering. The sentences roll out with hammer-like precision; the points are direct and unambiguous; the argument never wanders; the humor is plain and intelligible; the language is massive without being ornate, and virile without being violent; one gets the effect of some perfect machine producing an almost effortless fusilade of logical ordered, deadly dialects."

The writer of the article is of the opinion that England approached very near to civil war in the fight with the Lords, and in the labor revolution that, in holding up the railroads, planned to paralyze the country and starve the inhabitants. Regarding the crisis of two years ago, he says: "He flung politics to the winds; he never stopped to think how his action might influence voters; he turned his eyes squarely to the immediate needs, and, by a stroke of matured decisiveness, by declaring promptly and firmly that, if necessary, he would employ all the resources of the government to keep the railways in running order, he averted the most appalling disaster that could befall a densely populated land. All Englishmen of all parties and classes, strikers and non-strikers, employers and employed rich and poor, but the poor especially, incurred a heavy debt of gratitude to their Prime Minister on that occasion for the grim determination which he manifested in facing and quelling a storm which would have daunted and might easily have overwhelmed one not made of the stoutest fibre."

TAMMANY IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

W. W. Baer, writing in the Vancouver Sun, tells of the methods adopted by the Conservative Tammany of British Columbia:

Every man in government employ must be a Conservative and work in the interests of the Bowser-McBride administration, with a few exceptions in the case of those whose services cannot be dispensed with because they cannot be replaced. Thus, road superintendents, road bosses, fire wardens, constables and others whose duties take them much among the masses, must be vote getters before they are anything else and whether they are competent to do anything else or not. And they must deliver the goods, or, if they do not, they must give satisfactory explanation why. With road superintendents the chief duty is to see that only such men are employed in subordinate positions as can "deliver" and with the road foreman it is to apply the screws, whether by argument, bribes, of employment or promotion or refusal of all these unless the miserable applicant can swear fealty to the government party.

In many rural constituencies there is road work for anyone who joins the Conservative association, and none for those who refuse. No! I must correct that statement. In some of the districts there are not enough Conservatives open to employment to use up the vast sums appropriated for road work in a loyal constituency. But if, in such cases, Liberals are employed, they are constantly badgered and made to feel uncomfortable under the charge of disloyalty to the party that "feeds" them, and I know some who have deserted from road work rather than be humiliated by those shameless taunts.

Everyone who joins a Conservative association makes oath that he will do two things. He must pledge himself to support the party "right or wrong" and he must agree to "hear everything and bring reports to the executive, but tell nothing that he hears within the sacred precincts." There are minor obligations of course but these two stand first. It has often been a source of wonder and curiosity to Liberal rurals, to discover that what he has confided to his neighbor the day before is known next day to all his neighbors, but the explanation is that his confidante had heard every thing, reported and said nothing. Besides this a system of espionage has been inaugurated and Liberals employed on government work who have been tracked to Liberal meetings, have been confronted with the "cold shoulder," and in a few days "reluctantly" dismissed from their gangs.

Men are selected for positions of trust and responsibility, not for their competency as road bosses nor because of any technical knowledge of the art or science of road making, but because they have hearts of oak and gizzards of steel with the combined cowardice and courage necessary to carry out the system to its deplorable details. I have, myself, heard road bosses explain to Liberals, complaining of their inability to be placed on road gangs, that they knew the reason and could themselves apply the remedy. It is true the system is becoming intolerable even to those who operate it and are bound by it—at least by many of them. But the fact remains that it is the system, and woe be unto every man who dares to show the chafing spirit under its exactions.

THE PEOPLE RULE

The London (England) Economist, one of the most influential and widely read British journals, in referring to the political situation, tells the Conservative leaders that if they are wise they will make the best terms they can for Ulster, and make up their minds with regard to the reform of the House of Lords, and the amendment of the Parliament Act that the two great parties must be placed on an equal footing, in regard to legislation. It is too late to oppose the rule of majorities, too late to defeat the purposes of representative democracy. We may not like, we certainly shall not like, everything that is done in its name, or by the authority of the representatives of the people. But the true wisdom of Conservatives is to endeavor to guide and moderate, not to thwart or destroy, the forces of democracy. If they adopt and support the methods of Sir Edward Carson, the most they can hope for is a period of disorder and anarchy, from which property, privilege, constitutional conventions, and legal sanctions will not emerge unscathed.

CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION

In every line of construction in which Portland cement has been used, remarks the Canadian-Engineer, the first objection raised by the layman has been that such skilled construction methods are necessary that frequent failures are likely. Because concrete looks so unstable when first poured, and takes years to reach its be condemned even by city commissioners. So, it is not surprising to find many officials vigorously opposing concrete roads because "it requires such a lot of care and watching to get them laid right."

But are faulty construction methods or dishonest contracting any more fatal to concrete roads than to roads of any other type? We hold no brief for concrete roads. As a matter of fact, we believe they will have their limitations of usefulness, just as have macadam and brick. But some of the concrete roads that have been built are so excellent that concrete—properly constructed—must be given place as a paving material worthy of consideration along with other materials. It must not be tabooed merely on account of poor contracting being likely to ruin the road.

Dishonest, carelessness or incompetent construction can as readily spoil sheet asphalt, brick, bituminous macadam or other pavements, as it can concrete.

MUNICIPAL SKATING RINK

Up in Chatham the Principal of the Central School has introduced the idea of establishing a municipal skating rink in the school yard. The scheme is attracting attention in other places besides Chatham. The Stratford Beacon in a recent editorial had the following:—

"In Chatham the principal of the Central school is asking the city council for an appropriation to establish a municipal skating rink at one of the public schools reserved for pupils during school hours, and thrown open to the public in the evenings. It would not cost very much, and the board of education thought it would be better for the council to undertake it. It does not seem unreasonable to ask the establishment of a municipal skating rink any more than the providing of public playgrounds for children and youths must have recreation in winter as well as in summer. But is there not a danger of going too far with the idea of the community providing for the needs of young people? We shall soon have nothing left for the parents to do except to pay through taxes for every want of the child except clothing and shelter. The idea of public provision is a good one, but it seems possible of being extended too much."

The question is remarks the Chatham Planet. Can a municipality go too far in providing means of assisting parents to bring up their children? Of course, no municipal legislation can provide conditions that will relieve a parent from responsibility, but wise action will often make it easier for parents to do their duty, and also insure protection and guidance for children whose parents are careless or indifferent as to their welfare.

Young people must have recreation, as all scientists will agree. It is just as important to build up the physical natures of children as it is to improve the mental. The parents of Stratford as a whole may be more careful in bringing up their children than they are in Chatham—thus making Stratford an exceptional city—but if conditions there are anything like the conditions in Chatham, the suggestion of such a scheme as a municipal skating rink, especially when established at nominal cost, is certainly worthy of public attention.

MINISTER OF ELECTIONS

The Regina Leader, in referring to Bob Rogers' prominence in the recent bye-elections says that it is a new thing for Canada to have a Minister of Elections. New things are frequently beneficial, but from the national standpoint, and in the light of what has already happened, the term can scarcely be applied to this particular departure. Mr. Rogers was taken into the Cabinet as the Premier's expert in election craft. He took up the work of this "portfolio" with eagerness and a full appreciation of his opportunities and with no condition imposed by the Premier save that he should accomplish the purpose for which he was appointed. And what has been the result? Bribery, intimidation, personation, illegal arrest of citizens the perversion of justice. Canada has her Minister of Elections. What a price she is paying for him in national disgrace!

ABOLISHING HOME STUDIES

The question of Home Lessons is receiving attention in England. It is reported that in a number of public day schools in and around London the one topic of late among the masters and mistresses has been the great general improvement in the pupil's home work. What accounted for it?

One teacher said: "The question of copying lessons at home is scarcely possible, as the pupils are all scattered, and home work has to be handed in on arrival in the morning at school." But there is a solution to the problem. The fathers of most of the boys and girls are business or professional men; and there are telephones in nearly all their houses. Some of the more brilliant boys are sure to be accessible by them, and can thus be consulted every evening by their class fellows.

When their parents are at dinner comes the children's chance. They steal up to the 'phone and obtain from an obliging clever fellow-pupil the correct version of the Latin exercise, or find out the mistakes in their own French exercises. The telephone operations on certain circuits have the benefit of a sort of university extension course. The wires buzz with inquiries: "I say, Tompkins, what's the square of the cube root of 3 over X?"

We would not like to say remarks the Kingston Standard that this dodge is used in Canada, but it may be. Anyway, it suggests the idea that home lessons may not be the educational benefit they are supposed to be; they may be in the nature of a farce if not of a fraud.

TIRED OF IRISH QUESTION

"Westminster," a clever English correspondent, says Premier Asquith made it clear on Saturday the Government's position in regard to Home Rule. There is no intention of allowing the Liberal party to be intimidated by threats, and they will not sacrifice the aspirations of four-fifths of the Irish people to the demands of Ulster.

No insuperable barrier will, however, be placed in the way of interchange of views on the part of party leaders, in order to bring about a United Ireland. This is regarded by the Conservatives as a diplomatic loophole by which Mr. Bonar Law and his party may escape from the toils of the firebrands Carson and his friends and return to the paths of sanity and common sense.

The Conservative leader is due to speak Wednesday, and it is hoped that he will accept the situation, for the whole country is thoroughly wearied of the question and generally recognizes that Ireland has been too long oppressed. There are many difficulties yet to be overcome in this connection, but they are not beyond the resources of statesmanship.

GERMANY'S GROWTH

An important work on the progress of Germany and its social development during the last fifty years has just been published by Dr. Helfferich, the director of the German Bank. The most satisfactory feature in this record is the increase in Germany's population. In 1816 Germany had 25 million inhabitants; in 1888, 48 millions; and in 1912, 66 millions. It is true that the percentage of births has fallen from 40.7 per 1,000 to 29.5. In spite of this the proportional yearly increase in Germany is larger than in any other European country, Russia included, and is nearly 2 per cent more than in Great Britain, although the death rate in Germany is still higher than in that country. In fact, the increase in the German population is progressive. In the period 1881-90 this increase amounted to 5½ millions; in 1891-1900 to 7.3 millions, and in the next ten years to 8 2-3 millions. This was partly due to the decrease in emigration as well as to the rapid decline in the death rate. It is estimated that in 1950 Germany will have nearly one hundred million people. In these circumstances it is not surprising that the vital statistics of the country as explained in Dr. Helfferich's book, should cause serious misgivings in France.

"That is where the main trouble lies, Captain. Major McDonald seems to be completely under the control of Mrs. Dupont. He is apparently afraid of her for some reason. That is what Miss Molly spoke to me about. We were on the side porch at the hotel talking while the dancers were at supper—it was the only opportunity the girl had to get away—and Mrs. Dupont and her husband came into the parlor—"

"Her husband? Good Lord, I thought her husband was dead."

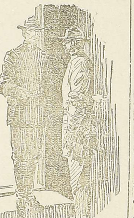
"He isn't. He's a tin-horn gambler, known in the saloons as 'Reb,' a big duffer, wearing a black beard."

"All right, go on; I don't know him."

"Well, I stepped into the room to keep the two apart, leaving the girl alone outside. We had a bit of talk before I got the room cleared, and when I went back to the porch, Miss Molly had gone."

"Dropped over the railing to the ground."

"That's what I thought at the time, sir, but what happened to her after



"May I Ask If Major McDonald Has Returned to the Post?"

that? She didn't return to the hotel; she was not at the dance hall, and hasn't come back to the post."

"The hell you say! Are you sure?"

"I am; I searched for her high and low before I left, and she could not get in here without passing the guard-house."

Kane stared into the Sergeant's face a moment, and then out across the parade ground. A yellow light winked in the Colonel's office, occasionally blotted out by the passing figure of a sentry. The officer came to a prompt decision.

"The 'old man' is over there yet, grubbing at some papers. Come on over, and tell him what you have told me. I believe the lass will turn up all right, but it does look rather queer."

The Colonel and the Post Adjutant were in the little office, busy over a pile of papers. Both officers glanced up, resenting the interruption, as Kane entered, Hamlin following. The former explained the situation briefly, while the commandant leaned back in his chair, his keen eyes studying the younger man.

"Very well, Captain Kane," he said shortly, as the officer's story ended. "We shall have to examine into this, of course, but will probably discover the whole affair a false alarm. There is, at present, no necessity for alarming any others. Sergeant, kindly explain to me why Miss McDonald should have come to you in her distress?"

Hamlin stepped forward, and told the story again in detail, answering the Colonel's questions frankly.

"This, then, was the only time you have met since your arrival?"

"Yes, sir."

"And this Mrs. Dupont? You have had a previous acquaintance with her?"

"Some years ago."

"You consider her a dangerous woman?"

"I know her to be utterly unscrupulous, sir. I am prepared to state that she is here under false pretenses, claiming to be a niece of Major McDonald's. I do not know her real purpose, but am convinced it is an evil one."

The Colonel shook his head doubtfully, glancing at the silent adjutant.

"That remains to be proven, Sergeant. I have, of course, met the lady, and found her pleasant and agreeable as a companion. Deuced pretty, too; hey, Benson? Why do you say she masquerades as McDonald's niece?"

"Because her maiden name was Carson and the Major's sister married a man named Counts."

"There might have been another marriage. Surely McDonald must know."

"Miss Molly says not, Colonel. He has known nothing of his sister for over twenty years, and accepted this woman on her word."

"Well, well! Interesting situation; hey, Benson? Like to get to the bottom myself. Damme if it don't sound like a novel. However, the thing before us right now is to discover what has become of Miss McDonald." He straightened up in his chair, then leaned across the table. "Captain Kane, make a thorough examination of McDonald's quarters first. If the girl is not found there, detail two men to accompany Sergeant Hamlin on a search of the town."

"Very well, sir; come on, Sergeant."

"Just a moment—if we find the trail leads beyond the town are we authorized to continue?"

"Certainly, yes. Adjutant, write out the order. Anything more?"

"I should prefer two men of my own troop, sir, mounted."

"Very well; see to it, Captain."

The two men walked down past the dark row of officers' houses, the Sergeant a step to the rear on the narrow cinder path. McDonald's quarters were as black as the others, and there was no response from within when Kane rapped at the door. They tried the rear entrance with the same result—the place was plainly unoccupied.

"Pick out your men, Hamlin," the Captain said sternly, "and I'll call the stable guard."

Ten minutes later, fully equipped for field service, the three troopers circled the guard-house and rode rapidly down the dark road toward the yellow lights of the town. The Sergeant explained briefly the cause of the expedition, and the two troopers, experienced soldiers, asked no unnecessary questions. Side by side the three men rode silently into the town, and Hamlin swung down from his saddle at the door of the dance hall. With a word to the guard he crossed the floor to intercept Mrs. Dupont. The latter regarded his approach with astonishment, her hand on Captain Barrett's blue sleeve.

"Certainly not," she replied rather sharply to his first question. "I am not in charge of Miss McDonald. She is no doubt amusing herself somewhere; possibly lying down over at the hotel; she complained of a headache earlier in the evening. Why do you come to me?"

"Yes," broke in the Captain, "that is what I wish to know, Hamlin. By what authority are you here?"

"The orders of the Colonel commanding, sir," respectfully, yet not permitting his glance to leave the woman's face. "You insist then, madam, that you know nothing of the girl's disappearance?"

"No!" defiantly, her cheeks red.

"Nor of what has become of Connors, or your ranch manager?"

She shrugged her shoulders, endeavoring to smile.

"The parties mentioned are of very small interest to me."

"And Major McDonald," he insisted, utterly ignoring the increasing anger of the officer beside her. "Possibly you were aware of his departure?"

"Yes," more deliberately; "he told me of his orders, and bade me good-bye later. So fas ar Connors is concerned, he was to have the carriage here for us at two o'clock. Is that all, Mr. Sergeant Hamlin?"

"You better make it all," threatened the Captain belligerently, "before I lose my temper at this infernal impertinence."

Hamlin surveyed the two calmly, confident that the woman knew more than she would tell, and utterly indifferent as to the other.

"Very well," he said quietly, "I will learn what I desire elsewhere. I shall find Miss McDonald, and discover what has actually occurred."

"My best wishes, I am sure," and the lady patted the Captain's arm gently. "We are losing this waltz."

There was but one course for Hamlin to pursue. He had no trail to follow, only a vague suspicion that these plotters were in some way concerned in the mysterious disappearance. Thus far, however, they had left behind no clue to their participation. Moreover he was seriously handicapped by ignorance of any motive. Why should they desire to gain possession of the girl? It could not be money, or the hope of ransom. What then? Was it some accident which had involved her in the toils prepared for another? If so, were those unexpected orders for Major McDonald a part of the conspiracy, or had their receipt complicated the affair? The Sergeant was a soldier, not a detective, and could only follow a straight road in his investigation. He must circle widely until he found some trail to follow as patiently as an Indian. There would be tracks left somewhere, if he could only discover them. If this was a hasty occurrence, in any way an accident, something was sure to be left uncovered, some slip reveal the method. He would trace the movements of the father first, and then search the saloons and gambling dens for the two men. Though unsuccessful with Mrs. Dupont, he knew how to deal with such as they.

The stage agent was routed out of bed and came to the door, revolver in hand, startled and angry.

"Who?" he repeated. "Major McDonald? How the hell should I know? Some officer went out—yes; heavy set man with a mustache. I didn't pay any attention to him; had government transportation. There were two other passengers, both men, ranchers, I reckon; none in the station at all. What's that, Jane?"

A woman's voice spoke from out the darkness behind.

"Was the soldier asking if Major McDonald went East on the coach, Sam?"

"Sure; what do you know about it?"

"Why, I was outside when they started," she explained, "and the man in uniform wasn't the Major. I know him by sight, for he's been down here a dozen times when I was at the desk. This fellow was about his size, but dark and stoop-shouldered."

"And the others?" asked Hamlin eagerly.

"I didn't know either of them, only I noticed one had a black beard."

"A very large, burly fellow?"

"No, I don't think so. I didn't pay special attention to any of them, only to wonder who the officer was, 'cause I never remembered seein' him here before at Dodge, but, as I recollect, the fellow with a beard was rather undersized; had a shaggy buffalo-skin cap on."

Plainly enough the man was not Dupont, and McDonald had not departed on the stage, while some other, pretending to be he, possibly wearing his clothes to further the deceit, had taken the seat reserved in the coach. Baffled, bewildered by this unexpected discovery, the Sergeant swung back into his saddle, not knowing which way to turn.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Dead Body.

That both McDonald and his daughter were involved in this strange puzzle was already clear. The disappearance of the one was as mysterious as that of the other. Whether the original conspiracy had centered about the Major, and Miss Molly had merely been drawn into the net through accident, or whether both were destined as victims from the first, could not be determined by theory. Indeed the Sergeant could evolve no theory, could discover no purpose in the outrage. Convinced that Dupont and his wife were the moving spirits, he yet possessed no satisfactory reason for charging them with the crime, for which there was no apparent object.

Nothing remained to be done but search the town, a blind search in the hope of uncovering some trail. That crime had been committed—either murder or abduction—was evident; the two had not dropped thus suddenly out of sight without cause. Nor did it seem possible they could have been whisked away without leaving some trace behind. The town was accustomed to murder and sudden death; the echo of revolver shots would create no panic, awaken no alarm, and yet the place was small, and there was little likelihood that any deed of violence would pass long unnoticed. With a few words of instruction, and hasty descriptions of both Dupont and Connors, Hamlin sent his men down the straggling street to drag out the occupants of shack and tent, riding himself to the blazing front of the "Poodle Dog."

Late as the hour was, the saloon and the gambling rooms above were all crowded. Hamlin plunged into the mass of men, pressing passage back and forth, his eyes searching the faces, while he eagerly questioned those with whom he had any acquaintance. Few among these could recall to mind either "Reb" or his boon companion, and even those who did retained no recollection of having seen the two lately. The bartenders asserted that neither man had been there that night, and the dealers above were equally positive. The city marshal, encountered outside, remembered Dupont, and had seen him at the hotel three hours before, but was positive the fellow had not been on the streets since. Connors he did not know, but if the man was Major McDonald's driver, then he was missing all right, for Captain Barrett had to employ a livery man to drive Mrs. Dupont back to the fort. No, there was no lady with her; he was sure, for he had watched them get into the carriage.

The troopers were no more fortunate in their results, but had succeeded in stirring up greater excitement during their exploration, several irate individuals, roughly aroused from sleep, exhibiting fighting propensities, which had cost one a blackened eye, and the other the loss of a tooth. Both, however, had enjoyed the occasion, and appeared anxious for more. Having exhausted the possibilities of the town, the soldiers procured lanterns, and, leaving the horses behind, began exploring the prairie. In this labor they were assisted by the marshal, and a few aroused citizens hastily impressed into a posse. The search was a thorough one, but the ground nearby was so cut up by hoofs and wheels as to yield no definite results. Hamlin, obsessed with the belief that whatever had occurred had been engineered by Dupont, and recalling the fact that the man was once a ranchman somewhere to the southward, jumped to the conclusion that the fellow would naturally head in that direction, seeking familiar country in which to hide. With the two troopers he pushed on toward the river, choosing the upper ford as being the most likely choice of the fugitives. The trampled mud of the north bank exhibited fresh tracks, but none he could positively identify. However, a party on horseback had crossed within a few hours, and, without hesitation, he waded out into the stream.

The gray of dawn was in the sky as the three troopers, soaked to the waist, crept up the south bank and studied the trail. Behind them the yellow lanterns still bobbed about between the river and town, but there was already sufficient light to make visible the signs underfoot. Horsemen had climbed the bank, the hoof marks yet damp where water had drained from dripping fetlocks, and had instantly broken into a lope. A moment's glance proved this to Hamlin as he crept back and forth, scrutinizing each hoof mark intently.

"Five in the party," he said soberly. "Three mustangs and two American horses, cavalry shod. About three hours ahead of us." He straightened up, his glance peering into the gray mists. "I reckon it's likely our outfit, but we'll never catch them on foot. They'll be behind the sand-dunes before this. Before we go back, boys, we'll see if they left the trail where it turns west."

The three ran forward, paying little heed until they reached the edge of the ravine. Here the beaten trail swerved sharply to the right. Fifty feet beyond, the marks of horses' hoofs appeared on the sloping bank, Hamlin sprang down to where the marks disappeared around the edge of a large bowlder. His hand on the stone, he stopped suddenly with quick indrawing of breath, staring down at a motionless figure lying almost at his feet. The man, roughly dressed, lay on his face, a bullet wound showing above one ear, the back of his neck caked with blood. The Sergeant, mastering his first sense of horror, turned him over and gazed upon the ghastly face of Major McDonald.

"My God, they've murdered him here!" he exclaimed. "Shot him down from behind. Look, men. No; stand back, and don't muss up the tracks. There are foot-prints here—Indians, by heaven! Three of them Indians!"

"Some plainsmen wear moccasins."

"They don't walk that way—toes in; and see this hair in McDonald's fingers—that's Indian, sure. Here is where a horse fell, and slid down the bank. Isn't that a bit of broken feather caught in the bush, Carroll? Bring it over here."

The three bent over the object.

"Well, what do you say? You men are both plainsmen."

"Cheyenne," returned Carroll promptly. "But what the hell are they doing here?"

Hamlin shook his head.

"It will require more than guessing to determine that," he said sternly. "And there is only one way to find out. That fellow was a Cheyenne all right, and there were three of them and two whites in the party—see here; the prints of five horses ridden, and one animal led. That will be the one McDonald had. They went straight up the opposite bank of the ravine. If they leave a trail like that we can ride after them full speed."

Carroll had been bending over the dead officer and now glanced up.

"There's sand just below, Sergeant," he said. "That's why they are so darn reckless here."

"Of course; they'll hide in the dunes, and the sooner we're after them the better. Wade, you remain with the body; Carroll and I will return to the fort and report. We'll have to have more men—Wasson if I can get him—and equipment for a hard ride. Come on, Jack."

They waded the river, and ran through the town, shouting their discovery to the marshal and his posse as they passed. Twenty minutes later Hamlin stood before the Colonel, hastily telling the story. The latter listened intently, gripping the arms of his chair.

"Shot from behind, hey?" he ejaculated, "and his clothing stolen. Looks like a carefully planned affair, Sergeant; sending that fellow through to Ripley was expected to throw us off the track. That's why they were so careless covering their trail; expected to have several days' start. It is my notion they never intended to kill him; had a row of some kind, or else Mac tried to get away. Any trace of the girl?"

"No; but she must have been there."

"So I think; got mixed up in the affair some way, and they have been compelled to carry her off to save themselves. Do you know why they were after Mac?"

"No, sir."

"Well, I do; he carried thirty thousand dollars."

"What?"

"He was acting paymaster. The money came in from Wallace last evening, and he was ordered to take it to Ripley at once."

Hamlin drew in his breath quickly in surprise.

"Who knew about that, sir?"

"No one but the Adjutant, and Major McDonald—not even the orderly."

The eyes of officer and soldier met.

"Do you suppose he could have told her?" the former asked in sudden suspicion.

"That would be my theory, sir. But it is useless to speculate. We have no proof, no means of forcing her to confess. The only thing for us to do is to trail those fugitives. I need another man—a scout—Wasson, if he can be spared—and rations for three days."

The Colonel hesitated an instant, and then rose, placing a hand on Hamlin's arm.

"I'll do it for Miss McDonald, but not for the money," he said slowly. "I expect orders every hour for your troop, and Wasson is detailed for special service. But damn it, I'll take the responsibility—go on, and run those devils down."

Hamlin turned to the door; then wheeled about.

"You know this man Dupont, Colonel?"

"Only by sight."

"Any idea where he used to run cattle?"

"Wait a minute until I think. I heard McDonald telling about him one night at the club, something Mrs. Dupont had let slip, but I didn't pay much attention at the time. Seems to me, though, it was down on the Canadian. No, I have it now—Buffalo Creek; runs into the Canadian. Know such a stream?"

"I've heard of it; in west of the North Fork somewhere."

"You think it was Dupont, then?"

"I haven't a doubt that he is in the affair, and that the outfit is headed for that section. I don't know, sir, where those Indians came from, or how they happened to be up here, but I believe they belong to Black Kettle's band of Cheyennes. His bunch is down below the Canadian, is it not, sir?"

"Yes."

"Dupont must be friendly with them, and this coup has been planned for some time. Last night was the chance they have been waiting for. The only mistake in their plans has been the early discovery because of Miss Molly's disappearance. They have gone away careless, expecting two or three days' start, and they will only have a few hours. We'll run them down, with good luck, before they cross the Cimarron. You have no further instructions, sir?"

"No, nothing, Sergeant. You're an old hand, and know your business, and there is no better scout on the plains than Sam Wasson. Good-bye, and good luck."

CHAPTER XXIV.

In Pursuit.

The four men, heavily armed, and equipped for winter service, rode up the bank of the ravine to the irregularity of plain beyond. The trail, leading directly south into the solitudes, was easily followed, and Wasson, slightly in advance of the others, made no attempt to check his horse, content to lean forward, his keen eyes marking every sign. Scarcely a word was exchanged, since Hamlin had explained what had occurred as they crossed the river. Hardly less interested than the Sergeant, the sober-faced scout concentrated every energy on the pursuit, both men realizing the necessity of haste. Not only would the trail be difficult after they attained the sand belt, but, if snow fell, would be utterly blotted out. And the dull, murky sky threatened snow, the sharp wind having already veered to the northwest. All about stretched a dull, dead picture of desolation, a dun-colored plain, unrelieved by vegetation, matching the skies above, extending in every direction through weary leagues of dismal loneliness. The searching eye caught no relief from desolate sameness, drear monotony. Nowhere was there movement, or any semblance of life. Behind, the land was broken by ravines, but in every other direction it stretched level to the horizon, except that far off southward arose irregular ridges of sand, barren, ugly blotches, colorless, and forever changing formation under the beating of a ceaseless wind. It was desert, across which not even a snake crawled, and no wing of migrating bird beat the leaden sky above.

The marks of their horses' hoofs cutting sharply into the soil, told accurately the fugitives' rate of progress and the pursuers swept forward with caution, anxious to spare their mounts and to keep out of vision themselves until nightfall. Their success depended largely on surprise, and the confidence of those ahead that they were unpursued. Wasson expressed the situation exactly, as the four halted a moment at an unexpectedly-discovered water-hole.

YOUTH'S COMPANION IN EVERY FAMILY

Because it is unusual, and no other source can supply the same kind of reading. The fact and fiction are novel, and every line is fit to read aloud. A year of The Youth's Companion as it is today is of inexhaustible entertainment and benefit to the family. In quantity, it provides more than any other American monthly periodical—and is the more appreciated because it comes fifty-two times a year instead of twelve.

The Companion as it is today, enlarged, and broadened in scope, including the Family Page, the Boys' Page, and the Girls' Page as departments with eight splendid serials and 250 shorter stories, the accurate and impartial editorials, Science and Current Events, makes a volume of matter that touches every genuine interest of the family.

So carefully is it edited, so varied is its contents, that a family would be well supplied with entertaining fiction, up-to-date information and wholesome fun, if no other periodicals entered the home.

If you are not familiar with The Companion as it is today, let us send you sample copies containing chapters from Frank Tillie Pollock's great Canadian serial, "The Timber Treasure," and the Announcement for 1914.

New subscribers who send $2.25 for the fifty-two issues of 1914 will receive free the remaining issues of 1913, and a copy of The Companion Practical Home Calendar in addition. The Youth's Companion, 144 Berkley St., Boston, Mass.

GOLDEN RULES FOR STREET TRAFFIC

These "Ten Golden Rules of Safety" have been prepared by Peter M. Hoffman, Coroner of Chicago, for the protection of pedestrians:—

Look at it from other fellow's viewpoint.

Co-operate with him to use the streets, sidewalks, cars and buildings on the equal rights basis of traffic.

Pedestrians on the streets should give an equal right to automotiles, street cars or other pedestrians.

Owners and operators of automobiles should respect the rights of others. The pedestrians on the streets have as much right to the use of the street as you have, and your forcing him to submit to your domination will call for drastic legislation on car-users.

Mr. Business Man, you may be the brightest man in town in all other ways, yet if you get in front of an approaching car or street car, which is not a respecter of persons, you will get hurt just as much as the man in the middle of the block walks off.

Owners and operators of auto trucks, see that your trucks are operated more carefully, especially in the congested districts and in the vicinity of schools, as the daily toll of injuries to children will force severe penalty if the remedy of carefulness is not applied at once.

Everyone stop, look and think safety before you cross a congested street or pass behind an automobile or car or wagon; always see what is on the other side of the object you are passing. Cross the street on a cross walk.

To all users of the street: Do not crowd pedestrians into a place of danger with your automobile, wagon or street car; or dash into a crowd on a crosswalk in the absence of the crossing officer, or even if the officer is at that crossing and gives you the signal to proceed. Go carefully and safely.

To all users of the street: Remember the children and the aged. You were a child once and know how much you looked up to your elders and followed their example and depended upon them. Help children by your example of safety, carefulness, and assistance to them, and also the aged, as you will probably reach that advanced state in the future.

MEN STARVE IN RUSH FOR GOLD

Ottawa, Oct. 24—Men, gaunt for want of food and hollow-eyed from lack of sleep, staggering along mountain passes and wading perilous mountain streams in quest of gold, men starving to death beside the trails, others drowned in rivers or swallowed up in crevasses, the survivors in many cases arriving at their destination only to find all available claims already staked, are the tales brought back to Ottawa by Dr. D. D. Cairns of the Geological survey, of the rush to the new Alaskan gold field at Chisana.

Described by Dr. Cairnes as the greatest gold rush since the historic one to the Klondike, all hope there is no guarantee that the camp will prove anything like the find the Klondike did, the scenes portrayed those which attended the former discovery. Numbers of lives have already been sacrificed, the want of provisions accounting for the great er number of these, and even now the greater part of the inhabitants of the country are living on pharmacy, birds which they knock over with sticks or stones, and which are fortunately plentiful.

The Chisana field, popularly known as Shushana, is situated on the Chisbana river, 100 miles southwest of Dawson, and only 20 miles from the Canadian border. Consequently, there are more Canadians there now than there are Americans. As has first been told, it was first discovered by an Indian known simply as Joe, who told two white men, William James and his partner Nelson, about it. James and Nelson are now speeding the proceeds of their first year's work in the United States. When the news of the discovery became known a rush over five miles frozen ground ensued. One of those took a number of the gold seekers over the Stoll Pass, a dangerous mountain trail, in which crevasses several perished. Others came by way of the Tanana and White rivers, by Coffee Creek and Lake Kluane, poling boats pack horses and dogs furnishing the means of transit.

Food was scarce with those who came in, and is scarcer still now. The cost of living was never higher than in Chisana, where salt, flour and even oats for horses cost $2 per pound. Nothing other than beans was cheaper for less than $1 a pound, and for once the necessaries of life are in no more highly than the luxuries. Even at these figures there is practically no food for sale, and many of the gold seekers after starving up to the limit of endurance, have finally given up and gone out.

As to the value of the strike, Dr. Cairnes states that there was plenty of gold dust in evidence, though operations have not been sufficiently extended to prove the camp a permanent field.

WEDDING BELLS

CLARKE—O'REILLY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Martin's church, Emsmore, on Tuesday, October 21st when Miss Agnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Con O'Reilly, Emsmore, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Henry Clark, of Lindsay.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick. The bride, who was nicely attired in a tailored suit of blue, with hat to match, was attended by her sister, Miss Mae, who wore a tailor made suit of brown, with hat to match, while Mr. Joseph Kearns, of Lindsay acted as groomsman.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Mary A. Crooch. After the wedding ceremony the happy couple, accompanied by a host of friends, motored to the home of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding breakfast was awaiting them.

This afternoon and evening was spent in music and dancing. The many beautiful presents signify the high esteem in which the young couple are held. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold watch and fob, to the bridesmaid a gold locket and chain, and to the groomsman a gold stick pin.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will reside on Queen-st., Lindsay and begin their married life with the best wishes of their many friends.

ENGINEER MURPHY VISITS LINDSAY

This morning Mr. John Murphy, Engineer of the Board of Railway Commissioners, visited Lindsay for the purpose of looking over the pole situation under instructions from the Board in connection with the town's application re the removal of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Co's poles from off Kent-st.

In company with Mr. T. H. Stinson, the Engineer looked into the conditions existing on Kent-st., and afterwards visited Russell-st., and also the lane running in rear of the business blocks, on either of which, the town contends, the company could run its wires.

Engineer Murphy gave it as his opinion that the town had a justifiable claim and one for justifiable pressing. He will make an immediate report to the Railway Board—a report which will be a very favorable one for the town.

Human Bones Were Unearthed

Peterboro Examiner: A quantity of human bones was unearthed this morning on the property of the Vermont Marble Company, East City. The gruesome find was made by James Conroy while excavating on the east side of the company's building. The bones which are supposed to be of Indian origin, comprise six skulls and a quantity of bones that go to make up the human body.

The bones were found in a heap three feet below the surface. They were removed and placed in a crate. The spot where the skeletons were found is situated a short distance from the lake. It is supposed that the locality was once the camping place of a band of redskins. How the bodies came to be interred at that particular spot is only a matter of conjecture. The excavation was made for the purpose of securing a quantity of sand for use in the marble works, when the bones were uncovered. They were in a badly shattered condition and bore evidence of hard usage in the ground for a long period.

Brantford Bank Was Victimized

Brantford, Oct. 27—A forger is again at work in Brantford, and this time the local branch of the Bank of Montreal was the victim. A man who signed a cheque as Paul Farugo has disappeared, and the police are scouring the country in pursuit of the man. The amount of the cheque is unknown. He went to the bank on Saturday and paid a bill with a forged cheque, and it was not until the bank tried to cash it at the bank on which it was drawn that it was discovered that it was not good. The bank authorities are loth to say anything about the matter at present.

OMEMEE HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT

The Omemee High School Commencement and Concert was held on Friday evening (24th). Considering that weather was exceedingly inclement a large crowd was in attendance, and from the attention and interest evinced, a very profitable and pleasant evening's entertainment was enjoyed.

Part (1) of the program was varied,—made by local talent, drills, a well written valedictory address by Miss Maude Laidley, and presentation of Certificates and Diplomas to successful candidates at the recent Department Examinations. Most of the successful students were present and the staff and scholars are much to be congratulated on the splendid showing.

A short play entitled "A Rice Pudding" filled Part (II). The experiences of a "well-meanin' ", but inexperienced "House-wife" as criticized by her Irish maid provoked much laughter.

The proceeds are to be utilized by the school in purchasing books and pictures.

Power Company and Low Water

Peterboro Examiner—The water in the river is exceptionally low and to meet the City's power requirements the Seymour Power Company has been for some time bringing in energy as high as 1815 h.p. The peak load is felt in the evenings generally about eight or nine o'clock, and at this hour the local electric plants have faltered under the demands placed upon them. The Seymour Power Company, with its generating plants at Trenton, Campbellford, Foxton Falls, Frankford, Belleville and other points, easily coped with the situation by falling back upon the rest of their plant when the local supply was unable to carry the load placed upon it.

The rest of their plant and Peterborough manufacturers have been given an uninterrupted service. Even the consumers of power in the persons of householders have been given a continuously satisfactory service, and from this end would not have been aware of the fact that the Ottawa is in such a low and puny proportions that on Saturday night one local plant developed scarcely 100 h.p. It is stated by an authority, whether it is the true explanation or not, that the failure in the water supply is due to injudicious regulation.

Broke Girl's Rib Playing Winkum

Detroit, Oct. 14—When young James Richard hugged vivacious Henrietta Merlbugh so tightly that he cracked one of her ribs, the young lady resented it to the extent that she has started suit against him for $500 damages. It was heard yesterday morning before a jury in Judge Hosmer's court. After an hour's deliberation the jury decided Miss Merlbugh had no cause for action. It all started because the young couple met at a party where "parlor games" were played.

Now, as everybody in the world world knows, "winkum" is a very fascinating parlor game. All the girls sit on chairs in a circle with the boys standing back of them. One boy is "it." That is, he stands behind an empty chair and he winks at the girl of his choice and she must jump from the chair she is sitting on to his. To do so she must dodge the grasp of the man behind her chair, for he will try to hold her.

Well, sir, Henrietta is pretty and dainty and she was sitting right there in James' chair when the boy who was "it" winked. Now James wasn't going to let anybody get his girl—not if he knew it. He grabbed her so tight that—crack—pop, something's busted. Later it turned out to be a rib.

HOW "WINKUM IS PLAYED.

You see, there were a lot of young folks, all 19 or 20 years old, at the party given at 586 Williams avenue. They played "barber" and "doctor," and "postoffice and "winkum," and were having a whole lot of fun when that rib gave way under its unusual strain.

The rib was cracked on the night of May 15, 1912. Since then Miss Merlbugh has changed her name. She is now Mrs. Henrietta Schmill. Her husband-to-be was at the party and now her own brother-in-law is a witness against her in the suit. And James Richard also is married. And he has a son, one of the Knest kids—but, let's get back to the suit.

Richard explained in court this morning how "winkum" is played.

"You have to be quick or your chair will be empty all the time," he naively testified. "None of the other girls complained of my holding them too tight."

"Barber" is played on a dark room the girls standing behind chairs as barbers, and the fellows being led in by blindfold and seated in the chairs. The game is to grasp the "barber," firmly while she is massaging the face and hold her long enough to kiss her. The game was greatly enjoyed by all present, according to the testimony. The author of "doctor" and "foolish questions and silly answers" was not brought out.

TOOK CANDY TO HER.

Fred Ayers, Detroit, an attorney for Henrietta and Maxwell W. Benjamin is attorney for Richard.

"Did you ever play 'Winkum' before?" Richard was asked.

"Not since I was 12 years old" was the answer.

"Did Miss Merlbugh send to your chair several times?"

"Yes."

"Did she that night tell you that you had hurt her side?"

"No, not until one Sunday I heard she was in the hospital, and went to see her, bringing her a box of candy. Then she told me."

Under cross-examination, Richard said that when he left the girl on the car after the party she laughingly said that he had hurt her and she was going to sue him for damages. Mrs. Schmill described the accident as follows:

HE BLAMED THE CHAIR

"We fellow when the empty chair winked at her, and I grabbed her as quickly as I could. One hand fell on her right shoulder, the other on her left side. They tell me the chair was turned and that was what made her strike her side. If the chair hasn't turned she would have sat down square and no harm could have been done except to jolt the breath out of her. She was on her feet, but I had straightened up yet when I got her. I didn't jerk her back any harder than I did the other girls, and they didn't complain. None of the girls said I was too rough.

"She wrote me a letter after she left the hospital and I went to see her. She told me she was a poor girl and had to work for a living, that I had caused her injury and I ought to pay the doctor and hospital bills. I said I was a poor boy, and had to work for my living as well as she did, but I would pay half. The next thing I knew I got a letter from Judge Aldrich. I explained to the girl and her lawyer that I had not drawn my pay in three weeks, and was saving up to go home to see my mother."

HER SWITCH CAME OFF

"The next I knew," continued Richard, "I was arrested on a capias."

"Didn't you grab hold of one girl by the hair?" asked Judge Aldrich.

"No, I didn't. Her switch caught in my coat and was pulled off. The girl was game and didn't mind it a little fact, it was one of the best jokes of the evening."

Even Judge Aldrich had to laugh with Judge Hosmer and the jury at this.

Advt. Covered Nine Pages

A splendid example of up-to-date business methods is afforded by "The Right House," of Hamilton, which on Friday last published no less than nine full pages of advertising in the Hamilton Spectator setting forth in detail what the establishment has for sale. The occasion is of course a special one, being the seventieth anniversary of the house. All the same, the example of this Hamilton concern is well worthy of being followed by business men in other cities. It used to be "There's nothing like leather." Now "there's nothing like printer's ink."—Kingston Standard.

DIED

BELLINGHAM—At Newmarket, on Friday, October 24, 1913, Grace Ellen Bellingham, aged six years, 3 months and 11 days.

HON. SAM HUGHES IS HOME AGAIN

Ottawa, Oct. 27—Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, who has been in Great Britain and the continent for a couple of months, accompanied by a detachment of Canadian militia officers, returned to Ottawa yesterday. The party witnessed the British Army manoeuvres and also those of the Swiss and French armies.

"Our reception," stated the Minister of Militia in an interview, "was the embodiment of kindness. While no Canadian officers except myself went to Germany, I found there a kindly feeling towards Canada and an amicable sentiment toward Great Britain.

The effect of the trip upon the Canadian officers has been inestimable. They will give lectures in their different localities on the manoeuvres, and the lessons they have learned, but will be careful to avoid comparisons between the armies of different nations. Much interest has been created in Britain with regard to the affairs of the Canadian militia and other dominions are coming into line with Canada in sending officers to the manoeuvres."

Farmers Glad to See Rain

The farmers around this section of the country are more than pleased with the rain which fell the last few days. The dry spell which had been prevalent dried the ground to such an extent that it was impossible to plow some parts of fields. Here and there along the country roads it will be noticed that between headlands a space of some few rods wide were left untilled. These will be softened to such an extent that they can be ploughed and cultivated. One farmer remarked to the Post that one good feature of the dry spells was that great headway was made this year in threshing. The hard ground enabled the owners of machines to move them easily, for it was then a weekly occurrence to be stuck in mud for a day or so.

When Necessity is a Pleasure

The world demands beauty, attire, self respect commends it. Where is the man who does not feel the satisfaction that comes of wearing good clothes? You must have some sort of garment; why not wear those that suggest dignity and good taste?

The suits this year have a tendency to shorter coats, but it will be some time before they will be the only thing worn. While it is necessary for us to stock a full range of the newest cut, with narrower trousers and high cut vests, we bought liberally of the popular medium length coat with roomy trousers Either style we can show you a nice range of tweed and worsted suitings at from $10 to $22

Following along the tendency in suits for shorter coats, there is a demand for shorter overcoats. For street wear is seen the Chesterfield, with and without velvet collar, in 45 and 48 inch lengths. The popular length in a storm ulster being 54 to 57 in. In both styles of overcoats there is a great similarity of choice, the demand being for rough, shaggy natures, in Chinchillas, Whitney and Tweeds. Prices run from $8 to $28 with plenty of stages between. $28

A nice fancy vest would be just the thing to brighten up your suit. We can show you a beautiful range in camel's hair, cashmere finishes and knitted vests, at $3 to $4. Have a look and be convinced.

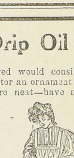
They Don't Drip Oil

The neatest woman that ever lived would consider a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator an ornament in her kitchen. That's because Tubulars are neat—have no oil cups, oil holes or oil tubes to drip. You don't need an oil can for Tubulars.



Tubulars Are Neat

To oil the Dairy Tubular simply lift the top and put in one or two drops and pour a spoonful of oil right down among the gears. The oil stays there. The lubrication is perfect and never forgotten. There is no dripping on the floor. Both men and women appreciate that—and the many other exclusive fine points about Tubulars—fine points other separators don't have. Tubulars double dairy profits and cut the work in half. Compare and see the Tubular—examine it inside and out—next time your in town. Welcome to look at every piece—and the pieces are few because the Tubular is mighty simple.

Old Separators taken in exchange. We sell the Sharples Mechanical Milker.

BRIDE IS NOT BOUND TO "OBEY"

London, October 25.—Miss Elizabeth Colt, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Stanton, Colt, founders of the Spiritual Militant League, is the first bride to make a practical protest against what spiritual militants call "moral indignity to woman" in the marriage service of the Anglican Church.

At her wedding to Thornley C. Gibson, the bride was not asked either to "obey", or to "serve" her husband, and the words for the first time in the Anglican Church, were completely cut out of the marriage service.

An optimist is a man who lays up a little sunshine for a rainy day.

Female Leaves House of Refuge

This morning about six o'clock Catherine Angus, an inmate of the House of Refuge, left that institution and is still at large.

She was missed at the Refuge last Tuesday, and when she made her departure this morning she had no hat or coat. She is about 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighs 245 pounds. Any information concerning her whereabout will be thankfully received by Child Chilton or the Management of the House of Refuge.

This morning Mr. Wm. Fee noticed the woman going towards Bobcaygeon. She crossed the C.P.R. railway bridge, jumped off, and struck off towards Camlachie.

This afternoon Mr. Robertson located the woman near Cambray. She was brought back to the House of Refuge.

Accident to Double Header

An accident occurred to a double header grain train Monday on the G. T. R. about four miles the other side of Cambray. It was coming from Midland, when a defective rail ditched a number of cars. Four or five of them were badly damaged and the grain scattered along the track. The Lindsay auxiliary went to the scene, and during the track clearing operations trains to and from Midland went via Blackwater.

HOME RULE TO BECOME LAW

(Special to The Post.)

LONDON, Oct. 27.—(Through Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Right Hon. H. H. Asquith, Premier Minister, addressed an enthusiastic meeting of his constituents at Ladybank, East Fife, Scotland, Saturday evening. He dealt exclusively with the question of home rule and emphasized the Government intention to carry out the Ulster Parliament Act in order to give Liberal legislation something approaching an equal chance with their opponents. The Government, he said, had decided in favor of home rule when they had the overwhelming majority over all parties, and the last election was fought with the knowledge that home rule would come next to the passing of the Parliament Act. It would have been the crowest breach of public faith to put off this legislation.

Mr. Asquith affirmed that the Government still believed that as the bill had passed the Irish Legislature which it would bring into existence, even if it had the direction, which the Government did not believe it to have, would not and could not have the power to be guilty of acts of oppression against the minority. He pointed out that the Lords had not attempted to modify or improve the terms of the bill. The Prime Minister paid a tribute to the loyalty and self-sacrifice of the Irish party in the House of Commons.

The bill as it left the Commons, continued the Prime Minister, had been very roughly treated by the House of Lords, but had the hearty approval of the whole Liberal party in Great Britain and of the vast majority of the Irish people. The Lords had given ample evidence that it has practically the united support of all the great governing dominions. (Cheers.)

"In these circumstances," proceeded Mr. Asquith, "there is in my opinion a complete constitutional case for proceeding to the enactment with the Irish government bill and for applying to it the provisions of the Parliament Act. Ought the action of statesmen to be affected or deflected by the menace of forcible resistance to the execution of the law? (Long and continued cheers.) The doctrines preached during the last two years in the North of Ireland, which I regret to say have received countenance in responsible quarters in this country, are a negation of the first principle of parliamentary, still more of democratic government. No, we need not, and shall not be intimidated by the threat of force." (Prolonged cheers.)

Then speaking slowly and deliberately the Prime Minister said: "I have been once more asked on the hope and belief that the new system of government in Ireland would be brought into operation without recourse to armed forces by the crown. If a little deliberately enacted by Parliament were to be met by organized and resolute resistance it would clearly be not only the right but the duty of the executive government and authority of the law to every power placed at its disposal." (Loud cheers.)

There were two obvious reasons why all patriotic men should desire a settlement of the Home Rule problem by consent. In the first place, there was the supreme import nce of the future well-being of Ireland. The new system should not start with the apparent failure of practically, however preponderent in numbers, but still the current humiliation of another section. He firmly believed that the time for Home Rule would prove more durable and effective than their differences, if the unifying process were given a fair chance of success. It was worth paying even a considerable price to secure the absence of ill-will and the possibility of co-operation.

Then the second reason was that whatever settlement should be reached by all parties as resting upon consent would be more and capable of future development beyond the risks of party vicissitudes. Ireland and far more than a mere fragment of Ireland politics. (Cheers.) Proposals, however, made be perfectly good faith and good will, for a normal conference with Irish leaders, did not appear to him to be practically helpful. Conferences without defined limits would be almost certainly abortive and would probably leave matters worse; nor was a conference necessary if there was a genuine disposition on the part of by all the parties to change of suggestions, free and frank, without prejudice, to contribute to the common stock.

In House of Lords this morning, Lord Asquith, "Both I and my colleagues are ready to take part in it. (Cheers.) We should not depart, however, from the root and principle of the Bill—a subordinate Irish Parliament at Dublin with an executive responsible to it. (Cheers.) In the second place, nothing must be done to erect a permanent barrier to Irish unity. Thirdly, while the importance of the extension of devolution to the United Kingdom is fully realized, the claim of Ireland is prior in point of urgency."

DREADED EPILEPSY

A Case That Should Bring Hope to Other Sufferers.

There are many cases of epilepsy incurable so far as present medical knowledge extends and the sufferer is doomed to a life of misery. Nothing is so diseases which has stricken him suddenly and without warning, and it only recurring attacks his mental powers. Taken in time, however, many cases of epilepsy have been successfully cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in cases where the disease has not reached an advanced stage there is every reason to hope for a cure. Among the cures we give the following: Mrs. Robert Stringer, Now Liskeard, Ont., says: "I have pleasure in letting you should write you and let you know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for my little girl who was attacked with epilepsy. The trouble seemed to come on following an attack of convulsions. My attention was drawn to notice that his eyes seemed to bulge out, and that he would be unconscious for a few moments. I would go about his play he would. The child was five years old at the time. The trouble seemed to be growing worse when I was advised to come otherwise, and as the local doctors were not helping him they sent him to a specialist in Toronto. He remained there for a short time, when the doctors said his trouble was incurable and they could do nothing for him. Time went on and the attacks grew worse, and at the end of 1908 my daughter wrote me that the little boy was getting so bad that they wanted to send him back to the hospital. I wrote back to tell them to wait for a time, and as one of his eyes had become crooked I took him to an optician who said that trouble could be cured, but it had nothing to do with bringing on his other trouble. As I have that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were a splendid medicine, I decided to give them to him, in the hope that they might benefit him. We were very careful as to diet, and as to keeping the child from excitement. In about a month we noticed that the trouble seemed to be entirely gone, but during the hot days the trouble came back in a milder form, and the fits seemed to come on more frequently, and although more than a year has passed there has not been since been sign of it. We feel so deeply indebted for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for him that we hope this plain statement of our experience will benefit some other sufferer."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MR. ROWELL ON BILINGUAL ISSUE

(Special to The Post.)

Toronto, Oct. 27.—"Hon. Mr. Lucas at Dalton, asked if we were going to support the Government in its policy towards bilingual schools," said Mr. N. W. Rowell, K. C., M. P., in answer to an enquiry. "I asked Mr. Lucas which of the Government policies is it that is meant. In the last two years they have made a complete circle several times, and one never knows what the government's policy on this question is going to be from day to day. On the other hand the Liberal party enunciated in 1910 and emphasized at my Massey Hall meeting in November of that year remains the same today in 1913, as follows:

"To secure through adequate training a supply of sufficient supply of competent teachers and thus insure higher proper recreation that the pupils in every school in the province should receive a thorough English education.

"It is plainly apparent that the government by its wobbling and inconsistent course has put itself into a bad hole and it is equally plain that they are making frantic efforts to get us to help them out of this hole. We, on the contrary, by our stand by our own policy which we believe to be right, and which we have stuck to unchanged in these two years since I have been leader.

Mr. Rowell gave an unqualified denial to Mr. Lucas' insinuation that he was really behind the Separate School Board agitation. "Mr. Lucas story is childish," said Mr. Rowell. "If he is serious in what he says he should, he knows that such is not the case. I have had no communication with the men in Ottawa, either direct or indirect."

In proof of his assertion that the Government had no stable policy on the bilingual question, Mr. Rowell gave a number of quotations. In 1911 Hon. Mr. Foy declared, "There cannot and will be any bilingual schools in the province of Ontario, and if any one found they must cease to exist, and we should be backed up to make all schools conform to the law."

Within a day or two Hon. Dr. Pyne in reference to Mr. Foy's announcement, made the following comment: "That was made on Mr. Foy's own book, and it was his opinion, his personal opinion on the subject. You know, I find the biggest opposition to bilingual schools in the people have not got them, and conspicuously do not know much about the question. The Government has taken a stand. Sir James Whitney's attitude is that while English should be made the language of the schools as far as practicable, in a school where child should receive an English education, we are not prepared to deprive the children of Germans having their children started in their mother tongue as a means to an end, and having their mother tongue taught in the schools as a subject when so desired by trustees representing the people of the school section." And a day or two later, the Hon. Prime Minister, (Sir James Whitney) said to me "Go back to your constituency and tell them (Prescott) that the teaching of the French language will not be abolished in the Province of Ontario." At the same time the Prime Minister was declaring, "There are no bilingual schools in Ontario."

In 1912 the Whitney Government put into force the famous regulation 17 which aroused the opposition of the French-Canadians. Later the Government declared loudly they were going to stand by to the end. In the North Grey contest, for example, Hon. Mr. Lucas was emphatic in his statement that this regulation would not be interfered with. In September of this year however, the regulation was changed to a form so extreme that the Orange Sentinel, a number of Orange lodges, and several Conservative newspapers have declared that it was a complete backdown on the part of the Government, have censured them for his action, and have demanded in no uncertain terms the resignation of Hon. Dr. Pyne. "And now," said Mr. Rowell, "Mr. Lucas asks if we are standing behind the Government policy. I ask again, what is the Government's policy?"

Mr. Rowell said that if the Government should ask him for advice, he would do as he had done in similar circumstances in 1912 when he was asked in the House what he would do about the question. "I said then that my advice would be to call for the resignation of the Minister of Education, as being the man responsible for the present condition in which these schools are. That advice I repeat today."

Six Cows Killed Near Port Hope

Six valuable cows belonging to Mr. Wm. Lingard were killed by a southbound G. T. R. freight yesterday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock. The cows were being taken from pasture and were being driven to drive them over the tracks. The two men, in charge, as was the usual custom went to the track before opening the gate to see if everything was alright, and they heard no warning of the approaching train. Just as the cows reached the track the train come tearing along and before they could be driven off six of them were killed and one so badly injured that it is not likely to recover. The loss to Mr Lingard is very heavy as it will be a very difficult matter to replace the cows. The very best one of the herd, for which he recently paid $90, was amongst the number that met death.—Guide.

Verulam Farmer Has Made Money

North Verulam, Oct. 24.—The many friends of Mr. John Lawrence will be pleased to hear that he has sold his farm which he bought two years ago for $10,000. There were many who thought John was going wrong when he sold out here. The following is a clipping from the Toronto Telegram "Hunter Pay & Co., real estate dealers, have invested in another farm for subdivision purchases. The newly-entered property is the Lawrence estate at the corner of Bathurst street and Mill road, adjoining the Vergemont estate, which was bought by the same firm this summer and sold in lots. Twenty Thousand Dollars is the price paid for the latest acquisition. It has been used as a farm by John Lawrence, who occupies it at present. It contains 125 acres and is considered among real estate men as a good purchase. It fronts on Bathurst for 22,000 feet.

YOUNG MAN HAD UNPLEASANT EXPERIENCE

Pleasant Point, Oct. 27—The home of one of Lindsay's young men caused a rather exciting time for a while Saturday evening, when he got a wild dash for liberty and won it for some time. The horse had just been hitched up and was being driven by the driver before the home of Mr. Francis Brien, when for some reason the animal started on a wild dash for its home. The horse, with the rig still behind, was caught and unsaddled by Constable Brien about twenty minutes later, having run over seven miles. The rig was only slightly damaged and the horse apparently none worse. The horse kept the buggy top upwards is a wonder as several sharp corners were turned while the chase lasted. The horse ran into one rig near Lindsay, but attracted itself before it was captured, so the occupants of the rig made no effort to do so. The would be occupants of the rig were driven to town later and were much relieved by the way things turned out.

Some men are dumb because their wives never give them a chance.

What Marconi Has Accomplished

The word Marconi is in danger of being used for other purposes than the name of a great inventor. During the controversy which has raged for months and the prolonged proceedings of the Select Committee, "Marconi" has been converted into verbs and adjectives and come to be synonymous in the minds of some people to a political scandal or a deal in shares.

"I think you will quite understand that I very much resent all the caustic comments on my name," said he before the committee. "You see plaards, 'Marconi Scandale,' 'Marconi Manners,' 'Marconi Scenes,' and I strongly object to my name being a by-word in politics and a peg on which to hang all kinds of scandalous accusations in which it is not suggested by anyone that I am in any way concerned."

Some of the nearer critics attacked Mr Marconi as a "foreigner," and more belittled his genius or derided his invention. That his mother is an Irish lady, that he loves British institutions, speaks English like a native, and is married to an Irish lady, are facts which do not count with malicious critics who emphasize the "Guglielmo" in his name. It is time that the country wiped away the stain that has been put upon him, and gave to the discoverer of an invention that has not only revolutionized the fabric of society, established a new and cheaper means of communication, but saved much valuable property and hundreds of lives, the honor that is due to him. It would be only just that the nation should do so, even if his invention were superseded tomorrow.

Marconi is a benefactor of humanity. Without his wireless system the whole of those 461 precious lives on the liner "Republic" which collided, in 1909, with the "Florida" would have been lost.

The burned steamer "Slavonia," bound from New York to the Mediterranean, which went ashore on Pictou Island a year or two ago, was also indebted to wireless telegraphy for the help rendered by the "Prince Henry" and the "Saturia" which steamed to the scene of the wreck and took the passengers off. In the cases of the "Ophir" and "Delhi," the utility of the wireless apparatus was again demonstrated. In fact, on so many occasions has it been instrumental in saving ships and lives that the Marconi Company does not hoop a record of individual cases. And in many other ways, such as by leading to the arrest of criminals fleeing from justice, Marconigrams have been of incalculable value to civilization.

Today one cannot circumscribe the globe without being in touch with one or more wireless stations standing like sentinels over some rocky, seacrrit shore. The isolation of the world is mid-ocean is a thing of the past.

The inventor who has made all this possible has not received the full measure of credit for his services to commerce, any more than he has received adequate reward for his services to humanity. To wireless telegraphy public are indebted, to a large extent at least, for the breaking of cable combines, and for the introduction of important reductions in cable rates. The cable charge to Canadian, Mozador and Habat, in Morocco, for instance, has been reduced this year from 9d. to 6 1-2 d. a word, owing to the reduction of the wireless rate. During 1912 and the early months of the present year, half rates for plain language deferred messages were introduced in regard to United States, Canada and Newfoundland, and recently further reductions took place, bringing the charge down to a half-penny per word above the Marconi rate.

TALE OF TWO WOMEN PIRATES

Long before the suffrage was an issue in England, in a time when women for the most part spent their lives by their own hearthstones, there flourished two women pirates, British born. Real buccaneers they were, who swaggered and swore right lustily, and sailed the Spanish Main, and slew folks with broad cutlasses and did all the other things that well-regulated pirates were in the habit of doing. Their names were Mary Read and Anne Bonny, and their records are still to be read in certain ancient British court records, though they seldom are, says the Kansas City Star.

Mary was one of those strange women who have gone through life dressed as a man. She kept her secret from all except a very few. Before she was 18 she enlisted as a sailor in the British navy, and a history of pirates published in London in 1724 by Captain Charles Johnson tells all about her. She did well enough as a sailor, then enlisted in the army and went with a British regiment to Flanders, where she fought through a number of campaigns, and was distinguished for her cool nerve and bulldog courage, and perhaps no one suspected that she was a girl.

But, being a woman, she could not refrain from falling in love, and finally was married to a fellow soldier of whom she had grown very fond. Soldiering then left the army, bought a little inn in Flanders, and settled down to housekeeping. All this seems a long way from piracy—but do not be impatient.

Mary's husband died in a year or two, and she went back to her wild, masculine life, shipping as a sailor on a Dutch merchantman, bound for the West Indies. Before the vessel its destination it was waylaid by British pirates, who, being in need of a sailor, took the Dutch boy, never suspecting that the recruit to their crew was a woman.

Mary prated for a little while with the boys, and then the ship put in at New Providence, one of the Bahama Islands, and took advantage of the general pardon offered to every British pirate except Captain Teach and Captain Avery. They all promised to be good, and the crew disbanded, and there was Mary out of a job again.

But the British governor of New Providence was fitting out a privateersman at the time to harry Spanish commerce privateering, by the way, was the respectable and legal way of being a pirate, and was countenanced because the owner of a — voiter had to divide the government. Well, Mary became member of the crew of the British privateer, and, incidentally, it was a very tough crew she joined. One member of it was a pistol-armed Dutchman. Another was his wife, Anne Bonny, a buxom wench, who, like Mary, was disguised as a man. Anne was the real "tough kid." Captain Johnson tells us, while Mary was just an honest working girl, whom circumstances had made a pirate quite against her will. However, Mary does not seem to have put up a very violent struggle against cruel fate.

However that was, the rough and ready Anne Bonny fell in love with Mary, who she fancied was a man, and decided to elope with her and then Anne explained, and they grew very chummy, and being women, they quarrelled and reconciled more frequently, so that Buckman, Anne's husband, grew very jealous of the friendship, and had his suspicions, but let in on the secret for fear he would sneak up on Mary and insert a dirk between her shoulders.

The bold Rackam couldn't bear the thought of being a subordinate and dividing up the spoils of war with any government, so he led a mutiny, soon tossed the officers of the ship overboard, and moved his belongings up the captain's cabin.

It is not known whether he hoisted the Jolly Roger at the masthead, but probably he did, and if he didn't he should have. Anyhow, they went plundering merrily over the Southern seas, although they do not seem to have been as bad as some members of the profession. Generally the crew of a merchant ship was spared when they gave way after everything of value had been carried off. Necessarily men were killed occasionally, but wholesale plank walking was not a feature of this cruise. Maybe it was the refining influence of having two pirates of the gentler sex aboard, but the chances are it was because, for the first place there was Mary, who was gentle about Mary and Anne, and, in the second place, the members of the crew knew they were women. They brandished cutlasses and pistols, and what they lacked in whiskers they made up for in ferocity.

And just at this stage of the game that soft-hearted Mary fell in love again. A young artist had been captured from a British ship—Rackam had an idea that he might be useful in sketching scenes and drawing charts. Pirates, you know, were great at chart making—drawing mysterious maps showing locations of buried treasure, with explanations in either that it takes a Sanskrit dictionary and an x-ray machine to make clear.

Mary and the artist became good friends long before the artist suspected that she was anything but a sailor and more than usually fond of some boy. At night, when other members of the crew were drunk or sleeping, Anne too would sit together in a sheltered corner of the deck, and Mary would lean back with her head pillowed on her lap, and listen to him tell the story of his life and his ambitions. The artists seems never to have suspected his comrade was a girl, so sad lust Mary told him, and they were married—informally, it is true, and without prior license. Pirate ships do not carry chaplains, although license is plentiful enough aboard them.

After the marriage the cruise went on for months, and once Mary saved her husband's life, when he had been challenged to a duel by one of the ruffians of the crew. Mary succeeded in quarrelling with this man, and fighting a duel herself instead of her husband had an opportunity to risk his life. The girl pirate—still known as Frank to her shipmates—went ashore on a little island, and left her pirate with her. Both drew their pistols and fired, but neither was seriously wounded. Then they attacked each other with broadswords, and after a few minutes' fierce clashing Mary stabbed her enemy through the body and killed him. Then she wiped her sword on the grass, and sailed back to her ship, and nobody thought anything of it.

But it was not long after the duel that the pirate ship was overtaken by a British frigate, a short fight followed, the pirates serving their stubby cannon until a storm of musketry swept the top from the deck. Every one rushed to the hold except Mary Read and the redoubtable Anne Bonny, who continued to load and fire the cannon. Anne, in rage, rushed to the companionway of the ship and cursed the cowards who refused to come up and fight, and when they refused, jerked a great pistol from her belt, and fired into the huddling, cursing mass, killing one and wounding several others. But it was of no use, and in a little while the crew of the pirate ship were cursing and cheering over the side of the pirate ship and overwhelmed its surprised captors.

All the pirates, including Anne and Mary, were put in irons and carried back to England. The girls was allowed to go free, as it was easily proved that he was a member of the crew against his will, but his pirate wife was tried and sentenced to the gallows. As she was expecting soon to become a mother, a reprieve was granted her, and before it expired, she fell ill of a fever and died. Rackam, leader of the band, was hanged, but Mary, the pirate's loving wife, was reprieved from time to time, and finally allowed to go free.

BALKAN JEWELRY

On the crest of the wave of Balkan fashions comes the Balkan jewelry.

One striking necklace shows the unusual combination of lapis lazuli and turquoise, the dark, rich blue with the lighter shade giving the two tones that are the very bright hue now in fashionable costumes.

Lapis lazuli is used in another handsome necklace in smoked amber and jade, the deep blue, with the yellow and dark green forming a typically Balkan color scheme and one that is extremely popular now even when seen in small touches, as in gloves. The lapis is in three flat shape, the jade and amber mounted in the surrounding silver work.

Opaque stones are the favorites in Balkan jewelry. Other gems used include garnets from the native soil, topazes, amethysts, onyx, rock crystals found in the river beds of the Highlands, and small seed pearls.

The Balkan jewelry is always in round sun stone, has occasioned much favorable remark among the lovers of artistic jewelry. Its quaint setting of openwork silver is almost black in the deeper shadows, so dark in the gray toned patina, and against this the smooth orange stone forms a fine contrast.

The Balkan finger rings in their numerous distinctive designs make it possible for your jeweller to give you something with an air of the exotic touch suiting your individuality. In one example lapis lazuli is used—stone in a long narrow section, with red coral and smoked amber in very small pieces decorating the silver setting, and, on either side of the lapis set bead.

Jasper is a great favorite with the Bulgarians. They have jasper set in necklaces, rings and earrings, mounted in gold or silver, but their preference is always for silver—and jasper in silver is splendid. The four renowned Balkan colors can best be carried out in jewelry by using jasper, which gives the necessary dull red, lapis, smoked amber and rich green jade, but whatever the costume there may always be found a jewel of any desired harmony among the Balkan jewelry.

C.P.R. MEN GET PRIZES

To have merited the distinction of having the most beautiful station garden on the whole Lake Superior division of the Canadian Pacific Railway is to have won the admiration of every statesmanlike on the company's lines reaching from ocean to ocean. This honor has just been awarded to P. A. Nicol, station agent, winning the general superintendent's prize of twenty-five dollars. Since the C. P. R. inaugurated the system of beautifying the station houses, round-houses and section houses by supplying seeds and offer-ing prizes for best gardens, competition has become keen among the officials at various points of the system. Each year has brought forth better results until a perfection has been reached, and now the railway station, which was ever unsightly, has assumed the aspect of the Swiss cottage. Each property, by the individuality of its respective official, has its own unique characteristics, and is artistic and wholly beautiful.

A Drostt, section foreman, Kamaiskwa, first prize for the best section house garden, $10.

W. J. Summers, agent, Cache Bay, first flower garden on district No. 1, $10 second prize, $5, won by N. W. Vanayele, agent, Clamsford.

District No. 3, first prize, $10, won by F. Burr, agent at Pearl; second prize, $5, awarded to J. Nicol, at Rossport.

Enduring Quality of Makeshift Paint

Recent experiments seem to have done something towards solving what was an insoluble mystery to a Turk who came into Malta to be drydocked and have his bottom repainted. Payment was doubtful, but reasons of state were in the way of suggesting "cash with order." Some economical official gave to the occasion. He gave the Turk a coat of paint, made up of the odds and ends of leavings of paint left on British ships. Some years later the Turk appeared again. He had not been drydocked in the interim, but, having gone to something like that, the allotted span, calculated that it was time to shift his barnacles, and discover how many plates were eaten through with rust and decomposition. For reasons of state he was drydocked again—to reveal a bottom as clear as the day when the paint was applied! From that day to this—if legend is to be believed—everyone concerned has tried to track out what was the exact mixture of leavings painted on to the Turk by the economist, who has accidentally made the greatest discovery on record. Recent experiments made in Germany appear to have solved the problem—also by accident. At any rate, it is alleged that paint is often the worst enemy of paint, one coat destroying another. The old-time mystery would appear to be solved by the fact that the Turk was only given a single coat, and the fact that, his Joseph's, it was of many colors had nothing to do with the case.

HOW HERB MILLER MET HIS DEATH

Short circuiting a current of 2,300 volts of electricity through his body while working on a table at the top of a pole at the corner of Rosslyn Road and Osborne street, Winnipeg, at 2.15 Tuesday afternoon, Herbert Miller, 23 years of age, received a shock from which he died while on the way to the General Hospital shortly after. Miller was engaged to be married to a childhood sweetheart in Peterboro, Ont., with whom he had company when he went to school there. His parents reside in Peterboro. In his hip pocket were found a pair of rubber gloves which if worn would probably have saved his life.

Miller was engaged as a lineman by the Winnipeg Electric light and power department, for which he had been working for the past year. He was at work setting a 2,300 volt cable on the top of a 40 foot pole, when his hand, covered only by a pair of light leather gloves, came in contact with a circuit breaker. The current went through his body and his hands were severely burned, the palms of the gloves being burned to a crisp.

FELLOW WORKMAN LOWERED VICTIM

His partner, Jack S. Macdonald, No. 1 Empire block, who was working with him on top of the pole, grasped Miller, and seeing that he was in a serious condition, immediately fastened a rope around his body under his arms, and lowered him to the ground, where he was taken in charge by E. Thomas, 236 Carlton street, another lineman. He was unconscious. Thomas called to a woman to notify a policeman, and soon Constables Johnston and Bedgey and Sergeant Osterson were on the scene. Together with Dr. Mattice of the Rosslyn block they rendered first aid and the injured man was then removed to the hospital in the police ambulance. He was dead when he arrived there.

When the dead man's pockets were searched a pair of new rubber gloves were found in a hip pocket. Apparently because of the cold or because he was not used to their newness and did not take to work with them he had not worn them, but used a pair of old leather gloves. His friends were also wearing leather gloves.

Miller's body was removed to Clark Bros. & Hughes' undertaking rooms to await orders from Coroner Rogers.

Miller lived in Peterboro, Ont. for many years, and received his education there. While going to school he became acquainted with a girl and the friendship grew to love. Letters they had come to an agreement that were to be married shortly. Miller came to Winnipeg a year ago from Calgary, where he had worked for a short time. He has made his home while here at the Iroquois hotel.

Miller's fellow workman, Jack Macdonald, showed rare presence of mind when he saw his companion in trouble. He lost his head and did not lose a second in getting Miller to the ground.

GRAIN SHIPMENTS RECORD BREAKER

It looks as though the present season will be a record breaker for Midland in the matter of grain shipments and already over twenty million bushels have been received at the elevators. With two or three weeks yet in which to receive shipments the season should close with about thirty millions marked up. The elevators have been working steadily for the past month, and if sufficient cars are obtainable to move the shipments coming forward this amount would be increased. There is no doubt however, that this will be the biggest year yet for Midland elevators.

Seven Years For Scoundrel

Cobourg, Oct. 24—Joseph Thorne, of Hovenmille, who was tried in the County Judge's Criminal Court before His Honor Judge Roger, was given seven years in the Kingston Penitentiary. The charge was a serious one and his wife and daughter gave evidence against him.

NEW TEACHER FOR COLLEGIATE

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held last night in the council chamber.

There were present Chairman Plowville, Dr. White, Thos. Stewart, Dr. Blanchard, J. McLennan, C. H. Weeks, John Carew, A. Jackson and J. B. Berg. The meeting was called for the purpose of appointing a teacher for the vacancy at the Collegiate caused by the teacher who had previously been appointed had telegraphed that unforeseen circumstances would prevent her from coming to Lindsay to accept the position after all.

Sixteen applications were received at the time of advertising and further investigation was made of the qualifications of these so that the most competent person available might be chosen.

After deliberation it was decided to engage Miss A. M. Dickin as a teacher of English on the Collegiate Staff at a salary of $1400 to start and increasing $100 yearly till a maximum of $1800 was reached.

An adjustment and division of the subjects taught by a couple of the Collegiate Institute teachers was dealt with by the Board and Principal Kirkconnell given the proper authority to see that each does the proper work as prescribed.

FARMING PAYS IN HANLEY DISTRICT

The Hanley (Sask) Herald contains the following which will be of interest to our readers in Lindsay:

"That farming pays in the Hanley district is proven by a visit to one of our progressive farming brethren, Mr Alfred Leonard, who is located four miles west and two miles south of town.

"Two years ago, when Mr. Leonard was but 18 years of age, his father died, leaving the care and responsibilities of a large family, and the overseeing of the farm on his young shoulders. That he has been successful is shown by the dozen fine horses and colts, eleven head of stock well bred Durham cattle a bunch of twenty-five Poland China hogs, and this season's crop of 5000 bushels of No. 1 wheat! 1150 bushels of oats, and 500 bushels of flax. He also erected a nice new house this season on a rise of ground which commands an uninterrupted view of the country for miles in every direction.

"His threshing was done this year by Mr. George Ward and his splendid crew of men in just two days. One day they made quite a record. The machine is only a 36 inch cylinder, and started in at six o'clock, taking one hour and a half for dinner, and quitting at 7 p. m. the machine stopped only for two meals and dinner, they threshed 2500 bushels of wheat, and when one pocket was full, the pocket alone weighed 33 lbs., it figures out the actual number of bushels to be 3271 bushels in two days. On fifteen days' threshing Mr. Ward has accounted for 26,715 bushels of wheat, 10,590 bushels of oats, and 1004 bushels of flax."

Sale of Horse Flesh

HALIBURTON BOY KILLED WOLF

The boy being armed with only a 22 rapidly rifle, wounded the mother badly and killed the cub. Assistance coming to hand, the old one made off into the timbers.

PHONE FOR EVERY NINETEN PERSONS

The Dominion of Canada is becoming an inveterate user of the telephone. She has now in use 400,000 telephones, an increase in twelve months of over 200,000. Statistics issued by the telephone and telegraph branch of the department of railways and canals for the last fiscal year show a large increase in the telephone interests of the Dominion. There are now almost a millionaires of wire in use for telephones in the Dominion. It increased last year almost 200,000 miles. Ontario alone has almost 400,000 miles; while Quebec, the stronghold of the Bell Telephone Company, has almost 200,000. There is now over a mile of telephone wire in use for every eight persons in the Dominion of Canada, and one telephone for every ten. Of the 400,000 telephones now in operation, 172,000 of them are in the province of Ontario.

High Prices For Poultry

There was quite a supply of produce at this morning's market, but the prices were at the top notch. Chickens were quoted at 18c. to 20c. a pound; ducks 20c., geese 20c., and turkeys 25c. a pound. Butter was selling for 27c., 28c. and 29c.

COINCIDENCE AT AMHERST GATHERING

The first services in connection with the recent meetings in Amherst on Sunday, October 5, suggested some very interesting Methodist reminiscences. The services were held in Trinity Methodist Church, which boasts a Avery fine memorial window in honor of Bishop Black, who built the first Methodist Church in British North America, which was situated not far from the site of the Trinity Church itself. The preacher at the morning service was the Rev. Dr. S. Avery, who was born near Adolphustown, where the first Methodist Church in British North America and the first in Upper Canada was built. Dr. Sheroy was specially active in the movement which restored this historic building and brought it into the possession of the Methodist Conference. And the Rev. Dr. R. I. Warner, of Alma College, St. Thomas, was assisted in the services at Trinity Church that Sunday, by a grandson of the first Methodist class leader in Upper Canada, who built with his own hands the third Methodist Church in British North America, and the second in Upper Canada, the old Warner meeting-house for the Niagara Peninsula. This, we think, was a rather unique as well as most interesting coincidence.—Christian Guardian.

Justifiable Imitation

A young man who had not been married long, remarked at the dinner table the other day, "My dear I wish you could make bread such as my mother used to make."

The bride smiled, and answered in a voice that did not tremble.

"Well, dear I wish you could make the dough that father used to make."

Finances of Peterboro Fair

JOHN OCONNOR'S SUDDEN DEATH

Death came with terrible suddenness for John O'Connor, a well known and highly respected resident of Bobcaygeon at the King Edward Hotel Saturday evening by strangulation, while partaking of his supper in the dining room.

The unfortunate man in company with Messrs. Martin Carroll, W. J. Brien, G. McDonald and other gentlemen were partaking of their evening meal, and chatting pleasantly with each other. Suddenly Mr. O'Connor gave signs of being seized with what appeared to be a weak spell. His friends came to his assistance, when it was realized that he was choking. Strenuous efforts were made towards rendering relief, but although Mr. O'Connor did not show outward evidence of strangulation or constriction of the throat, his condition did not seem to improve. He was carried in an unconscious condition to the parlor, and Dr. Blanchard was hurriedly summoned. Although the unfortunate man's pulse was beating feebly when Dr. Blanchard arrived, he passed away a few seconds later. Dr. Blanchard examined the deceased's throat and found a large piece of beefsteak lodged in it.

The body was afterwards taken to Fournier's furniture parlor and later removed to the residence of the deceased's brother-in-law, Mr. Chas. Lucas, Downeyville, where an inquest took place this morning, and was largely attended by the residents of Emily. The deceased was a member of the C.M.B.A. and Downeyville Court, No. 1, of which lodge he held a card. Interment took place at Downeyville cemetery.

The late John O'Connor was about fifty years of age and lived with his father, Mr. John O'Connor, near the village of Downeyville. The deceased is also survived by three sisters, Mrs. B. Murray, Mrs. G. Lucas and Mrs. T. Harrington, all of Emily. The sudden death of the deceased was a sad blow to his relatives and more especially his aged father, with whom he resided.

Last winter the late Mr. O'Connor was seized with strangulation while in town, and was taken to the residence to a local physician, who gave him prompt relief.

The deceased was a warm favorite with all who knew him, and his sad death is deeply deplored.

WESTERN CROPS ARE SATISFACTORY

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 23.—Reports from many points today indicate that not only is the crop of 1913 safely gathered, but that preparations are completed for early seeding in the spring and that fully eighty per cent of the fall ploughing is done.

In Manitoba the yield is a good average with the quality away above the average. Threshing is complete with yields from twenty-five to thirty bushels per acre. There has been no appreciable delay.

Saskatchewan is in a better position than ever before in its history. Fall shipments are double those of last year's.

"Safety First" On Grand Trunk

The Grand Trunk System has issued broadcast the following pledge (neatly printed, in colors, on a large card, in relation to the safety first campaign which issue being vigorously pressed both in the United States and Canada.

"I will railroad according to the book of rules. I will do all in my power to guard against mishaps on my part. If I see a fellow employee doing his work in an unsafe manner, I will speak to him as a friend and use my moral influence to have him perform his duties in the safest possible manner. I will remember and practice at all times safety first.

At the foot of the card is this statement.

"Eighty-three per cent of all persons injured on railroads are you men who work for the roads. Sixty-six per cent. of all preventable injuries sustained by you are due to unsafe practices, which you could avoid.

ARTHUR HAWKES TO VISIT HERE

A new patriotic movement is under way for the betterment of Canada. It is the Canadian League which is being organized throughout Ontario and the Dominion. Its aims are similar to those of the justly feted Canadian Clubs, but the idea is to give it a much greater scope and influence than they would. In fact it must be universal.

The objects of the Canadian League are—

1. To explain to the newcomers who are pouring into Canada the nature of our government and our traditions and to inspire in them an intelligent devotion to the country and its institutions.

2. To bring the people of Eastern and Western Canada into a closer understanding of each other, so that they may unite in a common Canadianism.

3. To unite all citizens in non-partisan support of national undertakings, particularly those pertaining to national defence.

4. To maintain Canada as a self-governing nation within the empire.

There are no fees in connection with the League which is supported by voluntary subscriptions.

The Canadian League will hold a meeting in Lindsay in the Town Hall next Thursday, Oct. 30th, when Mr. Arthur Hawkes, editor of "The Canadian, and John A. Cooper, of "The Canadian Courier", will speak.

The Lindsay Orchestra will provide a good program of music. Special invitation is given to the ladies to attend and seats will be reserved for those who desire them.

WHY MEAT IS BECOMING DEARER

Ottawa, Oct. 23—That the operation of the new tariff of the United States is primarily and almost wholly responsible for the marked increase in the price of Canadian meat was a statement made today by a government official, whose duty it is to watch the meat trade generally, and the circumstances surrounding it.

"The facts are that for some months in anticipation of the passing of the new tariff, American buyers have been on our markets buying all classes of beef cattle for exportation to the United States.

"Consequently the situation at present is abnormal, and may in a measure right itself after a while, but in view of the fact that the day following the new tariff going into effect, prices increased as much as a dollar a hundredweight is evidence of the unmistakeable cause of increased price."

Market figures from all the big stockyards show a marked decrease in exportations of cattle, meats and other produce.

GRUESOME FIND AT PORT HOPE

Guide—While repairing the east pier yesterday Mr. Jack McAvoy made quite a gruesome find. Buried among the large boulders were two big bombs and another bone extending from the ankle to the knee. It will be remembered that about ten years ago, a foot enclosed in a boot was found under the dock and it is supposed that yesterday's find is a portion of the same body.

MONSTER LATHER FOR BOVING CO.

The Canadian Boving Co's plant is being improved and more machinery added every few weeks. The latest addition is a huge lathe which is one of the largest in Canada. It has a capacity of twenty-eight feet, and will turn and machine immense iron castings. It weighs over fifty thousand pounds, and two flat cars were required to bring it here. The machine will be erected at once, and should be in running order in a couple of weeks. Williams Bros have the contract or putting in the big concrete foundation on which it will rest.

Don't waste time explaining your actions people prefer to draw their own conclusions.

L. E. STEVENS NEW MERCHANT

A new baker enters the list of Lindsay bakers today in Mr. L. E. Stevens, of Peterboro, who has purchased the business of Mr. T. Allin, who has operated the City Bakery at 40 Victoria avenue for many years. Mr. Stevens enters the bakery business with all the most modern methods. A number of new machines are being installed, and nothing will be neglected to give his customers the cleanest and most wholesome bread and pastry. Both wholesale and retail side of the business will be conducted from the plant from now on. Mr. Stevens has been very fortunate in securing a head baker Mr. Brody, who has managed some of the largest bakeries in Toronto and other cities. Mr. Brody is famous among the trade for his delicious and wholesome products. Mr. Stevens is assured from the start of good support due to furnishing good products.

It is his intention to open up a store down town on Kent st. in the near future to handle confectionery, ice cream etc. Further announcement will be made at this latter.

Mr. Stevens comes prepared to furnish catering for luncheons, dances, banquets, at homes, and all classes of entertainments where food or refreshments are required and will make a specialty of wedding cakes. As a young Peterboro man who is well known to many Lindsay citizens, having had occasion to visit here frequently in his former business. It was on the strength of this that to recognize the opportunity Lindsay held for a good business such as he is taking hold of.

BEAVERTON MAN BADLY INJURED

A serious runaway accident in Mara street Beaverton, on Thursday afternoon last, in which Mr. Ed Hepburn, well known in Lindsay, met with severe injuries. The horse which he was driving took fright at some obstacle and bolted, throwing Mr. Hepburn out of the buggy. His injuries consist of a broken nose and several severe bruises and cuts in the head and body. He was picked up and carried to his home the Ontario house, where he is now under the care of Dr. Smith. The horse in the mad career came with a buggy in which the Rev. J. Becker was driving, smashing both vehicles and freeing itself. It was finally caught about two miles south of the village.

WANT TO SELL BEER AND WINE

Orillia Times: It is rumored that a proposal is on foot to ask the council to submit a bylaw providing for the sale of beer and light wines in Orillia, but not for the sale of stronger liquors. Such a bylaw is an impossibility under existing arrangements. No liquor of any kind can be legally sold in a local option municipality. If the local option law is repealed all kinds of liquors can be sold under license, as well as beer and light wines. Local option is working too well in Orillia for any considerable number of citizens to think of repeal, and the liquor interests know that too well to even dream of bringing on a repeal vote contest. The licensed beer hoax has gone out of Orillia to stay.

G.T.R. CHAIRMAN CALLS FOR INCREASE

London, Oct. 2—Presiding at the Grand Trunk meeting here today, Chairman Smithers said that from one point of view it was unsatisfactory that while larger gross receipts they had been unable to secure a larger profit. The cause was increase in wages and in the cost of fuel and material, yet on the other hand they had been able to maintain their position and meet charges on the capital account. It is a perpetual fight to maintain a position already won, declared the chairman, as the railway commission, municipalities, employes, and general public are for ever placing extra burdens on railways or asking more concessions charges.

Ask Increased Charge.

"Knowing the difficulties, I think our staff deserves credit for what it has accomplished." Chairman Smithers, proceeding, expressed the emphatic opinion that with all the demands now made upon railways they ought to have increased charges.

"All over the world railways are being asked for more service and more accommodation for the same or less money. To best provide for and the general public talk one would think the railway companies consisted of unscrupulous capitalists, whereas they are composed of investors who throughout the world do not get an average return of four per cent.

High Rates Urged

"I fully realize that railways must confirm to the law, but most respectfully think that more consideration should be given to what they can really afford. The necessity for higher rates is urgent and the demand upon us increasing. I cannot believe the people of Canada and America will long resist it. There has been a great deal of prosperity in Canada, some quite just and moderate, some quite unnecessary. There has been a very long period of 18 months, brought about by the years of extraordinary trade activity during which new countries absorbed unprecedented amounts of liquid capital.

War Scare Felt

"There has also been a haunting fear that war might invade the larger powers which would lead to the hoarding of gold and the curtailment of credit.

"I think Canada may be proud of the way she stood the strain. She has had some real estate speculators and a few mismanaged or overexpanded companies, but Canada as a whole has maintained a high measure of prosperity."

Outlook Bright.

"What other country with the same production can show such surplusses? Few Governments are in a more satisfactory financial position. I think the world's demand for what Canada produces will continue, and I see anything but continued prosperity over a course of years. The immense development of capital all over the world must necessitate allowing down in developments, but not more in Canada than other places. I am certain Canada will obtain sufficient for her legitimate wants."

The report was unanimously adopted, the meeting being entirely harmonious.

NO INTENTION OF ELECTRIFYING ROAD

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 22—Sir Thos. Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who arrived here this morning from Minneapolis, laughed at the report which came from Milwaukee crediting him with stating that the whole C.P.R. system might be electrified. What he had stated was that it was the intention to electrify Rogers' Pass tunnel, and if the project succeeded in operation electrification would be extended over the mountain division from Revelstoke to Field, B. C. Sir Thomas also denied the report in London that Canadian Pacific interests were to be split into three parts.

Sir Thomas announced that double tracking operations between Calgary and Port William would be completed by the fall of next year. The company has under construction 1,905 miles of road, exclusive of double-tracking, of which 1,600 miles are in the west. Twelve hundred miles of the total will be completed this fall.

MORE DETAILS OF JAS. ROSS' WILL

The will of the late James Ross, who, it was announced some time ago, bequeathed a half million dollars to local charitable institutions, was filed for probate Wednesday in the Probtocourt's office, Montreal. It is a document of 15 pages and various legacies. The first person mentioned is a sister, Mrs. Isabella Carter, who receives wills the interest on $100,000, and an annuity of $75,000, besides his ranch near Calgary, Alberta. Mrs. Ross is authorized to live in the residence at Number 240 Peel street, and the trustees are directed to sell the mansion if she so wishes, and provide another for her with the money obtained through the sale. Furniture, treasure of art, carriages, horses and automobiles are also to remain in the hands of Mrs. Ross.

THE BEQUESTS MADE

The other members of the family are then remembered. John Kenneth Leveson Ross, son, is given a similar sum and an annuity of $75,000.

Mary Grace Ross, a sister, gets an annuity of $10,000.

A codicil provides legacies to friends, "by way of remembrance." Those are all well known business men, namely John Mackay, of Montreal, Granville C. Cunningham, London; Frederick L. Wanklyn, of Montreal, G. H. Duggan, Montreal, and Philip Johnson, Montreal, who all receive the same amount, $5,000.

Special provision is taken by the late Mr. Ross that his servants and employes would be provided for and be authorized his secretary, David C. Hogg, to distribute the money, with of the family. Mr. Hogg is willed a sum of $10,000, and he is made one of the trustees for the execution of the will. George Herbert, captain of Mr. Ross' yacht, gets $2,000, and the cook of the same yacht, Thomas Lawrence, will receive $1,000, "provided," says the will, "he is still in my employ at the time of my death." Edward Marchmont, James Brechin, Samuel Ward and John Brothers, each get an annuity of $500.

As to those servants and employes whose names are not included in the list of legatees, Mr. Ross asks the trustees to reward them as they think fit.

TO LOOK AFTER HOSPITAL

John Kenneth Ross, son of the late of the testator, is asked to take an interest in the welfare of the "Ross Memorial Hospital at Lindsay, Ont., to which the sum of $25,000 is willed.

Many minor legacies are also contained in the will. The trustees are Mrs. Annie Ross, her son John Kenneth Leveson Ross, his secretary, David C. Hogg, Frederick Lindsay, (Lindsay, of the Bank of Montreal), and the Royal Trust Company.

THE LEGATIES

The legacies to various institutions are as follows:

Royal Victoria Hospital.....$ 50,000
General Hospital 50,000
Maternity Hospital 50,000
Alexander Hospital 25,000
Montreal Art Association ... 100,000

Barn Raising at Pleasant Pt.

Pleasant Point, Oct. 27—Mr. Francis Brien had a new barn raised on Saturday morning. The timber went together fine, and no doubt, some experienced which speaks well for the farmer. When completed the barn will present a fine appearance.

Mr. Dudley Hoag, who has recently purchased the farm of Mr. Geo Robertson, of here, has been making some improvements upon the premises before moving on them. Among others, he has erected a fine new dwelling, which is up-to-date in every respect and adds greatly to the appearance of the place.

Mr. Sam Anderson, of Cameron, called on friends here recently.

RECREATION FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

From time to time public mention is made of the evil of children parading the streets at night. In this town there are several people who advocate the establishment of a curfew bell, and others are strongly of the opinion that the authorities should make an effort to better enforce the present regulations regarding the late hours. The reason why children should be on the streets of Lindsay at night, and there is nothing serious in the way of the authorities doing their duty in enforcing the law that makes it impossible for children to be on the streets at reasonable and respectable hour. If the parents are to blame steps should be taken to either educate them in the matter, or else punish them if they are wilfully disregarding the law.

Why do the young people, including children, throng the streets at night? Evidently recreation is what they are after, and as the street offers most entertainment, it is most patronized. This, at least, is the only recreation they have. Perhaps, Wisconsin, a town of 6,000 people, where there has been a 9 o'clock ordinance with this unusual recommendation:

"Believing that the cause of the young people being on the streets is that they are insufficiently seeking legitimate recreation, and that means of gratifying this perfectly normal desire is not provided for as it might be, we recommend that steps be taken for supplying some wholesome recreation for the earlier hours of the evening. They will find this recreation somewhere, and if they find it under proper conditions and surroundings, it is reasonable to expect that this will prove both preventive of evil and constructive of good. There was some time in the greatest agency, and some cognizance taken by citizens of this can not but result in good to the community."

There was soon something done. The local company of the Wisconsin National Guard offered its armory, free of charge, for the purpose, and beat the city attorney agreed to raise among the business men, money for the necessary expenses, volunteers were secured, including the chief of police, to direct a grand march, basket ball, indoor baseball and other games, and a committee of wide awake women were chaperons. Hundreds of young people attended the 500 children between 9 and 16, and scores of parents, and it was all over by 10 o'clock. In addition to this opening of the armory, a large empty room is being secured, heated and lighted, and the key is to be served as a bridewell. Groups of young people wishing the rooms for games, will apply to the chief, naming their gym director or chaperon.

It is evident that in the future there will be a director of public recreation, to supervise playgrounds, manage holiday entertainments, and to service provide for the amusement of the people.

Communities as such a municipal place of entertainment, and that provided in the Wisconsin town may be, the Brantford Expositor, after reproducing the above, is of opinion that the best place for children to be in the evenings is in or about their own homes, if they have such, and the Post coincides with such an opinion, but, as the Expositor adds, for children away from home, and for young men and young women, wholesome entertainment thus provided would be a great corrective to the dangers and temptations of the street, while such places would go a long way toward affording a satisfactory answer to the question posed by the Toronto Saturday Night, "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"

Plan For Street Lights

Ald. Adams, Chairman of Police and Light Committee, has drafted a plan for the distribution of the extra lights in the outlying districts of the town. It will be submitted to the council at the next meeting.

PLEASE PUBLISH MY TESTIMONIAL

To Other Sufferers Will Take "Fruit-a-tives" And Be Cured

Certificate — heartfelt gratitude — prompted this letter. Madame Langlois was so thankful to "Fruit-a-tives" for restoring her health and strength that she gladly allowed her letter to be published.

MADAME VALERE LANGLOIS

ST. ROMUALD, QUE., SEPT. 23rd, 1912.

"It gives pleasure in stating that I have been cured of severe Dyspepsia and Chronic Constipation by using "Fruit-a-tives." I was a terrible sufferer from severe Constipation for many years, and I tried every remedy I heard of, and also was treated by physicians without any permanent benefits.

Now I tried "Fruit-a-tives", and this fruit medicine has completely cured me. I have no more Constipation, stomach recreation, and that means of gratifying this perfectly normal desire is not provided for as it might be, we recommend that steps be taken for supplying some wholesome recreation for the earlier hours of the evening. They will find this recreation somewhere, and if they find it under proper conditions and surroundings, it is reasonable to expect that this will prove both preventive of evil and constructive of good. There was some time in the greatest agency, and some cognizance taken by citizens of this can not but result in good to the community."

Madame Langlois is a well known Dame Thomas John Dwyre, of Lindsay, the marriage being solemnized by Rev. E. P. Hockley, of St. James church. Mr. Wm. Farrell uncle of the bride, officiated, as best man, and Miss Pearl Lee, of Pendon Falls was bridesmaid.

The happy couple will reside in Lindsay and left for their home the day after amidst the congratulations and best wishes of their friends. — Minden Echo.

FLETCHER—DAVEY.

A pretty wedding took place at Enterprise on Monday, October 29, when Lillian McDonald, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Davey, was married to Mr. William J. Fletcher of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Fletcher of Napanee, the ceremony being conducted by Rev. Mr. Rowland. The bride's wedding gown was of grey charmeuse satin, with corsage bouquet of lily of the valley. Immediately after the ceremony the groom's brother, R. Wilson Fletcher, sang "Dedicate." The wedding music was played by the church organist, Mrs. George Counsel of Lindsay. The bride and groom were unattended. A dejeuner was served, after which the happy couple left on wedding gown to her travelling suit of navy blue velvet, with velour hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher left for New York. On their return they will reside at 271 Crawford street, Toronto.

Not responding to the morning call, on investigation it was found that she had been dead some time. She was apparently in excellent health, cate woman and the strain became too great. She leaves a sorrowing husband and two daughters one of whom is a school teacher in Cobourg, to mourn her loss.—Advocate.

REV. DR. MURRAY

Toronto, Oct. 23—One of the strong men of the Presbyterian church passed from the scene of his activities on Wednesday night in the person of Rev. Dr. J. L. Murray. Dr. Murray died at his Toronto residence at 106 Geoffrey Street, where he had lived since his retirement from the active ministry in the Presbyterian church some four years ago. For 30 years Dr. Murray occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church at Lucknow. Previous to that he was at the Woodville church in the Lindsay district, and before that again the Baltimore Presbyterian church in the Cobourg district.

He was born near the Scotch Highland settlement of Embro 76 years ago, and is said to have inherited that wholesome influence of his personality wherever he lived—both in the church and as a citizen.

Dr. Murray is survived by two sons—Rev. John Lovell Murray of New York, and Mr. Frank Aliment Murray, the first having served for some years as a Y.M.C.A. missionary in Japan. Three daughters, two are at home, and one is the wife of the Rev. S. Anderson of Orillia Presbyterian church.

One of the oldest residents of Haliburton in the province, Douglas Kellett, passed away on Friday evening, October 17th, in Toronto General Hospital, where he had been ill for the week previous in ill health, and on Wednesday, October 15th, had undergone a serious operation, from which he never properly rallied. The remains were brought home on Saturday and interred Monday in the Haliburton cemetery. He is survived by Mrs. Kellett and twelve children, C. W. Kellett, Mrs. H. Austin, Mrs. A. H. Sewell and Mrs. Ed. Sewell, of Haliburton; A. B. Kellett and Mrs. D. Giles, of Toronto; Mrs. Jas. Otto, of Haliburton, and Mrs. Wright, of Cache Bay, and five brothers, John, of Gelert; Stanley and George, of Minden; Wellington, of Donald, and William, of Haliburton. Deceased was in his seventieth year and had lived in or near Haliburton for the greater whole life. The funeral was largely attended by friends from Minden and Gelert as well as by those at home, testifying to the high esteem in which he was held. The sympathy of all is extended to the bereaved wife and family.—Minden Echo.

MRS. DANIEL HOOVER.

The following from the Port Perry (Sask) Advance refers to a lady who has relatives in this district:—

Keziah Hoover was born in township Ennis, Lanark County, Ont., 76 years ago. When she reached womanhood she was married to Daniel Hoover, and they took up their residence at Pendon Falls where they kept store for three years. On the death of her father-in-law they returned to Port Hoover and took charge of the Hotel there. Afterwards she built and ran a saw and grist mill. In 1871 he sold out and moved to township Perry, Parry Sound district. Here Mr. Hoover died in 1880. In 1889 Mrs. Hoover moved with her sons Henry and Sedgwick, to North Dakota where they were located and lived for some time in Eastern North West in 1904 she accompanied them. When they located first in the Horse Lake county it meant a day and a-half's drive of forty miles to Sheho as the nearest town, but this long journey never scared Mrs. Hoover. Sometimes, the distance she had to ing when two years old, and another Sophrona dying twenty-six years ago in North Dakota. The surviving children are George, of Armstrong, B. C.; Henry, Sedgwick and Thomas all of Midell Farm, Sask., Mrs. Ed. and Mrs. Rachel Savage both of Edmonton, Alta., and Mrs. Matilda Melrogor of Lindsay, Ont. Mrs. Hoover will years at her dying bedside except the oldest son George and the younger daughter Matilda. Her sickness was of long duration, but she had not been feeling very well for three or four weeks but appeared to be recovering nicely and had taken a drive out doors. When she returned to the house she sat down but was seized with a sudden stroke and was never able to move. The family physician Dr. Somers was immediately called, but she died before he could get to her recovery, and pneumonia intervening she passed away. As one of the oldest settlers in the Horse Lake district Mrs. Hoover was widely known. Her kind and jovial nature endeared her to all and strangers travelling through Saskatchewan were sure of a warm welcome at all times and under all conditions for her hospitable door was always open. Mrs. Hoover had ample means and could have luxuriated in a city, but she was distinctly of the pioneering type and preferred to be with her sons in a new country taking part in its development.

The funeral took place on Monday 20th September from the house of her son, Sedgwick, to Horse Lake Cemetery. It was one of the largest funerals ever seen in the district, thirty rigs conveying over one hundred mourners. The pallbearers were G. C. Purdy, Henry Baker, Jas. Ed. Kenny, Byron Pindall, George Rabam and Andrew Bachter. The casket was beautifully decorated with flowers. The Rev. A. Fulge conducted services, at the house and at the Cemetery using Presbyterian and appropriate addresses. Deceased will be very much missed by a large circle of surviving friends whose sympathy goes out to the family in the loss of a dearly beloved mother.

Port Hope Note's Close!

The License Department of Toronto sent their Chief Inspector, Mr. Ayerst, to Port Hope last week. He visited all the hotels in the town and finds that two are lacking in accommodation for the public. They are only sheds, and he will recommend that their licenses be cut off. It has long been felt in Port Hope that when hotels are given a monopoly, they should be required to provide accommodation at all hours of the day or night. The Government are moving in the right direction, and will be commended by all right thinking citizens.—Times.

COMMISSION SYSTEM IN PORT HURON

The Post is indebted to Mr. Wright M. Goodwin, at present in Port Huron, Mich., for printed matter dealing with the commission form of municipal government adopted by that city. Mr. Goodwin says it has been a great success in that city. Included among the printed matter forwarded is a monthly statement from the City Treasurer, and report of the monthly meeting of the Commission. This is published regularly and enables every taxpayer to know just where they are at.

ROUND THE WORLD IN ONE NIGHT

Last evening Mr. J. D. Flavelle gave an interesting and instructive address on "A Trip Around The World" before a very large audience, assembled in the class rooms of the Cambridge St. Methodist Church. The large attendance despite the rain shows how the event was looked forward to.

Dr. Shorey made an able chairman for the evening and in his address made very complete remarks, saying Mr. Flavelle is a great curler and he will give us an account of his curl around the world in several instalments. He will give the accidental and incidental things as well as in determining things and will make it of value to us all.

The first number on the programme an instrumental by Miss Brown, was truly an artistic classic rendering and of great sweetness.

Mr. Shorey then introduced Mr. Flavelle to the audience, not as the curler, but the traveller around the world.

The Post does not attempt to give a running account of Mr. Flavelle's interesting address, but gives a brief but incomplete outline of the many points of interest touched upon. The address must be heard in order to thoroughly enjoy the treat.

Mr. Flavelle in commencing said he did not think curling would ever become popular all around the world for in many parts it was quite impossible.

You will readily understand that in my address tonight I have no time to go below the surface of events but can give you only a sketch of my trip.

My travelling companion and room mate on the trip was Mr. G. H. Hopkins and I wish to say here that he was a most unselfish and considerate and made the best possible companion.

We had a pleasant steamer and practically perfect weather with only a couple of rainy days. On the 21st of March we sailed from Halifax in Liverpool and spent a brief time in England. There was time for a side trip through France and then to catch the vessel again at Monaco on April 6th, and we then passed through the Mediterranean which was absolutely calm and beautiful. We had a fine view of Stromboli near Cassila, the burning mountain, and saw Messina the fatiful city, at close range. From there we sailed on to Port Said. I was one of the first passengers to right the Port, being an early riser. We were there among a strange people dressed peculiarly. Port Said used to be known as one of the wicked cities in the world but is better now. From there we went to Cairo and passed through the desert with its occasional palms.

There was no improvement in the reaping of grain in that country since the time of Christ. The houses of the Arabs are made of mud, they of the Arabs are made of mud.

Regarding cities, they were there in most abundance in Egypt and I believe that eye troubles are caused a great deal by the myriads of insects.

Cairo is a wonderful city. There is a marked contrast between the abodes of the rich and the poor. In viewing one of the mosques filled with alabaster, we had to put on large slippers but did not have to take our shoes off as in past years. There are 200 mosques in Cairo and it looks like the city of the dead from a distance.

Many beautiful spots abound in the city and were visited

Outside of Cairo, 7 miles, is an immense pyramid which we inspected. This huge edifice is 805 ft. long and 465 ft. high, was a great sight, it being built in 22 years' time, of stone 4 x 6 feet. Nearby is the sphinx, cut in solid granite and brought several hundred miles from Assuan. It is rather disappointing to see after the great pyramid, but still it is a wonderful sight.

Cairo is the worst spot for beggars in the world, many in pitiable conditions. Hundreds of traders of huckster followed on our heels, and it spoiling to followed us all over the city to sell their goods.

From Cairo to Suez returning is a remarkable trip and many of the ladies took sick from the heat and sand blowing in the train. We then rediscovered for a 3,000 mile voyage to Ceylon through an absolute dead calm, the sea water being 85 to 90 degrees. When you could sit at midnight in the lightest of clothes, on the deck of a steamer going 20 miles an hour and feel fairly baked alive you can realize how hot it was.

On our way to Ceylon we went through the Red Sea which was 1200 miles long, to the straits of Aden where we were to stay a day, but did not do so on account of fear of quarantine. Aden is the hottest spot they say in the world.

Columbo, the next place visited, has a beautiful harbor, and does a heavy trade and everything grown in the tropics is seen there.

We drove out to the Cinnamon Gardens, (Mr. Cinnamon went with us) the famous botanical gardens. We saw our first Rickshaws, a little two wheeled affair, drawn by Tamulds, small, light men of only 80 lbs.

The Tamulds adjust themselves for all weights, but seemed to prefer light people.

The tarff is so low that foreigners always give more usually then is regulated. The country is overrun with snakes and reptiles. Cocoanuts are grown in abundance and oil is extracted and sold.

From Colombo up the mountain is a beautiful place where the first Buddhist temple is situated, and to which Buddhists come from all over India.

From Colombo we sailed to Singapore, passing Sumatra Island. Singapore is on the island of that name and is 300,000 in population, mostly native. It is said that 90,000 Chinamen pull Rickshaws in that city. There the only tin mines of the world, (with one or two exceptions) are worked and great wealth gained through the mineral. There is also a big boom in rubber plantations and from 2 year trees sap can be drawn.

Regarding pineapples, you ought to taste the ones grown there, juicy as an orange and quite sweet.

The harbor was covered with divine boys in their dugouts who would dive for coins. Some boys took 3 year old children down with them and it was a wonder that they were not drowned.

Mrs. W. H. Reesor during this intermission sang "A Perfect Day" ex quisitely, with piano accompaniment by Mr. C. C. Forsythe.

Continuing Mr. Flavelle said Singapore is the 6th largest shipping port in the world. From there we went to Hong Kong, 1,750 miles through the China Island. The city is really Victoria, situated on the island of Hong Kong. It is a fine harbor and in 1906 20,000 people drowned in it through a typhoon.

A typhoon passed nearby at the time we were there, but did no damage. You imagine Hong Kong is a Chinese city, but it is not, just as essentially a European port.

Large drays for carrying merchandise were drawn by 6 or 7 women and manual labor of all kinds is done by them. If the new world women realized what they are escaping they would not be so keen on their present life perhaps.

We were fortunate enough to see Dr Wm. Allan, an old Lindsay boy, a surgeon on a Pacific steamer and made several trips around the country with him.

From Hong Kong some of the party went to Manilla while we went to Shanghai back to rejoin the steamer at Yokohama.

A side trip to Canton, which is a wonderful city, was made by eight, and it is a fine sight.

It is a walled city of 2½ million population, greatly congested, with streets from 3 to 7 feet wide and 2 storey buildings. One could get really lost in the maze of streets.

No foreigner lives in the city and 500,000 Chinese dwell in sampans on the river. They live on rats, cats, birds and earthworms, a choice morsel beside some modern dishes.

They have a water clock made before the time of Christ. The foreign missionaries have helped in doing away with the chopping block and the city of the dead.

We then returned to Hong Kong, at Hilledee, honeymooned with grace, which is one of the greatest obstacles to building railways in that country today.

Shanghai residences of foreigners are as good as any in our best cities but the native quarter is congested.

There are many industries, autos and ponies, but a favorite joy ride however, is in a huge wheel barrow.

On we went to Nagasaki, a famous coaling station, where all coal is loaded by hand, mostly by women.

Thence to the inland sea, which is a combination of the 1,000 islands for 400 miles. The mountains nearby were covered with grain. We saw a geisha dance there.

Yokohama, a Japanese city, has many industries. Many manufacturing art industries were visited and they were wonderful. They are good imitations, but not original in art.

A side trip up the river to a Buddha Temple was unique, the Buddha inside being burned a couple of times in the past years.

Deer are kept in abundance in a large park and are very tame, for the traveller can scarcely get by for their inquisitive interference.

In Kioto there were many temples and ancient buildings. There will be a couple of new temples opened for the crowning of the Emperor next year.

From Yokohama to Tokio—This city the capital of Japan, has cheap transportation, 2 cents for ten miles At Yokohama we did a great deal of buying through letters of introduction from Mr. A. L. Campbell, and had many bargains.

Before leaving, it is estimated that 25,000 people visited our steamer to see the largest vessel ever in that port.

Crossing from Tokio to Vancouver was a lonely trip. At Victoria we took an auto trip where a marked change has taken place in that city. It was mighty fine to get back to our own country, God's own country. We should be proud of our country, for it is the best in the world.

One might imagine that 19,000 miles by water would be tedious, but there was not one dull moment, with the exception of the last few miles when we were anxious to see home and friends.

We should be thankful that we have such a fine country, whose tone is the highest in any part of the globe, through, I believe, the influence of Christianity.

The program was closed by a violin solo by Miss Helen Flavelle, accompanied by her sister, Miss Jean Flavelle, which was a very pretty musical treat. A tribute to its quality was the insistent applause for an encore.

Mr. Sparling moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Flavelle and the Ladies' Aid and others connected with the successful affair.

Mr. Flavelle had given a wonderful address in a polished style, and had the gratitude of all present.

Mr. W. A. Goodwin seconded this motion which was approved by the entire audience.

Citizens Band is Growing

Our citizens will be pleased to learn that efforts will be made during the coming season to add greatly to the strength and efficiency of the Citizens' Band. The organization has had a very successful season and is all its engagements as well as in its park concert series, its playing has evoked the most favorable comment from music critics and the citizens generally.

At a meeting recently held the organization was placed on a more effective footing, the excellent executive and the enthusiasm of its members augurs well for the future of this popular musical organization.

During the coming season an effort will be made to add to the strength of the organization from a commercial standpoint. Already several new musicians have been enrolled and others could be secured if possible were available. The members will lend every endeavor to bring the membership of the band up to 35 men by next spring.

The best advertisement a town can possess is a first class band, and our town should be alive to share in helping to make the local organization one of the crack musical organizations of the Dominion.

RUFFLES AND FRILLS A-PLENTY WITH JUST A TOUCH OF FUR

The only hint of winter in the gown today, unless it be a tailored street frock, is the strip of fur that trims it. Most of the dressy frocks are fashioned of materials so sheer that they could easily be drawn through a bracelet were it not for the "hoop" at the bottom of the tunic.

It may seem a little incongruous to have bands of fur on filmy blouses that are scarcely more than breathing of lace veiled in chiffon, but what matters the incongruity if the effect is smart and new? Certainly a rippling line of fur edging a transparent tunic gives a wonderful touch to a gown.

Flounces of fur on the softest, most supple of taffeta is the charming combination seen in many of the dancing dresses. A suitable model for such materials is seen in 7972. The underbodice and flounces may be of the net; the body of the frock in a soft silk taffeta. In its issue, number three this paper presents a Directoire design, and a decidedly similar effect is given by straps or "suspenders" over the shoulders. The size 36 this model requires 5¼ yards of 36 inch material.

Charmeuse veiled in chiffon, edged with fur and trimmed with lace makes a most attractive dinner or dancing frock (7930). The underbodice is of the same lace as the flounces. One of those effective rolling collars and a veinlike corse sash, caught with a bow lock and frosted with fur complete the gown on each side, are distinguishing features.

To copy this model to size 16 it requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch material. Each pattern is 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and forward 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the bodice part of the body for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

WOMEN'S "FATAL AGE" IS 30

Dr. Jacksh, of Hamburg, has analyzed on scientific principles the course of love in the average man and woman. He gets the result in diagrammatic form, and shows that the male "curve of love," or capacity for affection toward the other sex, is highest between 24 and 26, whereas the female curve rises highest between 30 and 34.

His statistics are based on an examination of the sex lives of 400 famous men and women. The curves show that men loves strongly at 20, but that after that there is a drop, owing to his getting over youth's first delusions.

He begins to love strongly at 24. He seldom loves at 30, being then too busy with his advancement in life.

Woman loves superficially at 17, and more or less equally between then and 30. But the great passion of her life usually comes when she is past first youth. Thirty is her fatal age. Even 40 is not hopeless. Among famous women there have been more strong passions at 40 than at 20.

GRAIN ELEVATOR SINKING FAST

Winnipeg, Oct. 30—Sinking steadily since Saturday noon, the huge C.P.R. internal terminal elevator at Transcona is now tilted, like the leaning tower of Pisa, at an angle of 30 degrees from the perpendicular. The foundation of the great structure, which is composed of 45 concrete cylinders, five rows of 15, began to sink at one corner at the rate of two feet every ten minutes. With a capacity of one million bushels, the elevator was nearly full of this season's grain, which is exposed at the top, owing to the massive cupola, containing the distributing machinery, having collapsed when the lean of the structure was too great for the overhanging bulk.

The elevator cost $750,000 but the officials of the company do not yet know whether it can be salvaged, or whether it must be demolished and a new structure erected. As for the grain, if no rain falls into the exposed bins before a temporary covering can be said, there will not be a very heavy loss, the chief difficulty in this case being the problem of removal before navigation closes, all the machinery for this operation having gone down with the wrecking of the cupola.

JUSTIFYING MURDER IN BRITISH COURT

London, Eng., October 13—If a man mentally deficient killed a man with her hair could it be said that the murderer had sufficient provocation simply because the victim had red hair?

The question was discussed in the Court of Criminal Appeal during the hearing of the appeal of Thomas Alexander, who was recently sentenced to death at the Central Criminal Court for the murder of a woman named Clarke.

Mr. Fox Davies stated that the jury strongly recommended the man to mercy on the ground that he was mentally deficient. It was submitted to the jury that the question for them was whether the man at the time of the crime knew the nature of his act. If he did not, then there could be a verdict of manslaughter.

Mr. Justice Rowlatt intervened, however, saying it was not a case of manslaughter at all. Counsel suggested that a verdict of manslaughter would have met the case. The man was admittedly mentally deficient. He received great provocation from the woman before he killed her. What would be provocation to a man in the border line of insanity would not be sufficient for a perfectly sane person.

Mr. Justice Darling said the argument came to this: If an art critic stated that a picture was not in perspective, the artist was mentally deficient and killed the critic then that would be sufficient provocation for murdering the critic, and the artist would only be guilty of manslaughter.

"Counsel has raised an ingenious argument which has never before been used," added the judge. "If it could be allowed then a mere gesture, or prejudice alone, might be said to be provocation.

"If such an argument were allowed and a man killed another with red hair, and the act was done by a person mentally deficient, then the judge would have to ask the jury whether the murderer had sufficient provocation simply because the victim had red hair. There is no authority for such a provocation."

The court came to the conclusion that the jury had returned a proper verdict and dismissed the appeal, but refused to express no opinion which would limit any action of the Home Secretary in the exercise of the prerogative of the Crown.

Association Flays Pastor Russell

Incensed at the idea that Pastor Russell has imposed on 1,100 newspapers throughout the country, among them being a Winnipeg paper, inasmuch as they print the pastor's sermons each week, the Winnipeg Ministerial Association, after listening to a scathing denunciation of the methods of Pastor Russell given by Rev. A. G. Sinclair, Ph. D., this week passed a resolution proposed by Rev. G. B. Wilson, "that the press should be notified that Pastor Russell is an unscrupulous fakir."

Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor), who presided at the meeting, as chairman, said: "At first blush it may seem ridiculous to pass a resolution in the words of Dr. Wilson, but on second thought they are exactly the right words."

Dr. Sinclair briefly reviewed the career of Pastor Russell and his interpretation of the Scriptures, remarking that his method of interpreting the Bible was so fantastic that it could not be credited to any one but a lunatic.

"This," declared Dr. Sinclair, "gave the man prestige. Pastor Russell represented himself as the head of the International Bible Students' Association, and that name behind him was all that he had to stand up for him. In reality the position was an empty one. It had been proven that Russell had never been ordained a minister. His cards say 'no collection,' said the speaker. "Pastor Russell has a system for getting money which beats the collection plate all to pieces." Dr. Sinclair said that he had come to the conclusion that it was simply the tremendous amount of advertising that Pastor Russell could command that kept the movement going. "He is the greatest advertising genius in the religious world today," said he.

DOCTORS DID NOT HELP HER

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Bradley's Health—Her Own Statement.

Winnipeg, Canada.—"Eleven years ago I went to the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering with a growth. The doctors said it was a tumor and could not be removed as it would cause instant death. They found that my organs were affected, and said I could not live more than six months in the condition I was in.

"After I came home I saw your advertisement in the paper, and commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it constantly for two years, and still take it at times, and both my husband and myself claim that it was the means of saving my life. I highly recommend it to suffering women." Mrs. Donald Bradley, 284 Johnson Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba, Can.

Why will women take chances or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

BELL CO. MEETS WITH OPPOSITION

The Post has been informed that the Bell Telephone Co is meeting with unexpected opposition by Ontario property owners in their work of installing wires etc in rear of business blocks in order to remove the poles from Kent st.

In one or two instances where wires are being attached to buildings to give telephonic accommodation to tenants property owners have threatened to obstruct the work. It is felt that if this obstruction continues the work of removing the Company poles will not be carried out this year.

A Post representative had a chat with several property owners on Kent st. today. They stated they were willing to allow the company a right of way, providing an agreement was entered into or a small rental paid for the privilege. This, they claimed, would safeguard both parties.

Caesarea as a Summer Resort

Scugog Lake is well known as a summer resort and is very popular with many Toronto people who have cottages along the shore or on the islands. One of the most popular places is about four miles east of Caesarea where between seventy and eighty Toronto people summered during the past season.

Twenty-four and fourteen will see probably double that number there, as great preparations are being made for their reception and enjoyment. The water front of J. W. Richardson's farm has been surveyed into good sized lots, each with a good view and a sufficient enough to provide shade and coolness without the danger of dampness. A number of new cottages will be built for the summer residents.

The shore is one of the best on the lake and there is good fishing close at hand. With the proposed raising of the water in the Scugog it is expected that Scugog Lake will become more popular than ever with the tourists and the already good fishing and sailing will be greatly benefitted also.

Three Old Residents

While making a call last week upon Mrs. Bottum, Mrs. Moyle incidentally mentioned that it was her 85th birthday. This led Mr. Wm. Stevens who was present, saying that he had completed his 82nd year on Saturday. Just then Mr. Thomas Devitt came along to see Mrs. Bottum, and Mr. Devitt is a sprightly youth in his 80th year. A cup of tea was taken together on the veranda, the day being so delightfully like summer. Mr. Devitt's horse was the first one to take a drink at the old trough and was at the turning of the water to the new fountain.—Bobcaygeon Independent.
